Improvements At T-Anchor Ranch Headquarters

One of the benefits which the College has derived from student relief funds has been the improvement on the old T-Anchor Ranch headquarters.

Just recently Walter Cummings, assisted by Paul Sweat, have placed a rock foundation under the old house. This was done by using slabs of cap-rock and concrete. In addition, walks of the same material have been laid around the old headquarters. The premises immediately surrounding the old house have been bordered with cap-rock and the appearance of the property considerably enhanced.

The raising of this house on the rock foundation insures a minimum amount of depreciation, and will probably add many years to the life of this valuable old relic. It is anticipated that additional repairs may be made at a later date.

Senior Play Is Postponed To Tuesday, 24th

The date of the Senior Play has been changed from April 15 to April 24, according to announcement made yesterday. The illness of Ethel Brasuel, one of the leading characters, made it necessary to make this change.

Other than this setback the play is rapidly coming to a state of perfection and Miss Mary Morgan Brown, director, states that everyone is working hard to make this one of the best senior plays ever produced at W. T.

Miss Brown added that "The Gossipy Sex" is an unusual play in that the leading parts are of almost equal dramatic importance.

SPRING BRINGS APRIL FOOL, LOVE, CROONING AND LANGUOROUS LOOKS

(By Cos Taylor)

Every dog has his day and what a day for the Frosh, All Fool's Day. A new season has dawned. A season of Spring Fever, tennis, love, and all that funny stuff. It is said that in the spring a young man's fancy turns toward doing the things the girls have thought of all winter. . . . Play Frank.

Was it not in spring that Romeo scaled the grapevine to murmur sweet nothings to Juliet while the old man was suffering with the gout? It was also at this season that Mark club-footed into Cleopatra's boudoir, flashed a pint flask and made history.

In this modern day when the price of a theater or dance speak louder than a three-hour love scene, we find the rural landscape lighted in occasional flashes. The campus lads will be heard in exercising their larynx, as Mr. Crosby says "Learn to Croon." That Mae West swing has found its way among the co-eds.

But let us not venture too far from the king Freshman who has ascended the heights of his school year. Let us refer you to Dr. Walker's new book entitled "My Big Love Scene."

April Hey-Day
Ah, sweet April I'm in your trance
Tell me, where is your sting?
I want to do my song and dance
And get that low down swing.

With your arrival there are flowers
What a scene that is to be,
And the lovers while their hours,
I tell you, its killing me.

Here's a toast to this big season,
From one who's in your spell,
Will you not tell me the reason
Why within your realm I dwell?

MISS WALKER AWAY

Gains Reputation Translator of Chinese Lyrics

Upton Close, writer, lecturer, adventurer, has been secured for an appearance on the lyceum program of the College on the evening of Thursday, April 12, announces Professor Wallace R. Clark, who is in charge of lyceum programs.

Mr. Close, known as one of the ablest public speakers in America, contributor to the Saturday Evening Post, World's Work, Scribners, Cosmopolitan, New York Times, and similar periodicals, is a student of political events in Asia, and of the literature of China and Japan. He has experienced many thrilling adventures on the continent of Asia, though he is still a young man man under forty years of age.

Commands Expedition
He served as commander of the Annual Cultural Expedition and Summer School in Pacific Asia in 1932. The previous year he was the first eye-witness reporter on the Manchurian incident to the League of Nations Secretariat. He traveled from Bangkok to Bagdad in 1925 to gather material for "The Revolt of Asia."

He has traveled in every part of Japan and China, and has gained considerable fame as translator of Chinese lyrics, and as a student of Chinese literature.

SAYS PRAIRIE PLAY CRITIC LOOKING OVER SENIOR CLASS DRAMMER

Mr. Ramon Williams, Noted Actor Who Deigns to Act in the "Gossipy Sex."

(By J. D. D.)

Mr. Williams, who, as his co-actor Mr. Rowan said, "is going to steal the play," comes to us from such stock companies as Swift and Armour and Cudahy. We cannot vouch for this statement of Mr. Rowan's, for it is from Bob that the play gets its name, "The Gossipy Sex." The part was scheduled for a girl, but Miss Brown, knowing Mr. Rowan so well, selected him, and a most proper choice we think.

