Four Delegates Attend
Annual Meeting At Denton

SELECT NEW NAME

Theme Planned Around
Subject of Interna-
tionalism

Miss Edna Graham, of the mathematics department of the West Texas State Teachers College, was chosen president of the Scholarship societies of the South at the thirteenth annual meeting of the council held at Denton, February 21 and 22. The F. M. Bralley chapter of the Texas State College for Women was host to the National Council.

Miss Graham, faculty sponsor of the local chapter, has been actively associated with the work of the scholarship society for some time. Other members who attended from Canyon were, Dr. B.
F. Fronabarger, Marie Park and Madeline Cox.

Change Name
One of the most important business transactions at the meeting was the selection of a new greek letter name, Alpha Chi, replacing the one so long used, Scholarship Society of the South.
"Internationalism" was the central theme upon which the convention was planned, and the main issue of the meeting was one of expansion.

President Hubbard Speaks President Louis H. Hubbard of the Texas State College for Women in his welcome to the Council stressed the fact that scholarship is not relatively as important as it was once believed to be. "It is the primary aim of instruction,"

145 pounds; and Al Duncan, 155

New Courts For Net Champions

Expect to Have All Courts
Ready For Tennis
Tournament

Three new college tennis courts are under construction. Two of them will be located on the northeast side of the powerhouse, and the third will be by President Hill's home. The latter will probably be the first one to be completed, and if possible, by the opening of the tennis season. The other two will take longer to finish because a sand base has to be set for each;
however, it is expected that all three will be finished by the 21st of April, the date on which the regional tournament will begin.

Sand From T-Anchor
Mr. Moore donated the sand and gravel from the T-Anchor ranch,
and had it not been for this donation, the building of the tennis courts might have been impossible. The college is bearing the cost of all the other material, and the labor which is being done as a part of the CWA program.

Each court will be made of concrete of a four inch thickness, and the two back of the powerhouse will have a four inch sand foundation; the cost is estimated to be approximately three hundred dollars for each court. The work is being supervised by the tennis coach, Mr. Lockhart.

Since there is room for six additional courts by those out by the power house, there are hopes that in the future there may be six added. The old tennis courts north of the Education Building are to be used as a play ground for the children in the training school.

Dr. A. M. Meyer Speaks To Student Body At Assembly Hour Tuesday

Dr. A. M. Meyer of the Educa-

dent body at the assembly hour Tuesday on the subject of "Attitudes."

"Many of the evils of the present economic system may be traced to the attitudes some people have toward their fellowmen and toward their government," was the gist of Dr. Meyer's talk.

This is the first time that Dr.
Meyer has addressed the student body since his arrival at W. T.
last fall.

"IS RICH FIELD"

Deplores Ruthless Con-

"It would be difficult to say what has been the most valuable or significant archaeological discovery made in the past few years," said Dr. Warren K. Moorehead, dean of American archaeologists, during his visit here Friday and Saturday. "There have been many. There are the villages of the ancient mound-builders that were found a few years ago in Ohio. Another is the discovery of a lost civilization that flourished centuries ago in Yucatan. As far as I am concerned, though, the Panhandle of Texas offers the richest field for exploration.
There still remains much to be discovered and written about in this country."

Is Quiet and Kindly
There is about Dr. Moorehead
the quiet, unostentatious air common to those who have achieved.
He has a roundish, partially bald head, and he speaks in a kindly but gruff voice. He is suggestive of just what he is: scholar, scientist, gentleman.

"I hope that in the future, with the promise of increased leisure, archaeology will become more popular as a hobby," he said. "While it may be a dry enough subject to those who view it in the abstract, it is, you may be assured, far from being so when actively engaged in."

