

The Editor Speaking

Weather like we've been having recently isn't very conducive to serious study. And most of us are going to be forced to do some serious studying from now until the end of the month, whether we like it or not. "Fs" don't look so good on our report cards, especially after the folks back home have seen them.

Well, the last all-college dance of the year is history now. That last one was so satisfactory that we are all sorry that it was the last one. Soft music, beautiful co-eds, a shadowy ballroom, a slight breeze gently stirring the fresh, green leaves just outside the windows—farewell. (Believe it or not, but I'm not in love.)

The band has been getting in the limelight quite a bit lately. With the concert at the Canyon High School Wednesday and the trip to Amarillo today to play for the Chamber of Commerce visitors, the College is being advertised over a still wider area. Plans are being made for the band to represent W. T. at the Texas Centennial Exposition in Dallas on Canyon Day, June 18. This would be one of the very best ways in the world to help advertise our college, for nothing attracts interest so quickly as a good band like ours.

Speaking of good bands and band programs, we really had a treat this week in the assembly programs Tuesday and Saturday when the Tulsa Band and the Pampa Band played. Interest is increasing to a marked extent in high school bands. Practically every high school in the country of any consequence now has a band. For this reason alone, college students should avail themselves of the opportunity offered here to learn something about directing a band. Superintendents are finding it more and more difficult to find teachers who are capable of directing bands.

Getting out The Prairie this week seemed to be mere play after all the work that was necessary last week in publishing the large, 12-page edition. Special editions are a lot of fun, though (after they're out).

Members of the staff went around last week wearing an important look after they read the paragraph in Garford Wilkinson's column, "Short Grass," which appeared in the Amarillo Daily News for Wednesday. The occasion for his comments was the appearance of the unusually large paper which we issued Tuesday. He said several nice things about the paper and gave the names and positions of everyone connected with The Prairie. Thank you, Mr. Wilkinson. A little praise sure helps a fellow's feelings, doesn't it?

The Junior-Senior Prom, a long-dormant social affair on this campus, will be revived Saturday night. As one person commented, "It seems like the good ol' Before Depression days to hear students discussing the Prom again."

With the announcement Saturday afternoon of the coming Hill-Hill wedding came the realization that The Prairie is going to lose a Gossip Column editor. Well, never mind, folks. She is finishing this year. Seriously, though, we would like to kiss the—I mean, congratulate young Mr. Hill on his most excellent judgment.

Lela Hickox spent the week-end with her sister, Mrs. Muriel Lopez, in Roswell, N. M., where she attended the wedding of her sister, Novalee, Friday evening. Saturday night she was the guest of Cadet Julio Charamonte at the Scholarship Ball of the New Mexico Military Institute.

Boys Find Case Hopeless Even In Leap Year

Two weeks to go and four and one-half months of leap year have elapsed.

A blond and a brunette walk up and down the halls, eyeing couples with a wistful look. They stop against the wall, but attractive coeds hurry by, for other things seem to be on their minds.

"Why not put a notice on the bulletin board?" suggested someone—but alas—the bulletin board is locked.

Well, well, how are the girls going to know that Allen Shewmaker and Pat Falls are free, white, and somewhere around the prime of 21?

Mainly physique in every line, and this is leap year. A man does not think it is his place to speak at such a time—so what is he going to do? Write to Dorothy Dix?

Undecided, the two boys march up and down the halls, while feet tread by in step with the march of time. Only two more weeks to go. Going, going—sold to the highest bidder!

COLLEGE FARM GETS NEW WATER PLANT

An adequate water system for the College farm was completed this week. The farm has previously had only a 1,000-gallon system, which proved inadequate.

A new 23-foot tower with a 10,000-gallon storage tank will provide the College dairy and the three farm houses with water as well as supplying the irrigation needs of the farm.

The tower is set on a reinforced concrete base, and is built of 6-inch pipe with struts and girders. The platform is constructed of railroad rails. Two-inch pipe conveys the water from the well to the tank, and 1½-inch pipe is used in the distribution system.

Mrs. Frank McInnis, who taught at the Lelia Lake School this year secured affiliation recently for the school in fourth year English. This makes the sixteenth credit for that school and leaves it fully accredited.

