Nationally Famous Educators To Speak On Program Here

Third Annual Education Conference To Be Held March 6-7

Willard W. Beatty and Frank W. Hart, nationally prominent educators will speak on the program of the third annual convention of the Northwest Texas Conference for Education which will be held here March 6 and 7.

Mr. Beatty, who is Superintendent of Schools at Bronxville, N. Y. and president of the Progressive Education Association, will discuss the question "Will Teachers Give up Their Right to Teach Without a Fight?" The question, "Is Teaching a Profession?" will be the subject of the talk made by Mr. Hart, who is professor of Education in the University of California.

Programs are being mailed to teachers over Northwest Texas, and virtually all schools are cooperating with the Conference by dismissing school on March 6 to permit teachers to attend both days of the convention. Between 2,500 and 3,000 teachers are expected to attend the conference, F. E. Savage, secretary of the organization, said.

Arrangements have been made to accommodate the visiting teachers. Provision has been made to serve meals in the College cafeteria as well as in some of the local churches. A trip over the Goodnight Trail and scenic highway through the Palo Duro State Park has been arranged. The Bureau of Public Service will remain open during both days to give information concerning the Conference.

Music for both days will be provided by the Buffalo Band, W. T. S. T. C. Orchestra, Perryton High School Band, and a choral concert in which 250 high school students will take part.

Klepper's "West Texas Sky" Stands Above Rest of Exhibit

"West Texas Sky," one of the nineteen oil paintings by Frank Klepper now on exhibit in the Panhandle-Plains Historical Society Museum, catches the eye of all West Texans as they enter the Mary E. Hudspeth Room. It stands out from all the other pictures as being a scene with which they are familiar.

Frank Klepper, a Texas artist, paints so realistically that one readily understands and appreciates his work. His negro scenes, especially the one of a negro baptizing, together with a number of seascapes and farm scenes make one

Material for TIPA May Be Entered In Contest Now

All students who are interested in creative writing are given the opportunity to submit material for the TIPA contests which will be held at Alpine, April 17-18.

Entries are to be turned in to a committee which will be appointed this week by the Press Club. The committee will turn the material over to judges here. Local judges will eliminate all but one entry in each division. The winning entry in each division will be sent to Alpine to the state-wide contest.

Material for the contest must be turned into the committee by March 1. Names of those on the committee will be printed next week.

There are fourteen divisions in the contest and the winning entry at Alpine draws a prize of five dollars. Some of the divisions are: humorous short story, serious short story, familiar essay, formal essay, poetry, and one-act plays.

Weaver Addresses Student Body In Assembly Saturday

"Frozen Assets of Religion" was the subject of Dr. Paul Weaver, who spoke in assembly Saturday.

"What is College? It is a place where people learn what possibilities they have and develop their talents. If colleges fail to leave their stamp or mark on their graduates, then those graduates are individuals," stated Dr. Weaver.

"What is life? Life is a person's one chance. There is no second chance; you either make the most of your opportunity or you fail."

"What is religion? They who are bored do not possess it. He who has religion lives triumphant and has no fear of living. Religion is the essential belief that must come from the heart. Don't be fooled by fads, or careless pride; take your life as one opportunity and transform it into its maximum capacity, and you have religion," the speaker declared.

Weaver is a graduate of Yale and teaches at Stevens College, Columbia, Mo. He is professor of philosophy and Bible. At present, he is making a tour that will take him to several college campuses in Texas.

Dr. Weaver was brought here through the services of the local Y. W. C. A.

The article deals with the free county libraries provided by law in Texas. Mr. Condron urges the establishment of free county libraries as "one way whereby the farmer may come to understand these revolutionary trends (of today) and begin to chart his course for the future."

Several Changes Made In New NYA Student List

Yearlings To Play Amarillo Badgers Thursday Evening

Coach Bob Cox's hitherto invincible Freshmen cagers will play the Amarillo College quintet in the Badger Gym, Thursday night, Feb. 13.

Playing for their third consecutive win over the Badger five, the Yearlings will be augmented by four additions to the team, making a total of fifteen members. The four new members are: Foster Watkins, transfer from Amarillo College; Buck Amburn, of Wellington; Odell Washington and Forrest Faulkner, of Matador.

The Frosh mentor has promised to carry the entire squad to Amarillo for the melee on the thirteenth. He hopes to be able to see the three complete teams in action against the up and coming Badgers.

The game which was scheduled against the Wayland Jackrabbits for last Friday has been postponed until Feb. 27.

