

ART EXHIBIT WILL BE HELD FOR EVERYONE

UNUSUAL OPPORTUNITY TO SEE FAMOUS PICTURES
OFFERED BY CLUB

Being brought here through the efforts of the Phidias Art Club of the College, the Circuit B Exhibit of the Southern States Art League will be shown from Thursday, January 22, to Wednesday, February 4, in the office of the Dean of Women on the first floor of the Administration Building. All students and townspeople are invited to come to the college to visit it during this time.

This exhibition of the Southern States Art League will give college students the best opportunity which has ever come to this section to acquaint themselves with representative work of the great number of artists who are native to the South. Most of the forty-one pictures which are shown are subjects found in Texas, Alabama, Florida, Tennessee, and Louisiana, and most of the names found in the catalogue are those that should be familiar to people of the south and west.

Texans should find the exhibit of particular interest since the Southern States Art League which sends it out, has a larger membership in Texas than any other state, 178 of 652 coming from this one state.

One of the firm beliefs of the Southern States Art League, of which Miss Isabel Robinson of the W. T. Art department is a member, is that art should be the precious possession of all people, and that artists should find their subjects in the region in which they live.

Speaking along this line President Ellsworth Woodward, who has been directing the policies of the Art League for the past seven years, said, "No greater fallacy is possible than the idea that art belongs elsewhere. Art is an expression of love and understanding of life. It has its genius and it abides where love and understanding of life and its issues find expression with the artist; and generous appreciation of his labors is extended by the layman."

Southern types in portraiture, southern flowers and landscapes, scenes in Southern cities and towns, are therefore found in the exhibition.

Persons who have viewed many exhibitions suggest to students and townspeople that they go frequently to see the pictures, allowing themselves to become well acquainted with the whole exhibit and later view again and again the ones which are especially interesting to them. In this way the exhibit will become one of the interesting experiences of the college year.

Tarrant County 4-H Boys Make Income

Fort Worth.—Tarrant County 4-H club boys made an average income of $30 apiece in 1930 from their farm demonstration conducted in cooperation with L. W. Stasney, assistant farm demonstration agent. There were 432 boys enrolled and their combined income totalled $12,964.32 from poultry, hogs, dairy calves, baby beavers, sheep, turkeys, cotton, corn, grain sorghums, peanuts, small grains and miscellaneous activities. Half of them tested field seeds for germination before planting for themselves or for their fathers, using the rag-doll seed tester for the work.

At the class meetings held Saturday, the following girls were chosen as representatives of the respective groups: Frances Snodgrass, freshman; Jessie Louder, sophomore; Dorothy Staley, junior; Frances Lester, senior.

The two girls' literary societies, Sesames and Elapheians, also chose representatives. Esther Root is to represent the first in the race, while Beth Pitts will be the Elapheian candidate.

The two other organizations which have chosen representatives are the Pi Omegas, and the Triple R's of Randall Hall. Geneva Golden was chosen by the Pi Omegas, and Laura Blanche Adkins by the Triple R's.

These eight girls, and others who have not as yet been elected will be the ones to appear in the Le Mirage play, which is to be the means this year of selecting the six college favorites. Further information in regard to the play will be published later.

Bishop Seaman is Leader Religious Discussion Group

Under the auspices of the Student Religious Council of the college, Bishop E. Cecil Seaman, of Amarillo, of the Protestant Episcopal Church of this diocese, led a discussion group composed of college students, in room 205 of the Administration building, Tuesday afternoon.

The subject discussed was "World Religion, a Treatment of Christianity in Relation to Other Religions and with Respect to its Effect upon Society, its Attitude Toward Industrialism, Nationalism, and Secularism." Personal and ultimate religion were considered.

The discussion was based upon a book written by James Thayer Addison, professor of religious history and missions at the Cambridge Theological School, which is affiliated with Harvard University.

Bishop Seaman, in defining Christianity, said "Christianity is life, given to men by God, through Christ. Other religions, such as Buddhism and Mohammedanism, bear on the fact of seeking out life; while in Christianity the life is given to us by a loving God. Christianity is a world religion, a unity of God; a religion that binds. It recognizes the value of unity."

LUCKNER DATE POSTPONED BY BAD INJURIES

COUNT SUFFERS THIRTEEN BROKEN BONES IN RECENT WRECK

Word was received late last week to the effect that the lyceum number to have been given next Friday evening by the famous Count Felix von Luckner, the German "Sea Devil" will have to be postponed to approximately the week of February 9th, due to the Count's failure to recuperate from the injuries received in his recent auto accident, which were soon discovered to be much more serious than were first reported.