Charles Donnell and Melya Gamewell act as host and hostess in the play. The two are fair to middling actors with absolutely unlimited experience behind them. What surprises us is that they are Seniors.

L. G. Harris and Alene McCollum put on a very good imitation of the happy bride and bridegroom (Continued on last page)

(By Whattawoman)

Yesterday in the midst of our ninety-ninth race down the hall we were stopped by a very bewildered gentleman. He seemed to be somewhat confused by the remarks made to and around him, and hesitantly, almost apologetically, inquired if we would help him. Thinking him a rather peculiar specimen, we stopped—mostly of curiosity—and told him to "Go Ahead."

He looked at us strangely, then said, "Well, I don't know exactly what I want to know, but—"

At precisely that instant we saw coming down the hall a tall, blonde girl and a short, brunet boy, evidently attempting a light flirtation. As they passed we heard the boy say—that Gable look in his eyes and that half-smile of assurance of his lips—"How'm I doin', baby?"

The gentleman turned to us quickly, as if this was exactly what he had been thinking of, but before we could explain the girl answered—the same look in her eyes (only this time an attempt at Mae West) and a low, languid drawl in her voice—"Not bad. Why don't yuh come up 'n see me sometime?"

We began seriously an attempt to explain all this, but along came a co-ed with flaming red curly hair, shrieking about her date the previous evening who "had been a honey—Hot cha cha!" That was (Continued on last page)

Students Answer Questionnaire Concerning Split Semester Plan

Serious Consideration Is Given In Presenting Arguments

"Bacteria," remarks one scientifically minded upperclassman in response to the recent questionnaire concerning the Split-Semester Plan, "will not grow at double time." Whether this is or is not a pertinent criticism of the plan inaugurated by the College this year the administration is undecided, but it indicates a thinking attitude to say the least.

Among those answering the upper class questionnaire, one student averred that the "teacher's work is still based on the quarter plan," another that the present system is a "waste of time," but he or she neglected to set forth

PROGRESS IN EDUCATIONAL THINKING

In looking at the educational ideas of a century ago, we may take Cardinal Newman as a good example. We find the principles of the nineteenth and twentieth centuries much the same. While listening to Dr. Doak Campbell of George Peabody College speaking on the program during the Northwest Texas Educational Conference, we found that he felt that education was something more than learning of facts. It is not only what the student knows but how he reacts that is of consequence. Newman had this same idea when he said, "The end of a liberal education is not mere knowledge, or knowledge considered in its matter." They both agree that facts can not be left out. The successful self-made man is one that has given himself a background of knowledge. Dr. Campbell concluded his discourse with a quotation from Ruskin, a contemporary of Newman's who did for art what Newman did for the university: "The educated person is one who not only knows what he did not know before, but knowing what he did not know, before acts and feels differently from what he did before."

We have discussed the outstanding likeness which is in striking contrast to the outstanding difference. Mr. J. O. Loftin, President of the Texas State Teachers Association, said that education is a progress going on every waking hour. Dr. Campbell expressed this same view when he said that the curriculum is the total experience under the teacher's influence. Contrary to this theory is the nineteenth century idea of education expressed by Newman in his "The Idea of a University." "You may as well call drawing and fencing education, as a general knowledge of botany or conchology." If you consider fencing physical education, all three of these studies are very important in our present school system. Our modern agriculture demands that many of us study botany. Certainly we do not think we can be mentally fit if we are not physically fit. With the demands in our new curriculum calling for more botany, more art, more music, and more physical education, we do feel that we have progressed a little at least. We are not only saying that we want to know more than facts, but we are making our degree students more than just bookworms. —B. H.

"The entire Curriculum should be organized about a social center and oriented towards social ends."—John Dewey at N. E. A.

IF YOU CAN DREAM

Many people in the world today do nothing but blow bubbles in the air.

They build beautiful air castles of the future and dream of high and unattainable positions. These dreams and air castles are soon shattered and they continue to build ones that are just as unreasonable and out reach as the previous ones.