Visiting Another College Makes Us This Way

"And this is the new painting that we have just received from France." Your brother or friend is speaking. He is conducting you through the halls of his precious alma mater.

After you rubber at the painting to be polite, he takes you to the Administration Building and shows you the imported tile floor, as well as the mural paintings in the auditorium by an eminent Italian artist who was imported especially to the United States to paint the building.

Soon the tour of inspection leads you to the history department, where your escort proudly shows the suit that Lincoln wore on his way to the Douglas-Lincoln debate. The fine paintings on the walls, you are told, are by Xylonshevi Wunseickdkski, the famous Russian artist. That scene a little farther on is the battle of Chickamauga, also painted by Xylonshevi the Russian artist. You wonder why an American didn't paint that.

Thence to the Latin department, where you see the chariot used by Caesar, the sword used by Mark Anthony, Cleopatra's own best compact, studded with pearls taken from the Indian ocean by Malay divers. In the chemistry building, you see the apple that fell on Sir Isaac Newton's head, as well as a demonstration of his first experiment and the equipment that he used to perform it.

After it is all over, and you are back from your college visit, you begin to wonder whether the other college is there to teach things, or to harbor relics that grandchildren of the alumni will be talking about fifty years from now.

Hill Returns From Austin Educational Meeting Thursday

Dr. J. A. Hill returned Thursday from Austin where he attended a conference of college presidents and superintendents of high schools of Texas.

The subject of the conference was, "A Unified Educational Program for Texas."

Three or four hundred superintendents were in attendance at the conference, according to Dr. Hill.

Art School Will Be Conducted In Palo Duro Canyon

Five well-known artists will constitute the visiting faculty of the Palo Duro School of Art to be conducted in Palo Duro Canyon the first six weeks of the summer session. They are: Frank Klepper and Adele Brunet of Dallas, A. W. Mack of San Antonio, Harold Bugbee of Clarendon, and Amy Jackson of Amarillo. Each artist will teach two weeks or more.

Two courses, Drawing for Beginners, and Advanced Drawing, will be offered. All work will be under the direction of Miss Isabel Robinson and will have its studio in the stone lodge on the rim of the canyon. There will be an opportunity to draw and paint life both in and outside the studio.

An optional phase of the course will be a five-day excursion to Taos and Santa Fe, which will include inspection of the art galleries, Indian pueblos, and pre-historic cliff dwellings. Students will sketch as well, and Mrs. T. V. Reeves, Head of the Bureau of Public Service, will give nature study lectures.

Students not asking for college credit may enroll for three weeks instead of six. The tuition fee will be $12 for three weeks or $20 for six weeks.

Those wishing to take one course on the W. T. campus and one in the School of Art will pay only $10 in addition to the usual $12.50 fee.

May Earn Six Hours
It will be possible to earn six hours, and graduate credit will be given those eligible.

Many of the students will live in Palo Duro in the stone cabins which can be rented for a reasonable price. Others will drive from Canyon and Amarillo.

Joe Hill, Jr., on Lecture Tour To Last Until June 1

Joe Hill, Jr., son of Dr. and Mrs. J. A. Hill, is on an extended lecture tour throughout Texas. His lectures are based on his trip to the Antarctic with the Second Byrd Expedition.

Mr. Hill lectured last week in central West Texas.

He spent the week-end with Admiral Richard E. Byrd in San Antonio.

Admiral Byrd, himself, will give a lecture in Amarillo Feb. 20. His lecture will be illustrated by several reels of films of the Antarctic region.

Mr. Hill will probably continue to lecture until approximately June 1.

New English Prof Now Knows About West Texas Handshakes

"I had heard about the western hand-shake before coming to this part of the country and I have had all my anticipations fulfilled. I find the people courteous and friendly," said Prof. J. M. Logue, new member of the Department of English.

This is Prof. Logue's first experience in college teaching. He is filling Miss Mattie Swayne's place while she is in Austin attending the University of Texas, working on her Doctor's degree. He taught in the high school at Robstown, Texas, for three years and was athletic director in the

Outlines Four Basic Points In Address Here

Philosopher Draws Large Crowd of Students, Townspeople

Expressing the belief that Americans are degenerating and that the intellect of the American race is dying as a result of the declining birth rate among the upper classes in America, Will Durant, celebrated philosopher and author, addressed a large crowd of students, citizens of Canyon, and visitors from Amarillo, Friday evening in the auditorium of the Administration Building.