Reporter Beset By Many Difficulties In Pursuing Line of Duty Finds Out--Nothing

Long Trek In Search of Professor Ends Dismally

Professor Terrill, brandishing a yardstick with the skill and dexterity of a tailor, said, the first time the reporter found him, that he didn't know how soon the work in the Administration Building would be finished, but he would be able to make an estimation as soon as he finished measuring. And so he turned to his work with the

Later in the afternoon the professor was hunted, after having been given time to finish menspleted work (whichever he happened to have been measuring). From the manual training office to the sewing room of the home economics department and across the other way, the professor was sought.

Everyone in the halls was asked—teachers, students, janitors, all the painters (except the one who fell in the barrel of turpentine). At

"IT'S SMART TO BE SERIOUS"

"In a period like the present when tragic human need and the possibilities of a better world present themselves together, who cannot but feel an heightened interest in public affairs and a wish to pitch in and be a part of them? Perhaps we shall soon hear a new slogan, 'It's smart to be serious.' So says Mrs. Frederick Edey, president of the Girl Scouts of America and one of the leading educators of today.

It's smart to be serious. That, in itself, is an astonishing sentence, when the whole college world of today seems to have decided just the opposite. It seems incredible that many young people come to college and boast of their ignorance after they get here. "Napoleon? Gosh, how should I know? You certainly don't expect me to remember stuff like that!"

Perhaps, students aren't expected to remember such stuff as that. A person cannot build a world upon ideas alone, or upon books, but somewhere in the muddle of all this study young people are going to have to work out their life patterns. Daily the world is being defined for them, and many eds and co-eds are serious a lot of the time, even though it isn't smart, but they are serious surreptitiously, afraid someone will see them and laugh at them for studying, or for asking an intelligent question now and then. They are afraid they will be dropped from "the crowd."

Why has this attitude grown up among American youth when now we need brains and brain trusts more than we ever did? Mrs. Edey suggests that "if you can think, prepare to do it now," but even she realizes that the anathema must be removed from the word "study," and from its cousin, "intelligence," before youth will go into the job wholeheartedly. Youth is deathly afraid of becoming a "grind," and he feels that if he once expresses an intelligent idea he is forever damned.

It may take a long time to change this attitude toward study; it is a conceit of long standing that a person cannot at one and the same time be both sociable and studious. However, we have many examples of such students on our own campus, students who are a part of the social life of the school but who, at the same time, are not afraid to think.

Maybe, by 1954, it will be "smart to be serious."

HOW MANY HAVE YOU READ?

(From the Flor-Ala)

The fifteen finest novels as suggested by Dr. William Phelps, Professor Emeritus of English, Yale University, "looking at the subject from the world standpoint," are: Robinson Crusoe, by Defoe; Culliver's Travels, Swift; Clarissa, Samuel Richardson; The History of Tom Jones, Fielding; Eugenie Grandet, Honore de Balzac; The Three Musketeers, Dumas; David Copperfield, Dickens; The Scarlet Letter, Nathaniel Hawthorne; Henry Esmond, Thackeray; Madame Bovary, Gustave Flaubert; Fathers and Children, Ivan S. Turgenev; Les Misérables, Victor Hugo; Anna Karenina, Tolstoi; The Brothers Karamazov, Dostoevski; Huckleberry Finn, Mark Twain.

There was a time when a work of art must be subjected to the criticism of persons with some background of tradition and culture, but now fifty thousand post cards from fifty thousand morons with a fourth-grade education and a mental level of a ten-year-old child, can make famous over night a singer who couldn't get over the first two rows of a real musical audience. And the tragic part is that some of these over-night-popular-idols live.—William Rainey Bennett in an editorial in The Platform World 41:3, November 1931.

T-Anchor Boys
Broadcast Over
Station KGRS

The T-Anchor Cowboys gave a radio program over Station KGRS in Amarillo, Thursday evening from 6:45 to 7 o'clock.

They were accompanied by Professor T. M. Moore of W. T. They had some trouble in getting there on time because of an argument between Bill Todd and the taxi driver over a quarter, but it was finally settled and they finished the program without further mishaps.

