CAST CHOSEN FOR PLAYERS' SPRING PLAY

"Mary the Third" Selected As Commencement Week Drama

IS DOUBLE-EDGED

Miss Brown is Directing, Assisted by Cox And Jarvis

(By Rosemary Price)
"Mary the Third," a comedy drama by Rachel Crothers, will be presented by the Panhandle Players, drama society, on Friday evening, May 25th, as the commencement play for '34. The play deals with the problems of the ever present younger generation. It is, however, double-edged in its message, as it provides food for thought for parents also. Interesting situations are created by the clashing will of Grandmother Mary, who is ultra-conservative; Mother Mary, who leans toward liberalism; and Daughter Mary, who threatens to become a rank radical.

Fifteen In Cast
There are fifteen in the cast, with Farris Sears in the title role. The grandmother is played by Fern Landers; the mother by Ernestine Walker; the father by Seth Lindsey; the two rival suitors by Judge Williams and Arlen Hartzog; the young brother by Wendell Cain; and extra juveniles by Elizabeth Jamison, and Robert Black. The characters in the prologue, which deals with two scenes from the past, are portrayed by Adella Beavers, Pollyanna Pitts, George Brewer, J. C. Baker, and William Hawkins.

The play is being directed by Miss Mary Morgan Brown, assisted by Rosamond Jarvis, who also plays a small part, and Ruth Cox.

W. T. Grandchild Is Pronounced Perfect Baby

In a recent baby contest that covered Abilene and several mid-western towns, Billy George Reid, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Reid of Merkel, won first place in his age group competing with over 1,200 babies ranging from 6 months to 4 years of age.

Billy George is a W. T. grandchild as his mother is the former Ouida Campbell who received her bachelor degree in 1929. He is two years old, weighs 28 pounds, is 34 inches tall and every physical feature was pronounced normal by the judging doctors and nurses who proclaimed him to be the most perfect baby in his group.

He has black eyes, light brown curly hair and is of an olive complexion.

JARRETT TO ABILENE

Dean R. P. Jarrett left Monday for Abilene to attend a district meeting of Rotary. Dr. Jarrett is president of the Canyon Rotary Club.

Charles B. Hutchins Says Texas Supports 600 Varieties of Birds Within Her Borders