The lecturer presented four basic points in delivering his address, "The Crisis of American Civilization." They were: the appalling birth rate decrease, our economic problems in regard to foreign markets and unemployment, political graft and corruption, and the disgraceful moral code as reflected in movies, art, dance, and literature of today.

Premium on Brains
Most significant in the downfall of the American people is the fact that the lower classes instead of the intellectual classes are producing the next generations. The future generations will have inherited muscle instead of strong minds at a time when a premium is being placed on brains, was the opinion of the speaker.

Despite the fact that free schools are offered and more money is spent throughout the nation for educational purposes, he quoted teachers as saying that the intelligence level of today is lower than that of the last generation.

Machinery and Production
Durant cited incidents illustrative of the effect of machinery on production. "Not only has machinery taken the place of countless men, but the cost of the machinery" (Continued on Page three)

Jennings Receives Application Blanks For Tournament

Herschel Jennings has received blanks for admission to the wrestling and boxing teams in the tournament at Roswell, Feb. 28 and 29.

With six lettermen returning, the team should bowl over strong competition this year. By the time they go to N. M. M. I. at Roswell the teams will be in good shape.

So far the teams are complete except in the 128 weight boxing. No one has reported in that weight.

ARE WE APPRECIATIVE?

Perhaps most of us as students of W. T. do not stop to consider how truly fortunate we are in the quality of visiting speakers that we are getting through the efforts of the Lyceum Committee.

The program of lyceum numbers for this year exceeds anything any of the other colleges in Texas are securing on their programs.

During the last few days, we have had the opportunity of hearing two of the finest speakers that one could find anywhere. Will Durant, a philosopher, author, and "peddler of new ideas," was brought to W. T. in order that we, whose privileges of hearing great thinkers express themselves on current problems are limited, might learn to appreciate the finer things which an education has to offer.

In Dr. Paul Weaver's appearance here, students were enabled to hear one of the most stirring and inspirational addresses that was ever given in the auditorium of the Administration Building.

Hugh Johnson, last fall, opened up and helped to quicken the mental processes of the plodding student.

It is decidedly unusual that a school of our size is able to secure such illustrious men as these speakers are.

Great appreciation is due Prof. Wallace R. Clark and the rest of the Lyceum Committee in obtaining speakers such as we have had during the year.

RECREATION CENTER FOR W. T.

Talk has flourished upon this campus for many years concerning the erection of a recreation hall for students.

Delay in construction of such a place seems to be only forcing students to take matters into their own hands. Youth refuses to stay home night after night with no relaxation. Anything can be expected when young men and women, some of them away from loving guidance for the first time, create their own amusements.

In the summer or warm weather W. T. campus offers a variety of entertainment for its students. There are tennis courts, croquet courts, plenty of cool shady walks for skating, etc., but in the winter time only the more strenuous sports are enjoyed by a small percent of the students. Hence that larger percent must resort to their own ingenuity for entertainment.

Bridge is a popular diversion among both men and women but the "I by" groups cannot be expected to permanently occupy corners of a dormitory or drug store.

Some students, at the risk of being expelled from the college, thereby calling the indignation of parents and faculty down upon them, resort to secretly stealing into men's boarding houses on cold winter evenings for a hand of bridge.

In a small town with limited entertainment facilities where hundreds of young men and women are thrown upon their own resources, any form of human exploitation is likely to take place.

May the time not be far advanced when a recreation hall will be constructed upon the campus with refined supervision where every student can always find room to enjoy himself to his own taste.

ART APPRECIATION

"Education is busy putting ideas into set places," says Sheldon Cheney in his book, A Primer of Modern Art, when speaking of education and art appreciation today. He says we have been taught that art is imitation and must be a finished, technical display. We have lost our ability to appreciate the creative ability of an artist.

When we see a painting at an art exhibit, we look immediately for a likeness in the picture to something we have seen before. If the painting is modernistic in design, we "dub" it as being "no good" without considering the richness of color or harmony of lines.

We think of art in terms of pretty pictures such as illustrations in magazines. Everything about the picture must be like a photograph. We expect pictures to tell a story or convey a sentiment.

Our education has warped us and we fail to see that art is primarily a creative ability.

IF YOU ARE GOOD ENOUGH

A man the other day made the complaint that there seemed to be no occupation in life that was not already crowded with trained men and women.

It is true that most all of the worthwhile fields are crowded but one factor that should always be kept in mind is that there is a place for you in any field if you are good enough.