The following communication dealing with the cancellation of the date was received by the W. T. Lyceum committee Sunday, from Mr. C. Turner, president of the musical bureau through which the Luckner engagement was made:

"Count Luckner has returned to his ship 'Mopelia' in New York, and he intends to stay aboard for rest during the time he is not lecturing. . . . The Count expects to sail from New York to Palm Beach, Florida, and from there travel to your territory by rail. As you most likely know by this time, the Count was actually much more hurt in the accident than the reporters knew. He had altogether thirteen different breaks of bones. It will be necessary, therefore for the Count to cancel or delay to some future date his lecture engagements with you for January."

Through this same communication, it is learned that the Count in the recent accident had eight ribs smashed, besides his collar bone broken in two places, and three fractures, making thirteen breaks in all.

Mr. Turner feels that there is no doubt but what the Count will make every sacrifice to fill the date at the earliest possible time.

Hill and Sheffy Attend Meeting of P-P H. Society

President J. A. Hill and Professor L. F. Sheffy, field secretary of the Panhandle-Plains Historical Society, were in Pampa Monday attending a meeting of the building committee of the Historical Society.

They were accompanied from Amarillo by Horace M. Russell, another member of the committee, and were joined at Pampa by Mr. T. D. Hobart, president of the organization and H. E. Hoover, a director.

The result of the committee meeting has not yet been made public. The directors decided that the annual meeting of the Historical Society will be held the last of March or the first of April. Formerly the Society had its regular annual open meeting in February, but since persons travel a long distance to attend, it has been found advisable to hold it later as the chances of favorable weather are greater.

Mr. and Mrs. T. H. McDonald were Amarillo visitors Saturday afternoon.

Hale county has set Monday, February 23rd for her W. T. student banquet.

A. U. W. to further education, to work for international understanding and goodwill, and to increase the opportunities for women in the field of research. In the course of her talk, Mrs. Atkinson gave a most interesting historical sketch of the National Association, at home and in Europe.

Immediately preceding Mrs. Atkinson's address, Misses Jessie Louder and Frances Usery, piano students in the college, played a (Continued on last page.)

Trombone Quartet Gives Program at City High School

Thursday afternoon the W. T. trombone quartet, assisted by Miss Jessie Louder, played a chapel program at the Canyon High School.

The program was as follows: "Angels around us hover," from Maritana, by the quartet; "The Rosary," a trombone duet by Savage and Kiker, accompanied by Miss Louder; "Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes," and "Sweet and Low," by the quartet; "The Mocking Bird," and "When the Organ Played at Twilight," whistled by Joe Hill, Jr., accompanied by Miss Louder; "Slidus Trombonus," a comedy solo by Kiker; "Old Black Joe," and "Yale Boola," stunt numbers by the trombone quartet.

The novelty numbers, especially the whistling, took the house by storm.

Due to unusually heavy work, George Heard has quit working with the quartet. Although there is a quartet without him, the work, as planned, according to the leader, demands five members exclusive of the accompanist. James Kennedy now holds the position that was formerly filled by Heard.

The present quartet is: Winston Savage, Joe Hill, Jr., Wm. Strain, James Kennedy, and Chas. Kiker. Kiker acts as manager and coach, but all offer suggestions and criticisms. In alternating with the other four, the fifth is officially critic of the active quartet. Miss Jessie Louder is their accompanist.

"THREE BEARS" PRESENTED AS THEATER PLAY

NEW VERSION OF OLD STORY
GIVEN BY GRADE SCHOOL CHILDREN THURSDAY.

Produced as the first after Christmas Children's Theater play, "The Three Bears," a six-scene, one-act drama was presented before a large audience in the auditorium of the Education Building, at 3:30 Thursday afternoon. Ada V. Clark of the training school faculty acted as assistant director of the play, which was written by and given under the supervision of C. W. Batchelder.

"The Three Bears," as given Thursday afternoon, is a new and fanciful version of the old "Goldilocks" story. It tells the story of a little girl, Peggy, who while playing with her three teddy bears one evening, fell asleep and dreamed the story of the "Three Bears."

The cast of the play included a number of pupils from the training school, only three characters being played by members of the College Children's Theater Company.

An interesting feature of "The Three Bears" was the number of songs and choruses throughout. Among these was a song and dance number, entitled "The Knitting Needles," performed by Lucy Jo Louder, Frances Alice Clark, Pollyanna Pitts, Mattie Pearl Whittenburg, Marion Hill, Pansy Meyer, Tommie Lee Hogland, and Irene Hogland, girls of the High School. The Fairies, who carried the fantastic theme throughout, were played by several little girls of the training school: Thursa Bourland, Wilma Harris, Lela Louder, Eleanor Louder, Dorothy Lou Martin, and Betty Jane Phillips. In this group Thursa Bourland and Wilma Harris sang solos in the "But-ton Song." Another feature number was "The Wishing Song," in which solo parts were taken by Lucy Jo Louder, Virginia Murray, Pollyanna Pitts and Irene Hogland.