Credited With Having Originated Ornithic Singing

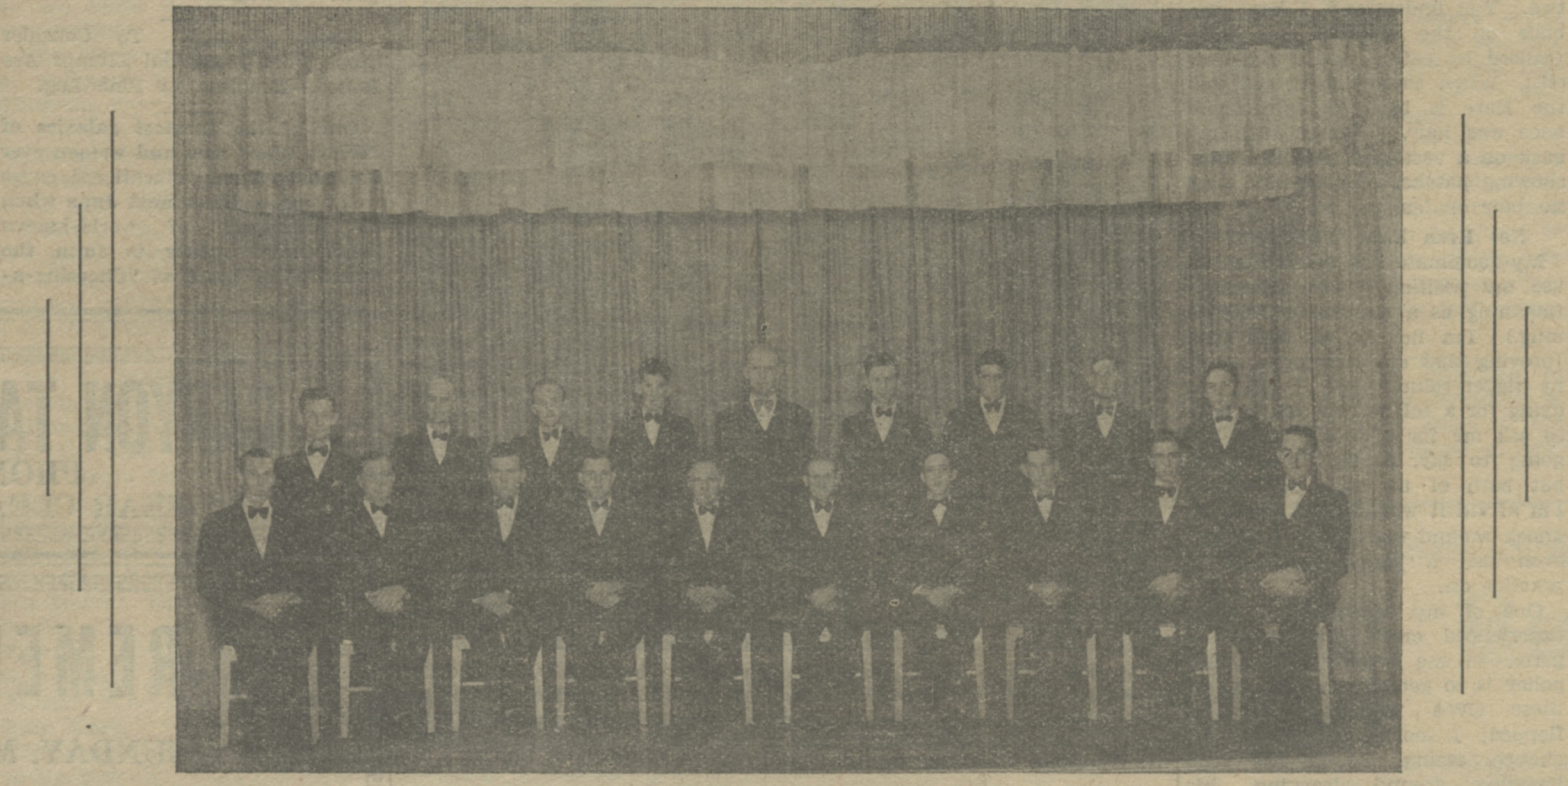

Birdlovers of the Panhandle were given a rare treat Wednesday and Thursday of this week when Charles Bowman Hutchins, "The Bird Man," gave lectures on "Birds, Trees and Flowers of Texas," and "Birdcraft and Woodcraft."

Gives Songs

His talks were interspersed with the songs of various birds, given by Mr. Hutchins, himself, who is credited with having given the world a new musical art, "Ornithic Singing."

He drew chalk pictures of several birds, some with which the majority of people are familiar and

College Heads Prominent On A.T.C. Program

Prominent on the speaking program of the meeting of Association of Texas Colleges which met in Fort Worth on April 27 and 28 were Dr. R. P. Jarrett and Registrar D. A. Shirley of W. T.

Mr. Shirley presented to the convention the report of the committee on Coordination. Also he appeared before the Junior College Division of the Association.

Dean Jarrett also attended the meeting of the Texas Society of College Teachers of Education, where he gave a report concerning the reaction of teachers to the new State requirements as concerns the West Texas State Teachers College.

During his stay Dr. Jarrett met with the deans of the Texas State Teachers Colleges. "All three were valuable and interesting meetings," stated Dean Jarrett.

Kappa Omicron Phi Takes Trip To Carlsbad

Members of Kappa Omicron Phi left Saturday noon for Carlsbad, New Mexico, where they visited Carlsbad Cavern. After viewing the wonders of the Carlsbad National Park, the group enjoyed seeing the Bottomless Lakes near Roswell, New Mexico.

Those making the trip were: Mary Ellen Morgan, Helen Johnson, Madeline Cox, Dena Faye Jameson, Marie Park, Helen Edwards, Dorothy Gore, Miss Orpa Dennis, Miss Elizabeth Cox and William Lozenby.

One hundred Texans made the trip through the cavern the day the W. T. Group went through.

Y.W.C.A. Elects Official Staff

Ruth Wells Is President Of Organization For 1934-35

The Y. W. C. A. held its annual election of officers the past week. Ruth Wells, an accomplished member of the College Sextet, was elected president of the association for next year. Miss Wells is from Hedley and is a sophomore in W. T. S. T. C.

La Trice Quattlebaum was chosen vice-president. She is an honor student of the junior class and has her residence in Canyon.

Zella Welch, who is an outstanding student in the freshman class, was elected secretary. She is from Dalhart.

Betty Hicks of Canyon was elected treasurer. Miss Hicks is a junior and outstanding in her ability to draw.

These officers will be installed in their respective places May 16, at the Little House of Fellowship, with Mrs. Elizabeth Fry Page as hostess.

The remainder of this year will be spent in getting acquainted with their work.

The climaxing event of the Y. W. C. A. will be a sunrise service and waffle breakfast to be given soon. Miss Ruth Lowes is faculty sponsor of the organization.

NEW ARRIVAL

Mr. and Mrs. Herschel Coffee are the proud parents of a baby daughter, born Wednesday, May 2.

Ernest Baldwin has been elected principal of the Red Hill School in Swisher County. His address will be Tulia, Vigo Route.

Meet Faculty At Special Assembly Friday Morning

Feeling that the student body of W. T. were not acquainted with every member of the faculty of the college, President J. A. Hill called a special assembly Friday morning, seated the professors on the platform and introduced them, one by one, to earnest young scholars who filled the auditorium.

After singing the Alma Mater, under the direction of Miss Pauline Brigham of the music department, Dr. Hill introduced the faculty members. Professor L. F. Sheffy announced the committees who will be in charge of the Silver Jubilee celebration next fall and gave some of the interesting points of the program as it is now being planned.

George Bishop, president of the Student Council, announced that nominations were now being made for next year's pep leader. Nominees were introduced by James Compton who led the student body in a yell. These nominees will lead yells at the spring football game scheduled for May 11, and three of their number will be elected May 15 to lead yells for the season of 1934-35.

Howard Golden, a graduate of W. T., who has been attending the University of Missouri for the past three years, has been appointed advisor in Junior Economics on the National Farm Board, according to word received here.

Mr. Golden plans to leave the University and to take up his new duties on May 15.

He has held positions in the University since 1931, accepting, the first year, a position in the clerical department and working up, until the past year, he has served as assistant instructor in Farm Management. He has been working toward his Ph. D. degree.

Similarities of Depressions Portrayed In Address Delivered By Miss H. M. Anderson

Talks At Annual Meeting of Mississippi Valley Society

Presenting a vivid picture of depression days in Missouri in the early nineteenth century, Miss Hattie M. Anderson of the W. T. history department gave one of the most thought provoking addresses delivered at the annual meeting of the Mississippi Valley Historical association at Columbia, Missouri the latter part of April.