The fame of these musicians has spread far and wide. During the short fifteen minute program twelve request numbers were received from different parts of the Panhandle.

The five cowboy musicians were: Ted Clark, Bill Todd, Ed Todd, "Kid" Young, and "Slats" Weatherby.

Somebody asked me: "Why don't you write a column?"
Somebody asked Socrates: "Why don't you give these bums something to think about?"

It was last July, when the thermometer was hovering at about an average of 115 in the shade. An English class, and Mr. Humphreys, sometimes affectionately, if surreptitiously, referred to as "Pop," trying to induct a roomful of drowsing freshmen into the mysteries of English grammar. And telling the freshmen that grammar must be learned from the ground up. And likening the learning of grammar to a snowball rolling down hill, growing little by little.

"You can't make something out of nothing," he said.

He wasn't talking about columns, remember. But if ever such a highly desirable metamorphosis is consummated, it will be by a newspaper columnist, you may be sure, as witness the sometimes pitiful but notable efforts of even such masters as Comrades Brisbane and McIntyre, not to mention those of La Dix.

It used to be that columns were read. How well I remember! There were funny jokes. There was comment—and sometimes very significant comment—on news of the day. Sometimes there was even poetry. So much for the Golden Age.

Then somebody discovered that columns could be very useful as means of finding lost dogs, of learning about weather conditions, their past, present and future, and as a general means of rendering Service.

It is in this latter commendable role that the perpetrator of the present column hopes to distinguish himself. He will welcome any and all opportunities to help his fellow-creatures in any way he can. He invites correspondence with his readers. He is prepared to offer advice to millions, yea, billions. Politics, business, philosophy, it makes no difference. He even has under consideration a Service that will be of untold benefits to millions of his readers, especially the young and pretty ones.

He refers, young ladies, to an Advice to the Lovelorn Service.

In order that this valuable Service may be rendered promptly and expertly, the management has secured, at enormous expense, the talents and experience of that accomplished roue and bon vivant, John Davidson, who will render such Service in a manner befitting a gentleman.

The management almost forgot to mention that Comrade Davidson is, another good columnist.

But the management reserves the right to ignore or refuse to consider certain queries, requests and contributions. After all, there is a limit to everything, and you can't expect too much from the post office department.

So, in this connection the management issues the following warning: That any and all such queries, requests and contributions which shall in any way relate or pertain to Mae West, Lydia E. Pinkham, stamp collecting or the growing of pansies, shall be regretfully but firmly turned over to the Dean of Men.

Beyond that, the sky is the limit.

Thunder and dawn emanating from the celebrated town of Baltimore; under the sign manual of the eminent Dr. Mencken, as published by Liberty;

Very few members of Brain Trusts have ever died, so to speak, with their brains on.

No, Algernon, I haven't run out of soap yet, no matter what you think. The shears and paste pot will be used often, and, we hope, wisely, in this column, the management being of the strange and perverted opinion that a column doesn't have to be Original To Be Good.

ATTENTION! SESAMES!

Special interest is to be added to the Sesame Literary meetings by a perfect attendance honor roll. The attendance is to be checked by response to the roll call. The response for the next meeting is a favorite literary quotation. At the end of the first half semester an honor roll will be announced. A special entertainment is in store for those attaining this goal. This contest will begin March 8, and continue through the remainder of the first half-semester.

EDNA GRAHAM—

but it must be fused with something higher if we are to turn out men and women the world needs. Scholarship is often antagonistic to health, a menace to society, politically a graft, the cause of emotional unhappiness, the urge of suicide, the cause of social disagreeableness, the making of men and women unfit for home and marriage. The emphasis should be shifted to character. With the fusion of scholarship and character, more and more we can point to the honor graduate who is sensitive to the needs of society and imbued with the spirit of service. We must fuse scholarship on the one hand with the development of personality and character on the other."