The concluding "bear" scene, a group of solo numbers in song and dance by the three bears, was one of the best liked scenes of the whole play.

The costumes used, which were prepared by the Children's Theater Company, and individual characters, were most suitable and attractive.

The cast of characters was as follows: Big Bear, Alvord Swafford, (College Dramatic Club member); Middle Sized Bear, Wilmoth Gamble (College Dramatic Club member); Little Bear, Cleo Bourland (Grade school child); Peggy, Lorene Robbins, (College Dramatic Club member.)

EDUCATION

(The following editorial was written as a class project by a member of the freshman class in English, under Miss Mary Moss Richardson.)

Education is a word of many meanings, but the one we are going to refer to is the knowledge one gains from books and schools. Education not long since was considered a luxury, by the greater part of the people of the United States, a good thing to have, but one they could get along just about as well without. Schools were few and far between, and even those few would compare very favorably with the average school of today.

Our grandparents, or at least most of them who went to school at all, went either to a private teacher or to a little log house, where they were taught to read and write; and some of the more fortunate got to go long enough to learn the multiplication table and such other fundamentals as were deemed necessary at that time. The doctor, the lawyer, and the minister were about the only ones of the community to be educated, and the ordinary man with a college education was indeed rare. The greater part of their education was obtained by hard knocks, and the opportunity for school and book learning was very limited.

Today there are schools in every community, and every child should have an opportunity to obtain at least a grammar school education, most of them a high school education, and a great many go on to college. There is also a correspondingly greater need for an education now. Today when the young man or woman goes out into the business world, he or she has competitors who are educated for their particular line of work, and will be at a decided disadvantage without similar preparation. The man with a college education may now be found in all walks of life, and is growing more and more to be the rule instead of the exception, as was the case of yore.

With schools and colleges brought by modern methods almost to one's door, one and all should try to take advantage of the opportunity, and get as good an education as it is possible to get.

PROFESSORIAL SAUSAGE

Question: "Why is a professor grading examination papers like a dog eating sausage?" Answer: "He is devouring his own substance in a mangled form."

To many an obtuse and mentally-benighted collegian this is just another jibe at the faculty, but to anyone who has the time and the wherewithal to think, this little crack should throw some light on a very interesting movement in the student world. Everywhere students are clamoring for a half chance to express something other than the "substance" of their professors.

The present trend in class room procedure is toward the ideal Greek schools of philosophy where teacher and disciple walked and talked together and swapped ideas and stimulated mutual thought. The soot-dry, sense-numbing class lecture will soon be obsolete, and the professor who continues to expect his students to return precisely what he has transferred from his notebook to theirs in a priceless lecture will have to take his place along with the do-do bird and the one-horse shay.

Surely our professors must occupy the place of respected leaders, and students should be willing to accept the guidance of an older and more experienced person. But when teachers start trying to mould their pupils into forms to fit their own particular pattern, they have acknowledged an inability to keep up with the times.

Valuable English Project Conducted By L. A. Osgood

By C. B. SHEPARD

One of the little known and little advertised accomplishments of the training school of West Texas State Teachers College was demonstrated last quarter by 9th grade English class under the supervision of Professor L. A. Osgood. This class was studying English literature at this time and in order to make the course more valuable as well as more interesting Professor Osgood of the College English staff planned and carried out a Shakespearean project with great success.

The first important thing that was accomplished was the construction of a tiny stage such as was used during the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries. This stage is about fifteen inches in width by twenty-four inches in length, and was made by Mr. Osgood himself. As an improvement over projects put on prior to this, Professor Osgood perfected a plan whereby the different properties are held in place on the miniature stage by means of grooves cut in the floor. All the various members of a conventional Shakespearean company have been ingeniously fashioned and used to demonstrate the production of a play. These props and players are made of heavy paper and are decorated to a perfect imitation of a full sized stage with all its settings.