Bank failures, demands for inflation of the currency, mortgage moratoriums, and protests against Wall Street brought out by Miss Anderson in her discussion of the topic, "Weathering a Panic in Missouri, 1819-1822," showed many similarities between early panics

Places Organization First Among Texas Colleges

W. T. again established her supremacy in the world of music when the Mens' Chorus came home winners from the Southwestern District Conference held under the auspices of the Moslah Shrine Temple at Fort Worth May 4 and 5.

Second place, carrying with it a check for $50 went to the local chorus who were surpassed only by the mens' chorus of Oklahoma University, seasoned competitors, and winners of first place in the Missouri Valley Contest for the past three years. Thus, the place won by W. T. carries with it the distinction of placing the local organization first among Texas schools who entered the Southwestern conference.

Professor Wallace R. Clark is director of the chorus, and his daughter, Frances Alice, is accompanist.

Sing Two Numbers

Contest song given by the W. T. chorus was "Lamp in the West," and the optional number was "Shadow March." A general chorus of 500 voices was directed Saturday evening by Noble Cain, director of the choral auditions at the NBC studios at Chicago and considered an authority on men's choral singing in America.

Schools entered in the contest were: College of Arts and Industries, Kingsville; Southwest Texas State Teachers College, San Marcos; Stephen F. Austin State Teachers College, Nacogdoches; Baylor University, Waco; Texas Christian University, Fort Worth; Abilene Christian College, Abilene; Southern Methodist University, Dallas, and Oklahoma University, Norman, Oklahoma.

Howard Golden Is Appointed To Farm Board

Howard Golden, a graduate of W. T., who has been attending the University of Missouri for the past three years, has been appointed advisor in Junior Economics on the National Farm Board, according to word received here.

MOTHER'S DAY

The best friend you have or that you ever will have in this world is your mother. A mother is one of God's most noble creations. Your mother will stick by you and die for you if necessary in order that you may survive or succeed. When all of your friends turn against you and everything looks dark, you can always count on your mother fighting by your side. A mother is the one person above all whom we should love, honor and respect.

Many boys and girls do not stop to think just how much their mother has helped them, and how much she sacrificed for them, but they go on thinking it is nothing but her duty. They never stop and tell their mother how much they love her or show their appreciation for her. How often do you tell your mother that you love her? Do you always respect your mother by doing whatever she wants you to do?

The second Sunday in May is set aside each year as a National Mother's day. It is the duty of every man and woman, whose mother is still living, to send her some gift or token of love showing his love for her. Are you going to send your mother something for Mother's Day? —B. M.

DAYS OF YOUTH

The world is filled with two-penny philosophers who are acclaiming in clarion tones that today is the "Day of Youth," that the present generation has finally come into its own, and that youth is now at a premium—or will be when the depression is over.

The world is not today nor ever will be a World for Youth, but it is a world that is becoming increasingly susceptible to young ideas. By this we mean, fresh, dynamic ideas; ideas that come as the result of progressive thought.

We are young now. We can look around us and jeer at those who were young yesterday, perhaps not openly, but at least condescendingly. We are youth, we are the generation that the world is waiting for, we are destined to save humanity to bring back prosperity, to wipe out the pernicious system that is eating out the heart of our once vigorous republic.

To be young is glorious. We shall perhaps think more on that when we are older, but to keep our ideas young is still more glorious. "When we are seasoned," we are wont to say, "we shall be thus and so. We shall never become old-fashioned. We shall stay young with our children." But will we?

There are some people, says a well known sociologist, who are old at twenty-five. They are old because they have stopped growing. No more new ideas will ever creep in, by hook or crook, through that thick covering around their heads. Life for them is static.

"I have my own opinions about some things," said one of these individuals recently, "and I am not prone to give them up to every hair-brained extorter who comes around. They are a part of my personality and I want my character to be a stable one."

We are not asking this old-young man to give up his opinions; he would, as he says, probably be at sea without them, but it is not necessary that he close himself up, fortifying himself against the arguments of other people as though they were aligned against him, trying to undermine his "stable character."

That fluidity of character, that malleability of personality is what keeps us young—forever, if we can keep it that long. It is the factor that makes the world wait for us, at twenty-five, thirty-five, forty-five or beyond, for as the years roll fast upon one another's heels, we shall be gaining experience, and as we keep our minds open, we shall be able to profit by that experience, to turn it to our own advantage, to face life as frankly as we did when we held that sheepskin in our hands.

THE PURPOSE OF AN EDUCATION

Education is not necessarily a means to an end. It has been said that education is a preparation for life, but it is even more than this. Education is life itself. The value of a college education is to teach students to think for themselves. When one hears a thing said, he should not take it to be so until he has analyzed it and found it to be so.

The attitudes of mind should be exercised more than they are. The attitudes of mind are: Accept that which you know is so. Reject that which you know is not so. And last, hold an open mind toward that which you are not certain about. If you take a thing to be so without analysis, it is not yours. It belongs to someone else, and you have only borrowed it.

The habit of creative thinking is a skill. It is the power of the human mind, but only a few do it and the rest follow. Practically all the great things that have been done are results of creative thinking.

Education, as we see it, is still subject to improvement. A good improvement would be to teach better the importance of creative thought, and an analysis of what is read and heard.—O. T.