The main issue of the meeting was expansion of the organized scholarship societies. Dr. Gooden of Hendrix College and Chairman of the Committee on Expansion gave the report of the Committee citing the fact that the policy of expansion, to be successful, must have features conducive to expansion into wider territory. "The need of an organization of this type is recognized by many institutions who have no such organizations. Here, seems to be the most favorable field for enlisting chapters through a well formulated and executed policy of territorial expansion, possibly into only the adjoining states, Kansas, Oklahoma, and Missouri, at the present time." A constitution embodying provisions for carrying out the above policy was presented to the Council and accepted as the governing machine of the organization.

"Internationalism"

The central theme of the meeting was "Internationalism." An address by Miss Bessie Shook on "Noah's Children" was a climax to the activities of the first session. "Internationalism," said Miss Shook, "has to do with the interplay of national units. There can be no internationalism without the existence first of nationalism, which itself is of comparatively recent origin." Proceeding from the time of Noah's children, Shem, the yellow; Ham who was black; and Japhet who was white, Miss Shook traced the development of the races, radical relations leading to the evolution of national and international feeling in the peoples of America, England, Germany, Russia, Japan, and China, showing that "internationalism is everybody's business."

Another aspect of Internationalism was presented by President John Lord of Texas Christian University whose subject was "World Peace" in which he pointed out that "a warless world has been the greatest moral achievement of the human race" by introducing and criticizing such ineffective agencies as diplomacy, organized mechanisms, and philosophers in their attempts to establish a universal peace. He said that world peace must come as a result of the formation of a great world pattern of behavior in which credibility, sincerity, and trust operate in a common cause for the perpetuation of a universal peace.

Still a different phase of "Internationalism" was shown by Dr. Rebecca Smith of Texas Christian University in her address on "Iliac to David" which proved to be an international episode in scholarship. She defined internationalism as a "great idea, beginning with the basic conception of a world community; today, internationalism means a world union based on the fruitful sharing of the fruits of the earth with and for the use of all the peoples of the earth."

Twenty-Six Chapters Present

On the roll of thirty chapters in the organization, twenty-six were present with faculty and student delegates representing Arkansas, Louisiana, and Texas.

The National Council and Chapter delegates, thinking that a Greek letter name would be essential to the success of the newly instituted policy of expansion, chose the name Alpha Chi, symbolizing truth and character in preference to an English name.

Assumes Responsibility

Miss Edna Graham of the West Texas State Teachers College in being elected president of Alpha Chi, assumes the great responsibility of guiding the organization in its formative period of expansion. In keeping with the new policy, Quachita College of Arkansas was chosen host to the Council in 1935.

The Thirteenth Annual Meeting of the Scholarship Societies of the South, now Alpha Chi was an inspirational meeting viewed in the interest of furthering the claims of scholarship together with truth and character throughout the states of our nation.

Happy Morons
Going Strong

Well folks, just as we promised you, we are able at this time to give a complete resume of the activities of the HAPPY MORONS, and in addition, a complete roll of the members, both old and new, which is a very good thing.

Before we go into the more serious discussion of the purpose and business both finished and unfinished, of our club, we wish at this time to publicly commend our chairman of the HOW-TO-BE-A-HAPPY-MORON committee and his most able assistant, for the most sincere attentiveness they have shown in the past few weeks, in the early dawn of our organization. They devoted all their spare time to perfecting the plans for the years work of our band of comrades. Really, dear readers, you have no idea of the hard work and stick-to-it-iveness these fellows have shown. And we must also commend the assistant to the vice-president.

To quote from a personal interview our reporter had with the vice president, "Mr. Pittman has shown remarkable fortitude and intelligence, far beyond his years, in his never tiring assistance to me in the dark hour of our organization. Ah! but those were dark days, but thanks to my steadfast chum, Bill, as I'm fond of calling him, I find that nearly all the pressure has been lifted from my already overburdened shoulders, and I wish to again state my heartiest thanks to him."