Frank (Red) McInnis has been employed as high school coach and teacher of agriculture and shop work for the coming year at the Lelia Lake School. He taught at the Quail High School last year.

Maurine Newsom has had as her guest this past week, Mr. J. Milton Coalson of San Antonio.

Miss Robinson to Have Painting in Centennial Exhibit

Artists now residing in Texas or who were born in the state are eligible. The exhibition includes original works in oil, water color, sculpture, drawings and prints which have not previously been shown at the Dallas Museum of Fine Arts.

"My Venetian Palace" was painted in the Catskill Mountains.

"Insidious" Use of "Panhandling" Is Played by McCraw

Mayors of America's largest cities were asked in a letter mailed Thursday by Attorney William McCraw from headquarters of the Texas Centennial Exposition to aid in a campaign to stop "the insidious use in your city of the terms 'panhandle' and 'panhandling,' for beggars and the act of begging."

"Texans do not use these terms," said McCraw's letter, "and they are indignant that other people do, since the Panhandle is the name of a large section of the Lone Star state. This use of the words seems particularly unfortunate at this time, when Texas is preparing to celebrate its one hundred birthday."

"The people of the Texas Panhandle decidedly are not beggars. On the contrary, the section is one of the richest wheat-growing areas in the United States, producing wheat of a higher protein content than other areas, and is also rich in its production of oil and cattle."

Just Hit Me, You Big Bully

Sam Houston Band Gives Program in Assembly Saturday

The Sam Houston Elementary School of Pampa presented a musical program in the assembly period here Saturday morning at 11 o'clock.

Featured in the program was the Sam Houston Band, which won first place in the band contest which was held recently in Amarillo, and the Blue and Gold Chorus. The first grades presented two very brief numbers, First Grade Doll Show with Mrs. J. I. Bradley and Miss Wilma Chapman, teachers, in charge of the respective classes.

The Sam Houston Band, aside from winning recognition in the Amarillo contest, received high praise when their picture was published in the Texas Outlook, a teachers magazine of the State Teachers Association.

The band was directed by A. C. Cox.

The music program of Pampa has been vigorously supported by R. B. Fisher, superintendent of schools, and the board of education.

Gridsters Will Play Intrasquad Game Friday

Dopesters Favor Squad A To Win Game Over B

The stiffest intra-squad grudge battle of the spring will materialize Friday night in Buffalo Stadium at 8 o'clock when Coach Baggett sends his A aggregation against Coach Cox's B team gridsters. This is the third meeting of the two clubs, and will terminate almost two months of fundamental drilling.

In the two previous engagements, the A's uncorked a fusillade of aerials to pile up decisive wins of 34-7 and 27-0. These showings establish them as heavy favorites to smother the inexperienced substitutes.

Two of last year's polished war-horses, Stina Cain, 175-pound wingman and Clinton Meek, 190-pound tackle, are now in the forward wall. Cain has just recovered from a tonsil operation. His return to the line will strengthen the combination. Meek is rated as one of West Texas' greatest defensive linemen. His plugging tackling will be a constant menace to the opposing backs.

The first-string line-up will probably find Cain and Waggoner at ends; Meek and Meek at tackles; Hinger and Champion at guard; and Captain Leo Jackson at center. Murry will get the bid as field general, McLaury and Slack at halfback, and either Dow or Butler at fullback.

The B-team line-up will begin with Speer and Arthur at end; Walling and Miller at tackle; Caviness and Horton at guard; Captain Si Marchbanks at center; P. A. Thomas as signal barker; Berryman and Lyde at halfback, and Washington at fullback.

There will be no admission charge.

Tulia Band Presents Program At Chapel Hour Here Tuesday

SENIOR CLASS WILL PRESENT UNIQUE GIFT

Diarama of Camp Scene To Occupy Place In Museum

Seniors of 1936 will present the school with one of the most unique gifts that has ever been left by a graduating class. A diarama of a camp scene is being constructed by Ben Carlton Mead and will be placed on exhibition in the Panhandle-Plains Historical Society Museum upon its completion.

Represented in the scene is one of the old JA Ranch chuck wagons in service. The diarama will have an inside height of 30 inches and will be fronted by a 50-inch glass window which will reveal all the details of the scene.