Every one, at some time, builds beautiful air castles and dreams of some future achievement. This is a very pleasant way to pass the time away to get one's mind off of immediate problems, but some people keep on dreaming and never really do anything. When they finally wakes up to the fact that they have been dreaming it is often too late.

To day-dream and build air castles is human nature and it is a very essential part of every individual's life. But anything good carried to an extreme may become a fault. In the poem "If" Kipling says,

"If you can dream and not become a dreamer,
If you can think and not make thoughts your master,
You'll be a man my son."

ON FEDERAL SUPPORT

(From The Omaha Bee-News)

Dr. Paul R. Mort, director, of the School of Education at Teachers' College, Columbia University, has made an intensive study of the public school problem in this country in the course of his work with the joint committee on the emergency in education.

And Dr. Mort has reached this conclusion—unless the Federal Government comes to the rescue, thousands and thousands of boys and girls will be denied their only opportunity of becoming competent citizens.

Pointing out that proper machinery does not exist for meeting the school crisis, Dr. Mort said in an article in the magazine Progressive Education:

"Federal support for education is essential because of the extreme limitations placed on public education by economic conditions in the poorer states.

"This issue of complete federal aid in all states will be a live issue in the not distant future."

Congress and the Roosevelt administration can perform no more patriotic service than by immediately acting to rescue education.

And the first action that should be taken is to establish a Federal Department of Education, headed by a Secretary who shall be a member of the President's Cabinet.

Sixth Grade Presents Play

The assembly program last Wednesday was opened by E. L. Hammet, who gave a talk on "Hobbies I Might Develop on the Study of Physiology." Following the talk, a play, "The Snow Witch," was presented by the sixth grade. Eupha Jean Johnson played the part of Marina, an old peasant woman; Helen Whittenburg played Silver-Sonia, the snow witch; Dorothy Jean Jennings, Princess Valeska; Pant, her sled driver, was played by J. T. Guinn; Bernard Warren portrayed Ivan, the soldier, Forma, a village girl, was played by Betty Apple; other villagers were represented by Christine Jarrett, Ernest Sykes, J. T. Guinn, and Norma Jones. Eupha Jean Johnson did an exceptional piece of work, and other players did well.

Third Grade Completes Interesting Project

The pupils of the third grade have recently completed a sheep and wool project with an exhibit and program presented to the parents of the pupils and to Miss Hibbetts' two educational classes, 322 and 321.

The project was begun in January, with the children first reading extensively about sheep, wool, and their by-products and finding stories concerning the subject. Later the pupils had appreciation lessons, made baskets, and finally wrote summaries of everything which they had learned from the earliest history to the latest knowledge of sheep and wool.

A visit to the Nance ranch about seven miles southeast of Canyon and the building of a miniature sheep ranch on the floor of their workroom sharpened the interest of the children in their project. The miniature ranch offered opportunity for the pupils to express their originality in thinking of ways to make imitations of real life found on a ranch. Sawdust painted with green water colors was used as grass, and sheep were made from sawed blocks of wood on which wool was pasted.

The program and exhibit served as a climax of the work on the interesting project. The guests enjoyed listening to the children's band play "Le Secret" and hearing the class sing three songs, "Shepherdess," "Sheepfold," and the "Spinning Song," which they had learned while working on the project. Talks were given by the pupils on the interesting facts which they had learned during their study. Next, the children invited their guests to the basement, where twelve sheep pictures were shown on a projection screen. A child explained each picture. After this entertainment, every one went back to the classroom where the exhibit was found. Materials for the exhibit were collected by the children themselves, and included a Navajo rug, sheep-lined coats, wool stockings, wool-lined ice skates, a shoe-shine mit, different kinds of woolen dress materials, knitted gloves, and wool caps. A chart of sheep products was a very interesting contribution by Mr. Phillips, of the Agriculture Department.

Annie Burns Wright has been elected chairman of the assembly programs for this semester.

Mrs. Montfort, Miss Irene Angel, and Mrs. Hathaway were judges of the declamation and essay contests in the Interscholastic County Meet at Dumas Friday.

The Home Ec Club met Thursday, March 29. The program, which consisted of a discussion of types of parties, was conducted by Lucille Smith.