We are happy to note the interest taken in our club and now we have the complete roll of officers and loving members: Lewis Shirley, president; Whitman Fish, vice president; Farris Sears, secretary; Bill Pittman, assistant to the vice president; James Stone, chairman of the how-to-be-a-nappy-moron-committee; Carroll Boyd, assistant to Mr. Stone; and last but not least, good old George (Cheezy) Manning, our most able parliamentarian.

The active members are: Gene Smalley, Connie Wayland, Margaret Cooper, Polly Shelton, Yvonne Thomas, Zula Gae Warner, Whiskey Higgins, Miles McGehee, Estrall McElroy, Dan Aynesworth, The Mills Brothers, Hershel Hamill, James Compton, Mackie Greer, Vivian Bennett, The Helton Sisters, Thomas Kell Newberry, and Felton K. King.

Next week we hope to be able to announce the results of the present list of applicants as well as more of our plans for the coming year, also, don't forget to send in your name, both for admission, and for a chance at the big prize to be given away, free, at a soon-to-be-announced date, but more next week. Watch for it.

The casualty column in the Monday newspapers should be a reminder that he who drives carefully lives to drive another day.

LE MIRAGE Previews

Dear Willy:

It ain't a fit night out fer man er beast, don't you think so? I do—for this cold weather isn't what I'd order, if I had any choice in the matter.

The good ol' annual is coming along with much vim and vitality. Our co-worker, Martha Nell, is all in a flutter, on account that so much is being done which makes it look as if the Annual will be out before we know it. And won't that be something?

About one-half of the copy has been sent to the printers for the last trip, which means that this is the last and final trip for copy. After it goes to the printer this time, it goes from there to the book-binders who complete the book and then we have—LE MIRAGE—a brand new, bigger than ever, 1934 model.

I saw you slipping around very happily at Randall's George Washington party last Thursday night. It looks like the two girls' halls should have more and more affairs.

In looking over my files, I find that you and I have been appointed as officials on the newly formed Happy Moron's Club. That makes me very happy, since I hear that the big meeting will be held next Tuesday evening in the main auditorium—so until then, Butch, be a good little fellow.

Your little Pal.

Two Teams Meet Happy

Saturday evening, February 10, the W. T. Calves and W. T. girls played a double header with the Jacks and Jackettes, respectively.

The W. T. Calves were off, from when they dropped to the Jacks by the score of 22-46. Co-captain Don Savage played a good game for the Calves and was second high-point man. Captain Barnard, big Happy center, was said to be the best man on the floor and was high-point man. The Jacks controlled most of the tip-offs and kept the ball in their possession most of the time.

The W. T. girls had better luck than the Calves for their first encounter of the season, by dropping to the Happy girls by the narrow margin of 19-21.

The Happy game was for some of the Canyon girls, the first regulation basketball game they had ever taken part in. Twelve girls made the trip, and each one of them saw service during some part of the game. While all the girls played a good game for beginners, Sarah Frances Smith and Inez Miller were outstanding for the W. T. High squad.

Public Speaking Class Presents Program at CCC Camp

As a practice teaching project, Mrs. Alene McCollum, of Amarillo, directed a program presented at the CCC Camp Friday evening by the public speaking class. Two trucks from the camp conveyed the players to and from Palo Duro. The pantomime-play "A Bachelor's Dream," and the play "The Crystal Gazer," formerly given in Assembly here, were again presented. During the evening several musical numbers were rendered by John McNeill, Bomar Brown, and Carl Neighbors on Spanish and Hawaiian guitars. Readings were given by Troy Alexander, Neva Robbins, Sarah Frances Smith, Lucius Penick, Mrs. Alene McCollum, and by Ellen Lois Cleavinger, who also announced the program. Before the group sang the high school song, which was the closing number, Sarah Frances Smith introduced each student, telling his name, home town, and some characteristic, in humorous rhymed verse.

Stage arrangements were in charge of Jake Witherspoon and Thomas Ziegler.