Liberry Jam

OR "WHY STUDENT LIBRARIANS AGE QUICKER THAN MOST PEOPLE"

(By Mabel Hare)

I'm taking library science with a bunion and the wrong cultural background. Whereas some people are natural born librarians, I have to tape up my eyebrows.

I'm sure I have my points; although, you could follow my trail all over the college by the "fox-pas" I make. I always put my best front forward—and, will probably continue to do so for a month or two. You understand, I have two boils on the back of my neck (caused by eating putrid cod-liver oil). When these outfits get well the Hare is bare of hair where once was hair. I never turn my back on a customer. (I'd look cute showing patches of neck-hide with no hair on 'em).

Not Even Paul Whiteman?

My roommate has advised me to use my position to an advantage (meaning as a matrimonial beginning.) I'm not at all that type (proving that one can judge a girl by figger-value); but, I am just dying for a tall skinny young man to ask me for a date. Then, I'm going to say, gently, "I'm sorry, but both of us being so skinny, I'm afraid it wouldn't do for us to knock around together." I haven't even had a plump specimen to practice on.

One of my cell-mates, a more experienced credit student, whispered to me confidentially, "My policy is to get all you can out of these CWA workers." My lip flopped; I looked impressed. By chance, seeing one of the boys lounging around, learning his ABC's, I says, "Say, sap, if you haven't anything else to do, you might massage my bunion." That, my children, is making 'em shake a leg.

Maybe They Were Hungry

This evening while doing my duty, two fixtures from headquarters came behind the desk. They stooped and looked at my partner's feet. I knew they were particular—but foot inspection! At least we should have had a chance to prepare for this! I coldly asked them what they wanted. They groaned, "We're looking for a date." "Aw," said I, "I'm no authority on dates; you won't find one hanging around me." Well now, how was I to know one of those little stamp do-jiggers was lost?

Now, Mabel!

Maybe you think library science doesn't have its practical side. The other afternoon as I was going home, a simple gink caught up with me, saying, "What's your hurry?"

"Oh, my landlady's having a party; and I want to get there in time for refreshments," says I.

Says he, demurely, "Maybe I'd better 'scorch' you home."

"Yes," I said politely, "come up sometime."

He beamed, "I will that."

"Yes," I said dryly, "come up to the library sometime."

There are all sorts of interesting facts connected with the course. I have at last found out where the new tennis courts are being put. If you're clever, you can become absorbed in a history book, up side down, at the back of the room and enjoy a good tennis game. By the time school is out I won't recognize those boys with a shirt on.

Collapses of Fatigue

Library science builds character. I've never felt such responsibility as I did my first hour alone with a whole section of library. It was a rush hour! I felt like a mother left alone for the first time with her first baby. I felt like a chicken with its head cut off, a worm in hot ashes, a bull in a china closet, one foot in the grave and the other pointed at eleven o'clock—(some authors prefer, "one foot in the grave and the other pointed skyward," or "one foot in the grave and the other on a banana-peel.")

I checked out, checked in, put up, gave advice or sympathy, stood up straight and held my stumuck in, at one time! At last everything calmed itself. I let out the breath I'd been holding all period and rested my weary head on my arms, etc., etc.—when, the Boss, walked in. I jumped up guiltily. "Miss Hare, when you don't have anything else to do, check shelves," I said meekly, "Yes, Ma'am."

How 'Bout Lee & Co?

I'm also developing a mild kind of patience. A freshman Apollo rushed in asking for a book by Roebuck. I looked in the files; no find. I told him in my nicest manner, "We haven't a Roebuck, but I might get a Sears." Can you imagine such ignorance—he said impatiently, "Well, gimme that." Undaunted I replied, "There's a girl named Roebuck in the loan, try her." He rushed out.