In addition to the work of the miniature stage, the class members have been performing a scene from Shakespeare's plays each week. A small stage such as was probably used during Shakespeare's time is part of the equipment of the English room in the training school and during the fall term, actual work was performed on this stage, in order that the students might gain the utmost in appreciation and understanding of the age of Shakespeare. The writer observed the enactment by the class of scenes three and four from the first act of Shakespeare's "Merchant of Venice." In the first where Portia discusses the various suitors her father has selected for her, and rejects them all, to her confidante, the parts were ably carried by three young ladies from this class. In the bargaining scene, wherein Shylock agrees to lend three thousand ducats to Antonio for a consideration, the parts were acted with much success by three young men of the class. The speeches were not memorized but were read from the text, with the proper use of gesture and emphasis. According to the assignment, two more scenes were to be demonstrated this quarter, one to be given under the direction of one of the girls of the class, while another will be given under the direction of one of the boys.

It is an evident fact that the proper time for gaining an appreciation of the spoken word, and of dramatic art is in these grades, for at no time is the mind so susceptible. Realizing this, the English department of the training school, under the able supervision of Miss Jennie C. Ritchie, has sponsored the above described project, which will be of untold value to these youngsters in their later college work. The project filled a manifold need in addition to the appreciation it fosters. Aptitude in performing before an audience, proper expression, and self confidence are gained, and that all too prevalent "inferiority complex" is greatly reduced.

Other demonstration projects are going on in the training school continuously. It is indeed well worth one's time to observe them.

KAMPUS KNICK KNACKS

BY COL. GOWDY

It's been a busy week, what with ball games, and chapel programs, and picture shows, and what not. Gosh, how can students study anyhow, with so many social obligations. We're for starting a social course in which you get forty-five term hours per quarter—then you wouldn't have to study.

The Buffs pulled through another week of B balling, with three victories, and one of those moral victories. The El Paso miners were a snap, and so were the bull-fighters, the first night. The second night thousands of fans swallowed their tongues, when Mr. Burk dropped the spheroid through the ring in the last five minutes of play to win for the Maroon lads.

Now about those All-American, "66" some odds in the yellow suits. Each and every one of them was a good wrestler, and charger, but they were fair ball players at that. Mr. Kimbrough (the referee) seemed to be awed in their presence, and let them get away with everything but the benches. Alas, Alas.

Play For Amarillo Theater Written By Batchelder

Preparation of "The Dover Road" by A. A. Milne, for dramatic presentation before the Amarillo Little Theater open meeting in February, has lately been the work of C. W. Batchelder, a member of the public speaking department of this college, and director of the Children's Theater here.

Mr. Batchelder has appeared in Little Theater plays, and before the meetings of the membership in Amarillo several times. Practically all of the plays presented by the Children's Theater Company here are his own dramatic versions and compositions.

President J. A. Hill delivered the mid-year commencement address at Spur last night. On Friday President Hill will leave for Austin for the regular meeting of the State Board of Teachers College Regents.

Freshman: (aghast) "I don't believe any woman could be so fat." History Teacher: "What's the matter now?"

Freshman: "Why this current event tells about an English woman losing three hundred pounds".

BUFFALO BALLYHOODERS

Last Wednesday afternoon, enthusiasm over the Buffalo Matador game at Tech manifested itself in the hurried organization of a pep squad, and in a flying trip in three cars from W. T. to the Tech gymnasium.

The personnel of the band was as follows: Ormond Joiner, playing the chromatic pitch pipe; Meredith Ashby, on the tambourine; Joe Hill, Jr., collapsible euphonium; Noel Gollison, bagpipe; Chas. Strain, bugle; Ray Robbins, organ; Winston Savage, bass piccolo; Robert Jarrett, soprano (voice); Charles Kiker, folding harmonica.

The bandmaster of Tech thought this group of musicians was a part of his band and tried to stop its playing to combine the two organizations. Due to the school spirit, however, the West Texas musicians just declined and played a variety of selections. The only classical music was a piece of jazz that the boys composed themselves. At least no one ever heard of it before.

While the Buffalo Ballhoooders played the Alma Mater, the entire august assembly reverently stood, (on their feet and on others,) showing their ability to guess. The group had stiff competition in Tech's fifty piece band, but everybody knew that somebody was backing the Buffaloes.

At the close of the game Joiner played taps on his chromatic pitch pipe. This was highly appreciated.

Means of conveyance was furnished by Prexy Hill, Aubrey Tollison, and Fancher Archer.

And did you hear about the Scotch lady who, when asked why she got off the train at every stop to buy a ticket to the next, replied that the doctor had just informed her that since she had heart failure, she might pass out any minute?

Teacher: "Give me an example of a collective noun."
Freshman: "A vacuum cleaner."

America, with all its prophets, has still greater need for its profits.

Herd Loses to "66" All-Stars 30-28

The Phillips "66" All Stars came to the Buffalo Gym Saturday night and received the surprise of their lives when the inspired Buffs battled them to a standstill and outplayed them the first half only to have an unkind fate snatch victory from their hands and hand the visitors the long end of a 30-28 score.