After the program the students were escorted to the mess hall, where delightful refreshments of chocolate cake, peaches, and cocoa and coffee were served.

Latin Club Entertained

The Inter Nos Club was entertained Wednesday evening at the home of Bonne Rhea Whittenburg. During a short business session Cato Merchant was elected vice president of the club, and Nell Green and Helene Oliver were appointed program chairmen.

Following the business meeting, a Valentine program was given. Mary McCaslin explained the origin and history of Valen-

Dorothy Brown won the prize for writing the best short story with a Roman setting; and Mary McCaslin was awarded the prize in a vocabulary game.

While the guests played games of hearts, valentines to be translated into English were distributed to the guests, before a delicious refreshment course was served by the hostess, assisted by her sister, Mattie Pearl Whittenburg.

Here are a few Valentine tidbits to be remembered:

Given by: J. T. Sykes, Wayne McNeill, Joe D. Whittenburg, and Elvin Riddling (C. O. D.)

Received by: Elora Duncan, Ellen Lois Cleavinger, Virginia Murray.

So Virginia Murray and Agnes Smith are both claiming "Elvinian" honors, are they? Just who did he come to see, anyhow?

Mary McCaslin's most embarrassing moment. She ran (hugging the ball from one end of the court to the other! She says it was just a case of getting her basketball and football mixed.

Cato (Merchant) and Juno (Gwinn) were seen together at the Sophomore party. Ye gods!

Miss Ritchie suggests "rubber fastenings" for the basketball girls' clothing. We admit the "stretch" would prevent accidents.

The Seniors were quite shocked to discover a poem in their English literature written "On a Girle." Don't feel so bad Seniors, you merely misinterpreted the word.

Agnes Smith (in class, to the algebra teacher): "Say, this graph reminds me of a pair of long handled underwear."

Helpful hints: Boys, Nell wants to get married! It seems that according to a certain fortune teller, (see Sam Burton), she is doomed to be a store keeper for ten years of her life; and then she is to be matron of an orphan's home; but she insists that she will marry instead.

BUFFALOES TO TAKE ROAD
INTO OKLAHOMA THIS WEEKHerd Anxious To Defeat
Teachers At Alva,
Weatherford

Finishing their scheduled season, the West Texas State Teachers College Buffaloes will take to the road and journey into Oklahoma, where they will take on the powerful Northwestern Teachers of Alva and the Southwestern Teachers of Weatherford.

The Herd will attempt to unbalance the even stand which the Alva boys took when they split a two-game series here with the Buffaloes early in the season.

The Southwestern team is rated above the Buffs since they drubbed the Herd soundly in the first game of the season. However, in the second game, the Buffs were barely edged out by a 26-25 score. They will enter the Bulldogs' territory with blood in their eye and determination in their hearts.

This four game series, to be played March 5, 6, 7, and 8, will close the season of the first Buffalo team since 1921 that was not coached by "Sad Sam" Burton, mentor who put West Texas on the basketball map. So far Coach Carl York, former W. T. Coach of the Calves, has had a fairly successful season, having won 5 games and lost 6.

BISON BULL

By Fizz n' Fuzz

We are just like famous Irvin Cobb. We put out this column at the rate of 1/4 inch every 18 hours. But ain't it hooha when we get it out?

Design for Living

Did you see it? We made the remark that it was r-rotten, and George Brewer replied, "I'll say, but gee, I liked it!" One little Freshie girl said that her mother advised her not to see this show, and that was why she went. That's the best publicity in the world, advice against something because it is not good for your morals.

Of Course They Haven't Been

We heard a request over the radio yesterday from Maxine and Mildred asking that "Have You Ever Been Lonely?" be sung and dedicated to the CCC Camp boys. That's funny. How could those guys be lonely when they have been a gift to some of the lonely college co-eds all winter?

The persons who located those camps so close to a co-ed school must have been licensed romance-promoters. No doubt.