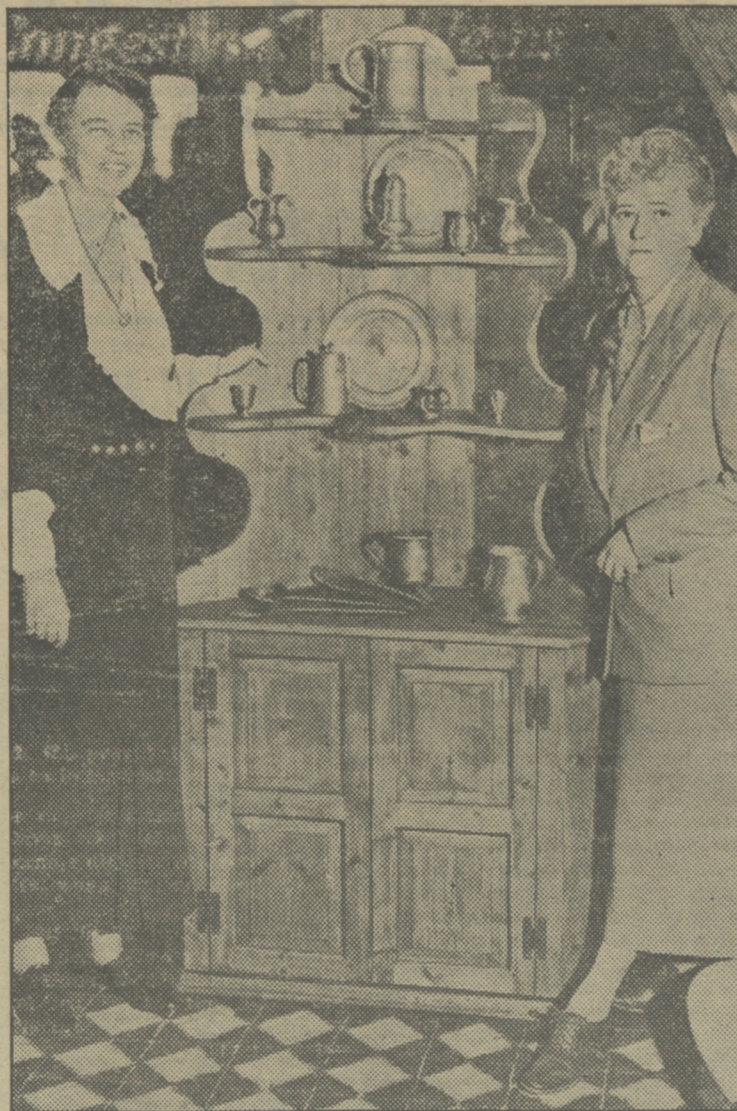

Later:

Visitor: "Who is the girl in the padded cell?"

Keeper: "She's a librarian; you see, she couldn't take it."

Revenge is sweet only to the very small individuals.

Who's Who

Jewell Alma Glass made her debut on the stage of life in 1916, in Scurry, Texas. Incidentally, it was during this period of her life that she unconsciously gained some experience that has proved extremely valuable in her public speaking work; namely, that of weeping so realistically.

In the few months that she has attended W. T. High School, Jewell Alma has made all of us proud to have her for an associate. And who wouldn't be proud? Just take a look at some of the "feathers" in this deserving little senior's cap. She was a candidate in both the senior class and Home Ec Club for the most popular girl, won two medals in essay writing at a recent Kaufman County meet, has an excellent record in all her subjects, was elected best citizen in the senior class, made the honor roll, and, speaking of "roles" she was given one of the most important parts in the 1934 senior play.

Sizing up the "Jewell" of the class of '34 briefly, she is five feet two inches tall, weighs one hundred sixteen pounds, and is eighteen years old. Jewell Alma plans to be a public speaking teacher after graduating for W. T. S. T. C. She will enter College in June.

First Grade Children Entertain

Tuesday, May 1, the children of the first grade gave a program for their parents and for the second and third grades. The program consisted of poems, stories, an orchestra number entitled "Spring is Coming," a group of spring songs, a fairy story dramatized, and a May pole dance. The special feature of the program was a story by the second and third grade children.

Home Ec. Club Serves Banquet

The Home Ec. Club served the Pi Omegan banquet, Saturday evening, April 28, in the College Cafeteria.

Sixth Grade Give Play

Wednesday afternoon, at 1:15, the sixth grade gave a one-act play entitled, "The Six Who Pass While the Lentils Boil."

The players were: Little Boy, Dick Smith; Queen, Dorothy Jean Jennings; Mime, Merrile Elizabeth Duff; Milk Maid, Dora Jean Clark; Blind Man, Ernest Sykes; Ballad Singer, Virginia Vaughan; Headman, Berry McCarter; Prologue, Mildred Merchant; Device Bearer, Johnnie Dine Campbell; You, Ida Martha Pierle.

The play was given under the direction of Miss Margaret Harvey, a practice teacher.

Miss Moore Entertains Seniors

Friday, April 27, at 8:00, Miss Helen White Moore entertained the seniors at her home. In conducting the many games that were played during the evening, the hostess was assisted by Misses Mary Jo Chamberlain and Lois McCaslin, practice teachers. Delightful refreshments of ice cream and cookies were served.

Sneak Day

Were the lower classmen surprised when the seniors didn't appear at school Saturday, April 28! The seniors met early Saturday morning and "sneaked" to the Baptist Encampment. Cars were furnished by Miss Moore, Mr. and Mrs. York, Wayne McNeill, and by J. T. Sykes, who drove the Sunny Hill school bus. The day was spent in hiking, climbing, and wading. At noon a huge picnic lunch was prepared and eaten by the ravenous seniors.

Spanish Club Meets

At the class period Thursday, May 3, Alton Paul, president of the Spanish Club, called a business meeting at which plans for the Spanish banquet were made.

Junior-Senior Party

The Junior class entertained the Seniors with a party Thursday night in the gym. The party began with a lively skirmish to find partners by unwinding the vari-colored streamers, which were linked among the tables.

Amid the sound of balloons popping and shouts of laughter, the group played games of slap, bridge, touring, and forty-two.

Prizes for high score were awarded to E. L. Hammitt and Jewell Alma Glass.

Refreshments of punch and cookies were served by freshmen girls, Pearl Mayben, Anita Cleland, Thelma Cupell and Lela Louderer.

Twenty Girls Enjoy Y. W. Retreat At Methodist Encampment Grounds

(By Margaret Buchanan)

Twenty laughing girls sailing along on Highway No. 9 in the back end of a truck, good (yes) and substantial (it had to be). Twenty, wishing one minute for a wind retreat, the next for a sun retreat, but most of all for the Y. W. retreat at the Methodist Encampment.

So it was the Y. W. C. A. Retreat.

The girls arrived in camp about 5:30 Saturday, anxious for one of those traditional wiener suppers. Committees were immediately appointed. Bundles were put in their places, firewood was collected, water was obtained and soon the whole party was industriously ahum.