Spanish Club is Entertained

Miss Josephine Flanken and Miss Pauline Presley, Spanish practice teachers, entertained the "Los Tejanitos" Thursday evening, March 22, with a delightful party at Cousins Hall. Spanish games were played, and prizes were given in several appropriate contests. Yvonne Thomas gave a group of piano selections while the games were in progress. Mrs. Agnes Smith discussed her experiences in Mexico, in a very interesting manner. Refreshments of iced tea, pimiento sandwiches, potato chips, olives, and custard cups were served. The Easter motif was carried out in the prizes and refreshments.

Mr. Goodman left Thursday afternoon for Lockney, where he was a judge of the athletic contests in the county meet held there.

Era Harris, a former W. T. High student visited the campus last week. She recently completed a nurse's course in the Lubbock Sanitarium. Era was accompanied to Canyon by her sister, Miss Mabel Harris, of O'Donnell, Texas.

Social Science Students Sing and Vote
While the social science class was studying Texas government,

To the Annual Staff

Oh, faith, they were a merry crew,
So brave, and bold, and hardy, too,
They're laying down their lives for you,
So wish them well.

Oh, they were fair as Lincoln's men,
They tolled not, neither did they spin,
That's why this saga doth begin,
So wish them well.

Oh, they were bonny, as I say,
So very care-free, blithe, and gay,
And thus they were until the day—
'Tis hard to tell—

Until the day—alas, alack,
'Tis hard to turn the memory back
Upon a day so grim and black
Those students gay

Took up the paste-pot and the shears,
And went to work for years and years,
Into that vale of toil and tears
They went to stay.

A yearbook they would fain produce
With coffee and tomato juice,
With panel-marking so abstruse,
Ah, rue the day!

Oh, they worked on and on and on,
For nights and nights until the dawn
And many moons have come and gone,
And still they go.

Now they are tired and gray and old,
They've slaved through heat,
They've slaved through cold,
And they have aches and pains untold,
From working so.

Their dispositions are a fright,
They snarl and growl and claw
and bite,
They haven't had a peaceful night
Since long ago.

They've pasted pictures by the score,
They've pasted pictures o'er and o'er,
And if they live, they'll paste some more,
That annual staff.

Their life is just a can of paste,
They've lived their days in frantic haste,
They'd sell their souls for time to waste,
They cannot laugh.

They cannot cry; they cannot sigh,
Nor feel a thing that you and I
Can feel; emotion's passed them by,
Poor yearbook staff.

They live by tooth, they live by claw,

They don't admit to any law,
A fiercer bunch you never saw,
They never cease.

And when your yearbook's in your hand,
And all its pages you have scanned,
Remember then that toll-worn band
That rest in peace.

TYPING SECTION

A new section of typing 112 will be offered at 1:30 p. m. during the coming Nine Weeks. This will be an independent course for those who have had typing in high school.

Some parents worry if the kid is dumb in arithmetic. It's a good sign that he'll be the boss instead of the bookkeeper.

It is claimed that there has been a marked decline in the writing of love letters. Folks are growing more cautious.

the practice teacher, Mr. Ray Crowder, brought his guitar to class and played "The Eyes of Texas" while the members of the class sang the song.

On Friday the class voted on the Beer question. Ballot boxes were arranged, and ballots were "scratched" in true election-day style. A judge, two assistants and two clerks were chosen from the class. The election was held under the direction of Miss Ritchie and Mr. Ray Crowder.

Dance Demonstrated in Study of English

A visitor of the Sophomore English class, Thursday morning, might have been surprised to find himself watching an old-time square dance—the type that was popular in the days of Silas Marner.

The dance, which was under the direction of Mr. Windsor, a practice teacher, was one of a number of projects worked out by the class in their study of "Silas Marner."

The recent candy sale sponsored by the Student Council added $4.96 to the Annual fund.