Charles Burk tells Leonard McMurray (the fish who has made a bust of Roosevelt) that the only thing he has left to do now is find a guy who looks like the bust.

Tennis Season
Will Begin Here
Monday Morning

The regular tennis season for the West Texas Buffalo squad will begin Monday. All the squad members will begin active workouts on that day.

About fourteen men reported early in this semester when a call for those interested was issued. The team usually consists of from four to six men, though the traveling squad is only four men.

Coach W. E. Lockhart expects a fair team, but not such an outstanding one as those which carried the Maroon and White to glory prior to the past two years of discontinuance of the game as a college sport here.

A strong interest has been shown by the freshmen in tennis, and it is highly probable that a freshman squad will be organized.

may register with the Placement Committee.

Members of the committee believe that every enrollment should be accompanied by two commercial photographs.

These photographs enable superintendents to get an impression of the proposed teacher if she or he cannot be found at the moment, help the members of the committee to place the applicant if he or she is not well known to them, and make it possible to send an application for position without delay when this is necessary.

Students are especially requested to ask to enroll only at the hours set aside by the Bureau of Public Service for this purpose.

Knows International Problems.

Miss Jones is one of the best informed women in the world on International Problems. She was connected with American Embassy in Berlin in 1911-1912.

For seven summers she traveled in Mexico and Europe to study conditions in Geneva, The Hague, Austria, Hungary and Czechoslovakia, as well as in Germany, France and Great Britain. Her first direct contact with Latin-American affairs was made in 1915-1916 when she attended the Latin-American Scientific Congress in Washington. In February 1930, she attended the International Congress of Universities held at the University of Mexico, where she met the political, educational, and social leaders of Mexico.

Studies in Saar Basin

In the summer of 1931 Miss Jones made an intensive study of conditions in the Saar Basin, visited the International Bank at Basle, Switzerland, and talked with many of the officers and leaders of opinion both in the Saar and in the Bank. In Geneva she attended sessions of the Assembly of the League of Nations, the Council, the Commission on European Union, as well as meetings of the Federation Internationale Universitaire, League of Nation Societies and other student conferences in Geneva.

During the first part of 1932 Miss Jones went around the world, visiting and organizing International Relations Clubs in Hawaii, Japan, Korea, China, Siam, Iraq, and Syria. She was in Mukden when the excitement over the Manchurian situation was intense, and arrived in Shanghai just as the fighting around Chapel ceased. Her book, "An Amiable Adventure" describing her travels around the world was published by Macmillan in 1933. Before returning to the United States, Miss Jones visited England and Scotland, attended meetings of the Disarmament Conference in Geneva, and spent some time in Paris.

Mr. Ernst Uiberall will speak on "The Problem of Austria."

Will Battle For Honor of Entering State
Meet

The Texas Interscholastic League Regional Basketball Tourney, a new innovation, will be held for the first time in Canyon under the sponsorship of West Texas State Teachers College, Friday and Saturday.

The four strongest teams of the entire Panhandle will come from the four new districts and battle for the honor of entering the State Basketball Tournament at Austin. These teams were decided last week end, Amarillo coming from District One, of which Amarillo is the center; Hedley from District Two, with Pampa as the center; Lamesa from the Lubbock District, number three; and Crowell from the Childress Meet, which decided the winner of the fourth district.

According to the drawings held here by Coach Carl York of W. T. S. T. C., who is the athletic director of this region of the League, Amarillo will meet Crowell in the first game and Hedley will meet Lamesa. These games will be played at 2:30 and 3:45 Friday afternoon in Burton Gym.

The tournament is to be held on the double elimination system. There will be two more games starting at 7:00 p. m. Friday, a semi-final match at 10:00 a. m. Saturday, and the finals at 8:00 p. m. Saturday.

The trophy will be a full size silver basketball on a pedestal. The trophy was presented by West Texas State Teachers College.

The admission to the games will be 25 cents to any series or 50 cents for a season ticket.