As each occupation and field of activity becomes crowded, there begins a process of elimination and the poorly prepared or less efficient workmen are weeded out.

ONLY THE FIT SHALL SURVIVE

The day of individualism is not over. As long as the human race exists there will be conflict for supremacy among men as in the savage animals in the jungles.

The day of "dog eat dog" and the best one survive to be eaten by someone better prepared than he, is not passing but growing even more so.

Colleges and universities are rapidly being filled by young men and women who are preparing themselves to overcome their fellow men and rise to higher positions in life.

Man's desire to overcome and climb is as essential to his life as the blood that courses through his veins, for without this he would be only an aimless mass of protoplasm, wandering here and there without a purpose.

HERO WORSHIP

To recognize greatness is to go a step toward achieving it, for the consideration of nobleness ennobles. Hero-worship is the first, as it is the finest influence in the life of young men and women. But the youth must be sure that his hero is more than worthy of himself so that his spirit becomes the goal of endeavor and the pattern of the youth's projected self. Find in this hero courage, patience, and steadfastness—qualities worthy of emulation. And do not fail to give him a dash of romance, for youth loves romance.

It seems very silly to think of things like this, but after all we will have to admit that we do have our own heroes in our inner minds even though we are educated college students and sometimes hope to be real heroes ourselves.

USE THESE ADVANTAGES

As surely as a new year rolls around, we each set up in our minds new goals toward which to work. Our intentions are good and we conscientiously set out to accomplish these aims.

Likewise, as each new semester rolls around, students make new resolutions governing class work.

College only lasts four years and completion opens the door to the best our society has to offer. It means being on the inside enjoying everything a refined and cultured social order affords.

Make each acquaintance and each lecture attendance open new paths toward a better understanding of the fellows with whom you associate and the problems which loom up at every step.

Make this semester bring you rich dividends.

VISIT PIONEER HALL

Are you well acquainted with the history of the Panhandle of Texas? If you are not, you are overlooking one of the best available means of learning its history.

In the Museum building, Pioneer Hall, are countless articles with which is connected some of the most interesting history ever learned by man.

Indian relics, guns, saddles, and other equipment used by the early pioneers in this section of the country, and numerous other things are on display where one may with an expenditure of time only, view the various implements used in settling this historically rich country. Articles in common use fifty or seventy-five years ago, but never seen now except in places like Pioneer Hall may be seen.

Next time you have nothing to do with your time, invest it well by visiting Pioneer Hall. It does not matter even if you have been there before. To really become acquainted with the museum, one must take time to inspect exhibits instead of giving them only a passing glance.

Wisecracks and . . .

. . . Otherwise

Edited by Marion Hill

Well, it seems that we are off to the races again with numerous eds and co-eds in our midst. First, let's tell them how very happy we are to have them, and then, let's tell those that have returned after a brief absence (like Seth Lindsay and Betty Dale West) that we are equally happy to see them around again.

My, my. We never saw so many people in such a big hurry! Everybody is running around at the rate of a West Texas sandstorm. It appears to us as though the student body means business this semester. Oh, how times have changed. (This is to be noted particularly by the faculty.)

We heard that Van Noy carries a key to a room—wonder if it is his room?

Conway Butler again! But — Tough day girls! He just told us confidently that he is really interested in the girl with the big brown eyes . . . and also that he is out for strictly CASH.

Say, we're really going to miss that rascal, "Weenie" Lewis. What will this column do without one of its star reporters? And, too, we might say, Miss Wilma Gilkerson will likewise be mourned in her absence. Tsk, tsk. That's the way with the world, children!

Who is the goofiest freshman in Buffalo Courts? We nominate Monroe Horton.

Doesn't Jerish sound a little "cowish" to you, Carr?

FLASH! Flash! The most versatile man in W. T.: Ray Cox. He plays everything from football to Whitsett's aunt. Whata man! Whata man!

Do you still like midnight pre-views, Ramey?

Noble Floyd Ewing has high ambitions, now, he wants to reform a certain co-ed on the campus.

It's a shame that more students don't get a chance to know Miss Pauline Brigham. . . . Really a good sport.

Cecelia Czerner: nice looking, sweet, industrious.

And from the Farm we have Toby Purcell. Nice kid.

We wonder how many young men will "go West" now that Betty Dale is back.

Now if the Supreme Court doesn't declare the act null and void that created Stafford Hall and make us tear it down, we at last have a boys' Dorm on the campus of W. T.