Dr. Joe A. Hill Tells Rotary Club of W. T. Growth

Dr. J. A. Hill was speaker Tuesday at the luncheon of the Rotary Club, outlining some of the accomplishments of W. T. during the past 23½ years since the College was opened in 1910. The following interesting remarks were made by Dr. Hill:

When the college opened as a normal school it had only two years work, with a large sub-college attendance. In 1918 the four year course was adopted, and in 1930 the masters work was added. Since the adoption of the four year course, there has been a steady increase in college attendance. In 1918 there were 214 in college training. Today the attendance has reached 928 and will probably go to 1,000 with the beginning of the next nine-weeks period.

The school opened during the drouth of 1910-12; then came the fire of March 25, 1914, which destroyed the first building; then the war of 1917; the resignation of Dr. R. B. Cousins in 1918; the opening of Tech in 1925; the opening of the Amarillo Junior College in 1929; the legislative fight in 1931; the present depression and drouth. In spite of all these handicaps the college continued its growth. More Masters degrees were granted last year than by several Texas colleges combined; as many B. A. degrees as Vanderbilt, which is considered one of the strong colleges of the South.

Miss Yvonne Thomas left Friday night for a week's visit at Baylor University, Waco. Yvonne was formerly a student at Baylor.

COUSINS HALL

Open House was not held last week on account of the bad weather, but unless otherwise notified, these occasions will continue each Monday evening from 6:30 until 7:30.

Vesper service last Tuesday evening was in charge of Bishop E. C. Seaman. His theme was "Praising God in Song." Other guests at this service were: Mrs. Seaman, Mr. and Mrs. Alken, Plainview, and Mrs. Elizabeth Fry Page.

With most of the girls gone to spend the week-end with their parents and friends, the Hall was lonesome for the few who remained.

Marguerite Buchanan, Frances Rogers, and Virginia Heaton spent the week end with their parents in Pampa. Mrs. James Newth, nee Miss Ruth Longino, joined her husband in Pampa for the week-end. Ruth Kiel was the guest of Marguerite Buchanan.

Constance Wayland visited relatives in Plainview over the week-end.

Misses Eula Lee Thompson, Zella Welch, and Ethel Rowland spent the Easter vacation with their parents in Dalhart.

To their homes in Dumas went Lou Ella McDade, Fern Mills and Mary Louise Burchett.

Margaret Fent and Ruby Lee McMillan spent Easter with their parents in Clovis, New Mexico.

Mabel Mongole went to her home in Clarendon for the Easter week-end.

To their homes in McLean went Lois Kirby and Nita Ball.

Annie Laurie Martin and Irene Kries spent the Easter holidays with their parents in Floydada.

Elizabeth Harris and Clyde Wiggins went to their homes in Stratford for the holidays.

Rosemary and Isabel Price and Lucille Persons visited with their parents in Quitaque over the week-end.

Josephine Collier, who has just returned to school, was the week end guest of Fern Crum of Panhandle, a freshman in W. T. last year.

Kathleen Kelly, of Perryton, who had to withdraw from school on account of illness last term, visited with Mazie Patton last Friday afternoon.

MRS. PAGE GIVES TALK ON EASTER

Mrs. Elizabeth Fry Page gave the Y. W. C. A. an interesting talk Wednesday afternoon on Easter. Good Friday and Easter Day and other days of the Easter Season were presented in an unusual way.

Why we observe these days and how different churches celebrate the Easter season were brought out. The members of the organization feel they are indeed fortunate to have Mrs. Page talk on such interesting subjects, and upon matters in which she is so well versed. Mrs. Page read several Easter poems to the group, including one which she herself had written.

Theta Delta

The Theta Delta Club will have another meeting at 7:30 Tuesday evening, April 3, in Room 211. Proofs of problems will be given by different members of the Club. Plans will be discussed as to an outing for the club and also there will be some talk of club pins. Students are urged to come, and teachers also. Teachers of mathematics in training school and high school should attend as many times there are "tricks of the trade" brought out in interesting style.

Proofs will be given by various members of the club to problems that have been assigned to them. There will probably be many interesting points brought out in these proofs. You do not have to be a club member to attend these meetings, but are cordially invited to attend and bring your friends.