Mr. Mead, who is now in Chicago, is designing the gift. It will be made of veneered wood on plain severe lines and will have no decorative modeling. The groundwork of balsa wood will be screwed to the floor. To obtain the best effects, it will be wired for artificial lighting.

Trees used in the diarama will be small branches cut from cottonwood whose shapes will be improved upon by plastic modeling. The scene will include cowboys, horses, the chuck-wagon, and other surroundings typical of a chuck wagon scene.

"Come and Get It," a cowboy expression typical to the round-up days, will be the name of the gift.

According to L. F. Sheffy, head of the history department, this contribution to the museum will be one of great value and interest.

DOES YOUR POCKETBOOK HANG?

Are you one of those persons who have trouble in getting your pocketbook out of your pocket when the time comes to pay for the show, the eats, or the drinks that you have shared with your friends?

If so, that explains why it is so hard to get class dues collected every time a class wants to hold any kind of social affair which calls for the financial support of its members.

Co-operation in any organization is the factor which makes its activities a success. Lack of co-operation either makes the burden fall heavily on a few if it does not result in total failure.

Of course, money is not exceptionally plentiful at this time of the year with most people, but you are spending a certain amount for things that you are not obliged to have, anyway. The small sum asked for class dues will not make much difference one way or the other in the status of your pocketbook and it will mean a great deal to the class as a whole.

Now, let's see how many of you fulfill the description of the type at the beginning of this editorial and step aside to let someone else bear the expense of your pleasure.

County Library Gets New Books

By Mrs. S. D. Burton
"The Hurricane," by Charles Nordhoff and James Norman Hall, the authors of "Mutiny on the Bounty."

"The Hurricane" is a modern story of one of the small islands of the Low Archipelago, that sprawling group of dots on the map of the Pacific that spreads over a thousand miles from Tahiti to Pitcairn. The population consisted of 150 Polynesians and four Europeans: Monsiuer and Madam de Laage, the stern French Administrator and his wife; Father Paul, the tender-hearted priest, and Dr. Kersaint, the medical officer. Captain Nagle, the English skipper whose trading schooner was their only link with the outside world, was an occasional visitor. The serenity of this island Paradise is shattered by the return of a native son, Terangi, an escaped convict. In the hue and cry the white men and natives are brought into subtle opposition. But the issue is decided not by man but by nature, for there sweeps down upon the island a storm, overpowering, inhuman, majestic—a hurricane that tests the strength and temperament of these different races to the breaking point.

For 15 years Charles Nordhoff and James Norman Hall have lived in the South Seas. They know the serenity and devotion implicit in the island life; they know the gigantic sweep of wind and sea which forever imperil the coral communities.

Engagement Announcement Made At Seated Tea Saturday Afternoon

Announcement of the engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Marion Ethel Hill and Mr. Lemore Newton Hill of Amarillo was made Saturday afternoon at a beautifully appointed seated tea given by the bride-elect's mother, Mrs. J. A. Hill, at the family home.

A tulip motif was carried out in the decorations and appointments of the refreshment course.

Little Jo Ann Hill, niece of the bride-to-be, dressed in a pink tulip costume, distributed crepe paper tulips upon the leaves of which was written the following rhyme: "The tulips have a secret to tell. Open the petals and scan them well."

When the petals were opened, the words, "Marion-Lemore-June 16, 1936," were found.

A program, consisting of a piano solo by Miss Frances Usery, voice number by Virginia Hohaus, group of readings by Ruth Stapleton, and a whistling solo by Margaret Esther Hill of Amarillo was presented during the afternoon.

Refreshments of pink and white ice cream, with green iced angel food cake, were served to 72 guests.

'Safe' American Cities Are Reminders That Car Death Toll Can Be Reduced

SEVERAL American towns and cities have proved that the number of auto deaths can be reduced materially.

But it's a year-round job, discovered those municipalities which waged successful fights against "sudden death." Their streets were not made by a few months of spectacular campaigning. It took steady plugging over a period of years to cut auto tolls and bring recognition in the form of traffic safety awards from the National Safety Council.

Cars killed only two persons in busy Evanston, Ill., last year. This record won the Chicago suburb first place in traffic safety among cities of 50,000 to 100,000 population. Evanston has battled scientifically since 1929 for safer streets. At that time its city council formed a police bureau of accident prevention.