Big Joe Fortenberry starred, fighting on even terms with Phillips more experienced center and running wild to break up almost certain points for the visitors. Hewitt for the All-Stars kept the crowd on its feet with his sensational offensive play. Bob Clark in the last throes of the struggle with the score 30-28 against him took a desperate choice and tried a long loop only to have the ball spin around the loop and fall on the wrong side of the balance.

The Waste Basket

The witnesses at last Saturday night's classic were treated to a bit of ball tossing that will go down in history as something to talk about. Phillips "66" came to town with an easy job in sight and left town shaking their heads and wondering how it all happened. Last year they ran up their usual big score on a veteran Buffalo team and expected to do even better this year against a comparatively green bunch of hands.

Cap. Brown got a bad break via the score keeper's route Saturday night though it was wholly unintentional on that official's part. Nevertheless, the score would probably have been the same. Hatch did a noble job and the grand stand hated to see him have to leave the floor.

Clark is rapidly breaking into fast company and what a guard he is making! He is one of those fellows that always fool the spectators. He never makes a bid for grandstand honors but usually gets from one to a dozen in every game.

We notice that Coach Burton has a new moniker, apparently the invention of a near by sports writer. The new name for the Buff mentor is "Sad Sam." Now we wonder why.

Little Eddie Comer, rabbit twister de luxe won the fur lined ear muffs as high point man in the first tilt with Tech but had a bad relapse in the second bout and retired via the personal foul route. Comer is a speedy youngster and only needs a lot of polish which he is getting rapidly and in a thorough manner.

Joe got his first taste of personal foulitis in the last game with Tech.

Some of the second stringers showed up like the proverbial brick house in a fog in the game with the Miners. Monroe, who went in late in the last half shows up extra good. Richards and Morris cover the floor like veterans and are plenty good.

We must hand it to the Tech Matadors for being hogs for punishment. Out of 22 starts against the Buffs in the past seven seasons in basketball they have won a total of two games. Figuring this out on a percentage basis they now stand somewhere around .0909 in games won and lost against the Buffs. There's nothing like hope, however, and we give them credit for having a fair team only the Buffs seem to be their jinx.

It looks as if the Buffaloes had a pretty chance to win the western half of the T. I. A. A. though the season is young yet and predictions are out of order right at this time. However, if the improvement in the team progresses as much in the next five games as it has in the last five, there will be a good chance to repeat last years' op-

Buff's Take 2 Game Series From Tech

The New Mexico Bean Pole, Eddie Comer contributed 15 of the 39 points that the Buffs accumulated in the first of the two game series with Lubbock Tech last Wednesday when the Burtonites smothered the Matadors by a 39-23 score. Fortenberry was runner-up with nine points while Hodges for the Matadors looped 13 points for their side.

But the second win was a different story for the Buffs had to extend themselves to the limit to take the second session by the narrow margin of 31-29, Burk tossing the deciding basket just as the gun ended the battle. Burk amassed 19 points while the rest of the herd was garnering 12 tallies.

Davis Hill Trains Amarillo Sandies To B. B. Leadership

In the Amarillo Sunday News-Globe on the sports page appeared a story headed "Davis Hill's Cagers Win First Tourney in School's History." Davis Hill, Amarillo High School basketball coach, is an ex-student of W. T., the son of President J. A. Hill, and a former star on the Buffalo basketball squad.

The story in the Amarillo paper reads: "For the first time in the memory of the oldest resident, an Amarillo High School basketball team displayed enough class to win a tournament, when last night the Sandies, playing in the city's first tournament and christening a new gymnasium, downed Dalhart's Wolves, 23 to 18. . . . Going hand in hand with the Sandies' success is the growth of the game's popularity in the city. . . ."

eration.

Some more predictions. The Buffs split the series with Baylor University and then Baylor beat the Simmon Cowboys. We play Simmons here on January 24. We predict another victory for the Buffs and just a little revenge for a 26-6 football defeat that this crew handed us last fall.

That man Burk covered himself with glory in the last tilt with the Matadors, taking first place with a score of 21 points, five of them being free throws. The only thing that kept the Matadors from winning that last game was the fact that they only had five men on the floor at one time. One more man would have been the Buffs defeat for he could have covered Burk.

In the game with the Miners some smart grandstand artist made two or three wise cracks when Coach Burton substituted Leo Cooper for Fitzgerald. Every man to his last I say, though it is a well known fact that it is much easier for a person sitting in the grand stand to tell the coach how to run the team than he can do it himself.