After a delightful meal such as this one proved to be, one always turns to some form of amusement or another. This time it was a treasure hunt directed by Virginia Heaton. Believe you me, the girls learned about canyons from her. (After dark.)

At 9:30 o'clock the group was led in a vesper service. "A little child was sitting on a man's lap in a row boat. She held her hands on the oars. He clasped his over hers. She thought she was rowing."

The early morning vesper was directed by Dorothy McKenzie. Miss Lowes was in charge of the 9:30 vesper. Dr. Debo led the discussion group at 10:00 o'clock on "Problems Confronting College Students." At 11:00 o'clock, Brother Hilburn preached his sermon on "The Sovereignty of Man."

The sunrise breakfast was made more delightful by the arrival of guests, Dean Green, Nell Green and Mrs. Page. One of the three was kind enough to say, "This breakfast only goes to prove that girls can still cook." But, your honorable reporter has had that sentence repeated to her so much that she wishes the person would come to the Prairie office and withdraw her kind statement.

At dinner, the girls were again honored by guests, Brother and Mrs. Hilburn, and Claudia Neelley. "Tis safe to say that narry a scrap was left."

Betty Ann Hancock tried a swim after dinner in the creek. The one foot deep water, clothing—everything considered, she did have a grand time.

You would have enjoyed seeing Dorothy McKenzie chop the firewood. It is a good way to reduce, Dorothy.

And have you heard about Ruth Wells' family, Dorothy McKenzie, Marguerite Buchanan, and last and least of the little dears, Dr. Debo.

Oh, yes, Laura Virginia Bills in her effort to tend to some drastic measures of importance had to stand on her feet during the ride back, and—well, she found that two feet weren't the best thing to stand upon under such circumstances. In fact Miss Lowes and others found out the same thing.

The Y. W. C. A. Retreat is an annual event which all the members look forward to as one of the most important and pleasureable of all the year. Certainly the greatest expectations of the group were fulfilled this time. We wish more girls could have been with us.

ALPHA CHI HOLD LAST MEETING FRIDAY

Members of the Alpha Chi Scholarship Society celebrated their last meeting of the year Friday with a picnic in the Palo Duro Canyon.

Supper was served on the ground, and stories—particularly those of Mr. Shirley—were told. There followed a tramp through the canyons and a search for cacti and turtles. Plans for a talk about the stars by Miss Hattie M. Anderson could not be carried out because of weather conditions. Plans were discussed for next year's work.

The society wishes to express gratitude to the sponsor of the local chapter and the president of the national organization, Miss Edna Graham, for her inspirational leadership and untiring zeal in working with the club.

COUSINS LITERARY SOCIETY MEETS

The Cousins Literary Society met Thursday night in regular session. The members of the society enjoyed the program which was a debate, the subject being "Unimeval and Biomeval Systems." Those on the affirmative were Clayton Devins and Otis Harmon; Bill Hawkins and Jody Boston were on the negative.

Final plans for the Cousins-Sesame Banquet and Dance were discussed. After the banquet there will be a dance with good music, so come prepared to have a good time. If you haven't bought your tickets, buy them today.

Hettie Lou Bagley will teach the Wilson School, west of Canyon next year.

Farewell Dance

At eight-thirty Saturday evening, May 12, the Farewell Dance of the year is to be held in Cousins Hall. This dance promises to be the best of the year, for many special forms of entertainment have been planned. The Blue Rhythm Masters, a dance band from Amarillo, has been secured for the occasion. This band is exceptionally good, and must not be confused with any other orchestra that has ever played for the college dances. The prices will be the usual fifty cents for couples and seventy-five cents for stags.

An exceptionally large crowd is expected, so get your date early and be there.

PLACES FIRST

"Smoke Screen," Pampa's entry in the one-act play contest, won first place at the state meet at Austin, last week. Ben Guill, '33, is director of the play.

The young actors received other honors. One of the girls in the cast was given first by those who were grading on the basis of individual acting, and a boy in the cast was given second place in the state contest.

Sally Mary Campbell, '32, is living at Sweetwater. Always an ardent member of the Prairie staff, she attended the T. I. P. A. at Abilene and enjoyed W. T.'s receiving the loving cup.

Aubrey Jones will teach in Wheeler County next year.

Farewell Dance, May 12th.

SUMMER HOUSING

The housing list for the summer session is now being made up. House holders interested in keeping students, should get in touch with Mrs. Geraldine Green, acting chairman of the Boarding House Committee, immediately.

OUR FRECKLED FRIENDS

Never mind! Freckles show that you are healthy! But you don't want them to show it too plainly. If your skin is very fine and transparent, even the faint spring sun will bring out a golden crop of freckles across nose and cheeks. That is, it will—unless you prevent the sun from having its own way.

That is really the secret of avoiding freckles—prevent them from appearing. Right now, a protective powder base will amply safeguard your skin from the actinic sunrays. A snow lotion, for example, should be used from May on through the summer months by those who are inclined to freckle. A semi-liquid make-up foundation, of this type serves a double purpose. It gives the skin a smooth mat finish, and it turns aside the sun rays from the skin. Moreover, you will find a foundation of this kind so flattering, that you will want to use it in the evening too, for arms and back as well as the face and neck.

In addition, if you can already discern a faint dusting of freckles over your skin, use a pasteurized bleaching cream as a cleanser. By combining both the virtues of a cleansing cream and a bleaching cream in one preparation, you save both time and effort in keeping the skin smooth, flawless and transparently clear. It is an excellent idea for the fallow or muddy skin, too, to have this type of cream. A pasteurized bleaching cream is rich enough to keep even the driest, finest, skin smooth and supple.