T-Anchor Farm News

(By Howard Weatherby)

A committee of some three or five have gone into the matter of the probability of the T-Anchor having another genius. One who would be quite different from a genius at speech, law, or frog-sticking. In fact, it is quite different. This one preys on domestic life. A Home Wrecker he is. Yes, a Home Wrecker! Such persons have been known to sever the relations of one from the opposite sex—but we must consider at this time a Home Wrecker of a different type.

Have you ever come home at night, tired, to find your sleeping quarters looking as if a flood had sent water three or four inches above the floor, thus making it necessary to put everything on the bed or other handy places? A murder occurs—and a search by the police which discloses some bits of evidence here and there. That is the type of Home Wrecker that we mean.

Your bedding tied in knots, a stray chair, a trunk, and a stove in the middle of the bed—that's Rosy Browning.

light. Is your face a little broad? A little too long? A little too round? By using your rouge correctly you can minimize these slight disadvantages.

Blend Rouge

A broad face, for example should wear rouge blended toward the center, to make the cheeks appear closer together, and to give the impression of an oval shape. A narrow face should follow the contrary rule and place the rouge out toward the temples. A too-long face must have rouge placed more in the center of the cheek; a too-short face, ought to have it placed high under the eyes.

Lips can be improved by the correct application of lipstick, too. At present, it is smart to rouge the lower lip heavily, the upper lip but lightly. It is a good plan to follow if your upper lip is not well shaped. If your lower lip is very full, however, make your own fashion rule, and rouge the upper lip more brightly.

The Educational Service Department of the Hamburg-American Line, North German Lloyd, 57 Broadway, New York, announces that the 1934 edition of the booklet entitled, "Summer Courses Abroad," is now ready and may be obtained merely for the asking.

Edited by William Howes Collins, of the Educational Service Department, who is a member of the Executive Committee of the National Student Federation of America, president of the Intercollegiate Young Alumni, and member of the Student Advisory Board of the National Institute for Public Affairs, this new edition contains some 48 pages and lists some very unusual courses, such as those dealing with a study of the New Germany, and analysis of the problem of Fascism. It will be noted that the group studying with the International School of Art in Roumania will spend some time with Queen Marie at her summer palace in Sinaia.

CHAPEL TUESDAY MORNINGFifteen Meet Requirements of W. T. Athletic Committee

Members of the 1933 Buffalo Football squad who had participated in the required number of games, who had maintained the required scholastic standing and had otherwise conformed to the rules and regulations of the Athletic Committee of W. T., were rewarded at the chapel hour Tuesday for their loyal service on the grid-iron.

Sweaters Awarded

Football sweaters were awarded thirteen members of the squad with two other members preferring to have the basketball sweaters as their mark of honor.

Registrar Shirley and Coach Al Baggett presented the sweaters to the following:

Al Duncan, Pampa; Alton Brown, Amarillo; Herschel Hamill, Childress; G. T. Higgins, Hereford; Jimmy Holston, Amarillo; Kenneth Kendrick, Big Spring; George Manning, Ralls; Frank McInnis, Wellington; Lloyd Moore, Pampa; Ralph Poe, Pampa; Jack Spense, Lockney; L. A. Stowe, Lockney; and Cagle Teague, Childress.

Russell Stroud, of Eldorado, Oklahoma, and John Walker, of Spearman chose to take basketball sweaters. Gerald Brown, of Amarillo, was awarded a sweater for his work as equipment manager of the Buffaloes during the past season.

They seem to be all married or just going to be. Even the policeman, Al Duncan, has a wife, Bettye Sternberg. Mr. Duncan will delight the audience with his ability to spot liquor behind closed doors. (Probably practices off-stage).

Juanita Campbell makes a fair stab at being the officious wife, most unmercifully henpecking her husband, Alton Brown.

Ray Crowder and Lois McCaslin seem actually to know what it is all about, and Ethel Brasuel got the diphtheria working in the cold draft of Miss Brown's icy gaze.

Wendel Cain seems to be the only one who would pass as a Senior.

work." Nine stated that the work is completed in too short time and the same number said that such a system made study monotonous. Eight said the plan gave them no opportunity to use the library and eight regretted the break in subject matter caused by the split semester.