THAT bureau organized accident prevention squads which investigated all traffic mishaps at their sources, and collected evidence against offenders. Their reports went to a traffic engineer, who studied them with a view to making recommendations which would advance traffic safety.

A campaign—not a 60 or 90 day outburst—was launched to arouse Evanston to the importance of care in driving. Poster boards, newspapers, and radio spread safety propaganda. Public safety classes were held for children. A school for women drivers was established.

And—as in every city where traffic deaths and accidents have been reduced—strict law enforcement was the rule. Of 4209 persons arrested last year for traffic violations, 3241 either paid fines, were jailed, or had their licenses revoked.

Milwaukee, which had the lowest auto death rate—10.8 for each 100,000 persons—among cities of more than 500,000, has pounded away for 15 years toward greater traffic safety.

The Wisconsin city stresses a simple, understandable system of traffic control signals and signs, backed by a thorough program of education in safety, and impartial and literal enforcement of all traffic laws.

MILWAUKEE'S stop signs are placed at "points of obedience," which leave no doubt in the mind of motorists or pedestrians as to where and when he is expected to stop. There is little room for courtroom alibis on that score.

Streets are not cluttered with unnecessary signs. Motorists know that those encountered are needed, and they respect them all.

Chances for a "fix" on a traffic ticket are as slim in Milwaukee as in Evanston and the other "safe" cities. Of 45,433 traffic arrests in Milwaukee last year, only 218 failed to appear in court.

These, then, are the main methods used by America's safest large city in reducing the annual auto death toll from 132 to 65 since 1928. Other cities have done almost as well—and by programs equally simple and effective.

Traffic problems in Milwaukee and Evanston are not unique. They are much the same as those of cities large and small all over the United States.

Those cities worked no miracles. They pushed long-range traffic safety programs that can be duplicated in any town or city which really sets itself to drive death from its streets.

Sports-Casts

And the sports calendar of the year gradually echoes its farewell note. But one athletic event has just opened its season. The tennis team took it on the chin at the Lone Star Conference meet in Nacogdoches. After reaching the quarter-finals they were submerged by the brilliant strokers from San Marcos and Denton Teachers. Needless to say, these two schools swiped all the laurels—San Marcos in singles and Denton in doubles. The netters have raked up a large variety of excuses, foremost among these being the blistering heat waves and heavy atmosphere. They continue their season tomorrow against the Panhandle Aggies.

Basketball spring training has been finished. A series of tussles with last year's squad indicate that the up and coming boys are capable of dishing it out. Lloyd Johnson spoiled a possible tie game when he looped a long one in the final minute of play. It is the opinion of many that Johnson makes a habit of doing such things.

Many curiosity seekers will be put at ease when Line Coach Marshall May arrives on the campus to view his prospects for a forward wall next year. With the wealth of material that will go on display Friday night in Buffalo Stadium it is almost sure that he will watch it all with a twinkle in his eye. Every West Texas State student should be on hand to express his opinion of next season's chances.

And did Coach Clyde Littlefield's eyes pop out at the state track and field meet at Austin last week-end. "Red" Cecil, Freeport's one-man team, stabbed the century dash record by breaking the tape in the amazing time of 9.6. There was a circulating rumor that Cecil stated his financial inability to go away to college. This perplexity is now history. The Panhandle's representative, Jones of Hedley, forced Cecil to step fast in the 220-yard dash to get the bouquet.

A 15-year-old sophomore, Bobby Curtis of Houston, stole the whole show in the state meet this week. He paraded through everything, and exhibited the kind of stroking that is sufficient assurance that he will be a three-year man.

ON SAFETY

I've run a temperature in at least two hospitals and I also met up with quite a few legless, armless and otherwise badly messed up folks. There's a whole lot of mighty serious accident contemplation going on in our hospitals.

My observations have taught me that it is much better to think about accidents before they happen than on them afterward. Take it from an old campaigner, the best kind of hospital bed is the one that is permanently empty.

And personally, I'd rather be late for dinner tonight here than to be on time for breakfast in the next world in the morning. Haste makes waste of a lot of good human material.—Irvin S. Cobb.