I have been appalled to find that many young girls, when they are self-conscious about freckles, use the strongest type of bleaches to remove them. Of course, a bleach must be fairly strong to reach the skin tissue where the freckles originate. But such a bleach should be applied only under expert advice and after a complete skin analysis. I shall be glad to help you, personally, if you are bothered with dark, obstinate freckles.

It's irritating and it means...jangled nerves

Yes, it's irritating to listen to that constant, tuneless humming—and more than that, the humming is a sign of jangled nerves.

If you notice any of those tell-tale nervous habits in yourself—if you whistle through your teeth—juggle your keys—drum on the table—then it's time to start taking care of yourself.

Get enough sleep—fresh air—recreation—and watch your smoking... Remember, you can smoke as many Camels as you want. Their costlier tobaccos never jangle your nerves.

T-Anchor Farm News

(By Howard Weatherly)

Just in the nick of convenience we found out Wilbur Q. Spough's nationality. We have been wondering for some time, and, fortunately, were present when Spough was being complimented recently for having become a professor. "What," asked Spough, "did he mean by calling me a 'big double-jointed iceman'?"

Interesting predictions are already being made about Wilbur Q.'s future. In newspaper fashion one observer remarks, "Spough Weds Entire Third Grade. She was 21 years old." Another volunteers, "Spough Tells Class About Distance to Market. Class Astonished at Size of World."

We received a letter from one of our exes who says he will be with us this summer, that he likes teaching fine, and that he has been interested in a visitor, a schoolmate or something for the last few days. Says everything is rosy, and why, we ask, shouldn't it be?

New ideas are being hatched every few days at the T-Anchor. Came a few showers, the creek rose a bit and George Gandy up and buys himself some high-water pants—no, not "pants." You know the kind that grasshoppers can get in when the legs are unbuckled. We'll be that he'll make a good yell leader in those pants. They look like high water yelling pants to us.

Tubby Cummings and Kid Young were off to Fort Worth with the chorus. We'll wager they've come back with sore necks and an ambition to leave the Panhandle again some day before they get too old.

Aub Jones is to go out and labor for the sake of the rural children next year. Several months of such work, we have heard, makes a fellow appreciate a class where he can just sleep.

The annual picnic will have been held by the time this goes to press. There is quite a rise in dating initiative during this season for the T-Anchor hands. And there's the inevitable sunburned faces and necks, and bright shiny faces. Ask those who went.

The Stolen Flower

Within the garden of my heart
We planted there a seed of love;
It burst its outer shell apart,
And ventured forth to look above.

From day to day this plant did grow,
And by and by produced a bloom;
The pretty flower, how it did grow,
And fill my soul with sweet perfume.

Then like a Vandal in the night,
He came and plucked the flower away,
And with its sweetness went the light
That made my life so bright and gay.

Still in my garden there remains,
This naked stalk without the bloom,
To fill my heart with saddest pains,

EXPRESS APPRECIATION

We, the members of the W. T. Men's Chorus in appreciation of the splendid trip just given us, desire to express our thanks to the following persons who have made it possible:

To Dr. J. A. Hill, who so kindly granted college funds for defraying our expenses and the use of the college bus for transportation.

To Mr. Wallace R. Clark, through whose influence the funds were secured and whose able direction, we realize, was the major contributing factor to our success.

To Miss Frances Alice Clark, our accompanist, who has untiringly labored through our rehearsals and who, in spite of physical injury, carried on thru the contest performance.

To Mr. Lorenzo Wirt, who willingly gave the use of his car and served as bus chauffeur, exhibiting every interest in our safety, comfort and entertainment.

To Mr. Charles Reeve, member of the chorus who furnished transportation for six by giving the use of his car.

Furthermore, not overlooking the fact that some of us will not participate in the chorus next year because of graduation, we wish to commend Dr. Hill for his timely suggestion that our prize money be deposited as a nucleus for future contest trips, and heartily concur in the above mentioned disposal of said funds.

Signed:
Committee on Resolutions,
Prentice Windsor, Chairman
M. E. Cleavinger
Jack Wright.

And make my life just one of gloom.

Now as I sit in direst need,
And play the melancholy part,
I wonder if another seed
Will e're be planted in my heart.
—John Blaine, Jr.

Spring

Over the hills the sun is coming,
Amid the flowers the bees are humming,
And in the quivering leaves of trees
The birds are singing gay melodies.

The sky that once was gray in hue
Is rejoicing in a brilliant cap of blue;
The floating clouds, pillows of snowy white,
Slumber lazily over trees of lofty height.

The rolling landscape, with glamorous specks of green,
Over sparkling pools of water reigns supreme,
And voices call from short to shore
That jovial spring has come once more.
—Woodrow Toone.

SIMILARITIES—

money was secured. In two or three years the settlers of 1819 had adjusted themselves and there was a surplus of grain, livestock and tobacco. With returning prosperity in 1822, money and credit became more plentiful, and the trade to the East and down the Mississippi were re-opened. Then immigration set in once more, bringing in more money and increasing the market for local products.