Some other adverse criticisms were:

Covers work too rapidly, 6; subjects divided unequally, 5; crowds out extra-curricular activities, 4; too few subjects, too little work, 2; exams too often, 1; need Monday off, 1.

Good Points Listed

However there were an equal amount of criticisms on the other side of the ledger, pointing out the good points of the split-semester system. The most popular sentiment seemed to be that of financial arrangements, with 74 avowing that the present plan is "more convenient."

Other pro-split semester statements were:

Credit for short attendance, 43; fewer subjects increases concentration, 28; classes every day, 21; increased enrollment, 8; better organization of work, 6; better chance to enter at different times, 5; increases interest, 5; less monotonous, 4; no bad points, 4; get off more work, 4; allows specialization (in languages), 1; less time between finals, 1; better schedule possible, 1. Twenty did not answer this question.

The freshmen, though answering a shorter questionnaire, answered seriously. 194 said that the split semester had enabled them materially in paying their fees while only 34 answered that it had not. Sixty said they could not have attended college this year on any other plan, seventy-eight said they could have and ninety-four were uncertain.

Of the freshmen, 182 enrolled the first nine weeks, 17 the second, and 33 the first nine weeks of the second semester.

The football heroes, characteristically bored and impolite, were interrupting with "So what, fella, so what?"

Feeling that we had more than a little to explain, we showed the dazed gentleman to a chair in the Publications Office, but before we were seated in came four young men, each of whom seemed to think he was Crosby's Own Inspiration. One favored us with "la da de de de," another with "bu bu bu bu," another, "wa dat un de de dedee," and the last, "hey hey hey" and an occasional "hot cha cha."

At this juncture one of our pals ducked in for a moment to inquire, "How yuh doin', sugar—still in circulation?"

We gave up. Ladies and gentlemen, who could explain that?

Reward Offered!

Leonard Mills has lost, strayed or had stolen, a new pair of mens dress gloves, black kid, and he offers a reward of 50 cents to the person bringing them back to him. These gloves are really a $3.79 pair and a bargain at that, and the finder may be tempted to keep them rather than accept the 50c, but think of the nights you would lay awake with a burning conscience, and return the kids to their correct guardian.

1914 vs. 1934

We heard a Canyon pioneer say last week that if a young man had come into his parlor to court one of his boarders 20 years ago, and started smoking a cig, he would have thrown him out on his ear (or otherwise). But, he says, the college boys now come in after the feds, grab the softest chair, sink down into it, lay their no. 10's upon the table, leave their snappy lids upon their heads, and proceed to light the filthy weed. And he doesn't do a thing about it. We tell him that there is too much freedom in the world, and it has come so rapidly that the generation is not brainy enough to use it properly. But it'll come out o. k. Reminds us of a joke. Who are the saddest females in the world? Don't know? Well, they are the mamma fleas, 'cause they know that their children are all going to the dogs.

JUDGE AT SCHOOLS

Judging committees composed of W. T. faculty members have been busy the past week in schools of this region.

Dean Geraldine Green, Miss Novella Goodman, and Miss Angie Debo visited at Lockney while Registrar D. A. Shirley, Miss Ima G. Barlow, and Miss Isabel Robinson spent Thursday afternoon at the Canyon High School.

Miss Edna Graham and nieces, Mary and Edna, spent Saturday in Pampa.

General Moments of Mortification

The fatal hour had come, feverish minds were whirling and faint hearts were struggling in the more confined portions of the throat. Last minute cramming was past tense. A couple of dozen pairs of sleepy, despondent eyes followed Mr. Condron as he entered the room and walked stealthily to the front. All eyes were focused on a stack of mimeographed questions that he carried under his arm. The class waited in breathless mortification. Trembling hands were cautiously fumbling with carefully concealed notes. Nervous eyes were wandering for a source of salvation. Mr. Condron spoke and everyone sat stone-still (save for the nervous twitching of James Compton's left ear and the rapid vibration of G. L. Stanley's knees against the desk). "Write a campaign speech for a place on the city council of Podunk." THE CROWD CHEERED! Gee I'm glad someone remembered that April Fool's Day wasn't too far off.