Congratulations, Mr. R. M. Thompson, first President of Stafford!

If Isabel Boxwell, Myles McGehee, Lou Ella McDade, and a few other studes seem a little more off than usual, it's simply because they sprained their patience trying to extract a rubber band from their thumb and little finger, using only one hand.

We had our Editor on his knees, in The Prairie Office the other day, begging us not to give him adverse publicity. Don't you wish you knew what we were going to say?

You may expect to see Bill Britton wearing Lou E. M.'s green and gray suit most any day now. We heard her tell him he can wear it some time!

Question: Does June Day like blind dates?

Carl Spratt is about due for some more publicity, but he has turned into such a studious lad, we can't find any gossip about him. Sad, sad sight!

Toodlyooo!

Marjory Warren visited relatives in Bovina during the week-end.

DURANT—

ery makes it necessary to operate on a larger scale to pay for it."

According to the thinker, the crash of 1929 was merely delayed from the time of the World War. A crash seemed inevitable until the War broke out. Then, American markets arose to the possibility of supplying foreign markets with goods. When the war was over, Europe recaptured markets because of her lower wage scales and lower standards of living.

Two Ways to Get Markets

"There are two ways for the United States to recapture foreign trade," stated the speaker. "We can either lower our standards of living and undersell our competitors, or we can go to war and destroy competition."

"England," he declared, "is afraid of two powers—Japan and the United States. Japan has labor and the United States has equipment." He cited the fact that England has fought to maintain her supremacy many times in the past.

"Japan and Russia will be fighting within the next ten years. Will America stay out?" he inquired.

Attacks Morals

Durant attacked the morals of the country. He declared that religion has lost its grip on half the population. The home has lost its influence over children, he contended.

He reviewed the history of the rise and fall of Rome. The birth rate of the intelligent classes decreased to practically zero and the resultant internal corruption conquered Rome.

Communism Is Out

Concerning the political situation, Durant declared, "America will never go Communist, but every Communist move will make the danger of Fascism in America greater."

The philosopher outlined points which he thinks it will be necessary to accept in order to halt the degeneration of the American population.

"The birth rate is much more important than the economic problems of today," he maintained.

Sterilization For Unfit

His plan is that the birth rate of the intellectuals should be increased and the rate of the lower classes discouraged. It is his belief that all feeble-minded persons and those which are physically unfit to bear children should be sterilized. All habitual criminals should be given their choice of suffering death or life imprisonment with sexual sterilization in the event of parole.

The speaker expressed the belief that the U. S. Government should pay the cost of each child for one year if both of the parents have passed an adequate physical examination.

Birth Rate Subsidies

The income tax allotment should be doubled for each child. At the birth of a new child, the father's salary should be automatically raised. This, he asserted, would raise the quality and quantity of children.

The lecturer declared himself in favor of early marriages. Instead of the government's giving dotes, it should give a dowry to each newly married couple.

"Politics should be made an honorable profession—not a racket," he concluded.

"Peddler of Ideas"

Dr. Durant has been called "a peddler of new ideas." His opinions have brought him more recognition from the press of the nation than that accorded any other American speaker dealing with intellectual matters.

Durant was secured for an appearance here through the efforts of the Lyceum Committee headed by Prof. Wallace R. Clark.

This was the first lyceum of the second semester.

Thomas Newell spent the week-end at his home in Clovis.

Comments On Dress of Eds and Co-eds

By Gad

I want to deviate a little from the above title of this column and discuss the teachers a little—granted?

Speaking of teachers, I say that they are probably in the most conspicuous place. Each day they must pass the close and critical observation of hundreds of students with just that many different tastes in clothes and manners.

Is there a teacher whose clothes are better cut, whose dress is less conspicuous, whose physique is handsomer, and whose mannerisms are more pleasing than those of Registrar D. A. Shirley?

Dean R. P. Jarrett, Wallace R. Clark, and A. M. Meyer are three whose clothes are immaculate and whose accessories are dignified and well chosen.

Then there is Prexy, F. E. Savage, S. H. Condon, and Herschel Jennings who rank high in my estimation of well dressed and refined members of the college faculty.

Concerning Books

I (female) go to college four years before I break down, admit defeat, and read a book on college men, reading, lastly of course, the part on how to love more wisely.

"College Men, Their Making and Unmaking" by Dom Proface (a pen name with a significance) to one's chagrin is not necessarily written for women. There are breath taking chapters on "Campus Finance—High and Low," "The Art of Drinking," "Playboys of the Campus," and "The Queer Tribe of Professors." There are some very familiar types here.