Work Out Own Way

"Looking back over the experiences of the past three years, the editor of the Missouri Republican in 1822, imbued with Jeffersonian economic and political philosophy, concluded that 'The good old republican principle of leaving every man to work out his own way, cannot be too often recommended and enforced. This is one point in which our government professedly differs from others: its theory is, to interfere in the private affairs of citizens only as far as is absolutely necessary to the purpose of government. Other nations (and consistently enough, too, for their governments are despotic or nearly so) have been in the habit of interfering, restraining, and nursing everything to death. We on the contrary in the spirit of freedom, have left every man to his own exertions; and he must rise or fall according to his own habits and efforts.'"

"Thus, it is apparent that most of the people of Missouri, following the panic of 1819, looked to themselves for relief and found it in economy an individual effort. Nevertheless, the panic did leave its mark, for the people never recaptured their exalted faith in themselves as 'the Chosen People' taking possession of 'a Land of Promise.'"

Over At MOORE'S CO-OP

(By Jody Boston)

(By Jody Boston)

There is a good bunch of good boys over here at the Co-op, but that doesn't mean anything for the world is full of them. Did you ever think how insignificant you are compared to the rest of the world—but some try to be big shots like the flea. A flea and an elephant crossed a bridge once and after they had passed, the flea said to the elephant, "Boy, didn't we make that bridge shake?"

The baseball game we had the first part of the week was a knock out. We showed our opponents what real playing was the first part of the game, but they showed us on the last. A game of that type would be a thriller to even country people. Come out next Monday afternoon and you'll get an eyefull—either of sand or miraculous sights.

Primo is certainly acting up of late. I think that enveloping atmosphere called love has conquered him. Street and Andy are not far behind Primo and maybe before school is out they too will be submerged in that bottomless pit.

Ad is a fellow who makes a quick entrance and a hasty exit. High school students must be busy people, but college students take life more nonchalantly it seems. Heckle makes a smear with women and sometimes he does it with a brush.

We lost two star boarders, and now those juicy cakes go farther. Many freshmen change their minds as often as wind changes.

The Prairie editors and staff members are happy to receive congratulations from other editors of college papers relative to winning the loving cup at the recent T. I. P. A. convention.

"Let me congratulate you again," writes Lois Wilkerson, editor of the Campus Chat at the North Texas State Teachers College, Denton, "on your winning the loving cup in the newspaper division of the T. I. P. A. This is an achievement in any conference, for any school. Take it from one who knows."

College Girls Sextette Give Radio Program

The College Girls Sextette gave a thirty minute program over radio station WDAG in Amarillo last Wednesday evening from 8:30 to 9:00 o'clock. Members of the sextette are Elizabeth Faulkner and Florine Bowman, sopranos, Lucy Joe Louder and Zua Warner, second sopranos, and Marion Hill and Ruth Wells, altos. They were accompanied by Royce Parks. Miss Pauline Brigham is director.

They contributed the following program:

Song of the Persian Captive—Mabel Daniels
Serenade—Von Suppe
When a Maid Comes Knocking at Your Heart—Friml
The Star—Rogers
The Cuckoo Clock Grant-Schaeffer
Solvej's Song—Grieg
Since You Went Away—Johnson
Gioninno Mio—Friml
Alma Mater

Among the programs in which they will participate soon is a musical attraction in Happy, May 12. They will also sing in the Training School chapel, Friday, May 11, and have another engagement in Amarillo soon.

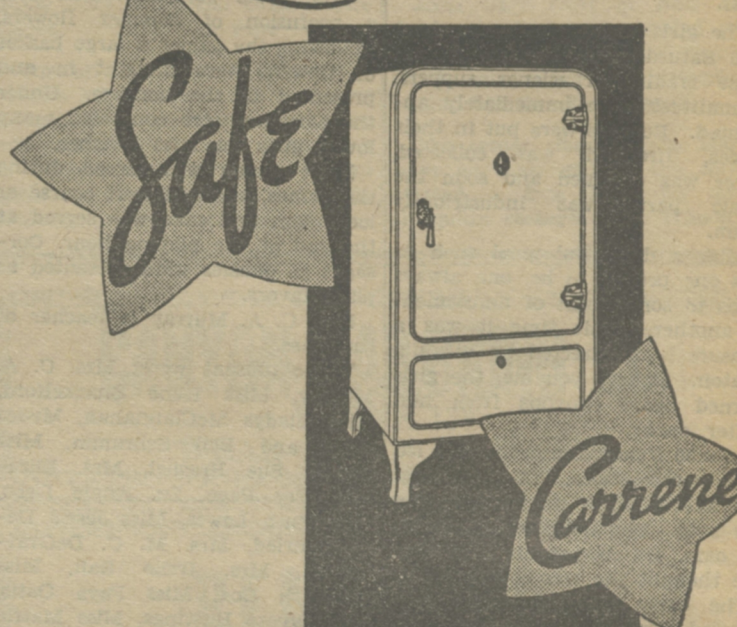

Dorothy McKenzie has been elected teacher of a school near Panhandle.

—they age good grapes to make rare wines

— and they do something like that to mellow good tobaccos

WHERE THE RARE WINES come from they know that the two most important things in wine-making are the selection of the grapes and the long years of ageing in the wine cellars.

IT'S VERY MUCH THE SAME in the making of a cigarette. You have to get the right tobaccos, then put them away to age and mellow in wooden casks.

You can't make a good cigarette like Chesterfield in a day. It takes over two years to age the tobaccos for your Chesterfields—but it adds something to the taste and makes them milder.

Everything that modern Science really knows about is used to make Chesterfield the cigarette that's milder, the cigarette that tastes better.