Seriously, some of these sketches, so true to what might happen, give one the jitters and vapors. Here's one (which the author quotes from Stuart Chase) that chills blood:

"A young man who was looking for immediate financial returns discussed with his mother a scheme for making money easily—and without due regard for ethical implications."

"Tom," said his mother after he had described the glittering opportunity, "you know when I come to wake you in the morning and you don't stir?"

"Yes," he said.

"And then I shake you even harder and you give a little sleepy moan?"

"Yes."

"And finally I shake as hard as I can and you open one sleepy eye?"

"Yes."

"I'd hate to come in morning after morning and find you awake."

All non-ethical souls should shiver at this and resolve not to be awake when the rising bell rings.

"College Men" is easily accessible in the Loan Library and costs nothing. No pre-medic should miss the story of Methuselah, the college cat.

About half of the people in America wouldn't know the names of our leading colleges if it wasn't for their football teams.

Don't pity the woman who was jilted, as she may be in good luck and does not know it.

Buffaloes Trample Goldbugs In Two-Game Series Here

W. T. Cagers Turn In Best Performance Of Season

Exemplifying the flashiest performance of their 1936 cage drama, the thundering hoopers of Coach Al Baggett went on a rampage Monday and Tuesday nights to soundly trounce the Goldbugs of Oklahoma City University by the respective score of 39-24 and 37-23.

Possessing a unique record—including a victory over the California University Bears—the Goldbugs were heavy favorites to capture the series. But the sparkling performance of George Ray Colvin was the deciding difference between the two teams. His defensive work was especially impressive, and when the score necessitated it, he broke through for frequent counters. He was ably assisted by Captain Willie Boedeker and a clever floorman, Sophomore Conway Butler.

The Buffaloes opened the series with a sudden barrage of accurate long shots that netted them a 14-2 lead within the early minutes of play. Here the Goldbugs checked the rally, and from this point the two teams battled almost on even terms for the remainder of the conflict. Colvin paced the scoring with 10 points, just one more point than Captain Boedeker could manage for.

The second night's performance completely excelled the opening tussle. A determined Sooner five returned for revenge, and made a strong threat for the laurels when their long-shot war-horse, Woody Rentfro dumped the basket for six points in the initial canto to cut the mid-time score to 16-14.

From this point, the going became fast and furious which forced the assessment of numerous fouls. In the closing minutes the Buffalo scoring machine was thrown into full speed when Colvin, Clement, and Butler began to locate the hoop. When the final whistle sounded, the Canyon five was well out in front with the score 37-23. The invasion of the highly-touted Goldbugs into the Texas Panhandle was disastrous, and they returned home nursing two stinging defeats.

Tech Professor Heads Department For Centennial

DALLAS.—Prof. Gus L. Ford of Texas Tech at Lubbock has been appointed to the staff of the agriculture department of the Texas Centennial Exposition which will open at Dallas on June 6. Prof. Ford, an authority on the history of the cattle industry, will have charge of the research necessary in preparing the extensive displays of cattle brands, branding irons and historical relics of the cattle industry in Texas.

The historical exhibit to be set up in the Livestock Building of the Exposition will include portraits of famous cattle barons, a huge illuminated map showing the past and present boundaries of great Texas ranches and other notable mementoes of the old cattle days. Famous cattle brands will be burned on the railings surrounding the exhibits and Prof. Ford will compile a guide book and cattle brand catalog for the benefit of visitors to this section of the Exposition.

"Texas owes much to the cattle industry," said Prof. Ford. "Certainly the dramatic story of this great enterprise should be told as graphically as possible at the Texas Centennial Exposition. We shall make every effort to include in this historical display that material which is vital to the telling of our story."

Although he will make his headquarters in Dallas, Prof. Ford will spend much of his time visiting various portions of the state gathering material for this group of exhibits.

By mild ripe
tobacco we mean just this—

FIRST—ripened in the sunshine . . .
and picked leaf by leaf from the right part of the stalk when fully ripe.

THEN—each day's picking cured
time and in the right way . . . no "splotching" or brittleness, but every leaf of good color and flavor.

FINALLY—bought in the open market . . . re-dried for storage . . . then packed in wooden hogsheads to age and mellow for two years or more until free from harshness and bitterness.

That's what we mean by mild, ripe tobacco. And that's the kind of tobacco we use to give Chesterfields their milder, better taste.

Outstanding
