BUDGET GETS FAVORABLE HEARING BEFORE STATE BOARD OF CONTROL

'BULLDOG' JONES TO COACH LINE HERE THIS FALL

Graduate With Class of '25 Signed to Aid Eckhardt

GOOD RECORD AS CANYON HI COACH

Will Also Teach in Department of Physical Education

Mitchell W. (Bulldog) Jones, B. A. '25, has been named to succeed Alvin R. Jackson as assistant coach of athletics here. Jones was named at a meeting of the Committee on Athletics early last week.

Jones coached the Canyon High School Eagles last year and made one of the best records with his teams in the Interscholastic League. His football team was runner up in the district race, and his basketball team won great praise from sport critics all over the state. The team placed fourth in the Interscholastic League tourney.

Bulldog Jones is known as the "biggest little man" in West Texas football. He played four years as a regular linesman on the Buffalo squad. His fight and enthusiasm has been praised highly and his record as a football player is one consistent in gameness and ability. Jones will be line coach under Oscar Eckhardt this fall and will assist in general physical education work throughout the year.

League of Six Teams to Battle For The Championship

ASSISTANT COACH

"Bulldog" Jones
W. Mitchell Jones, famed Buffalo linesman and graduate with the Class of 1925, who has been named Os Eckhardt's assistant. Jones will coach the Buffalo line this season and his record as a coach and player is indicative of splendid results with the forwards.

SENIORS PLAY TO FULL HOUSE

What Happened to Jones Favorite With a Big Crowd

"What Happened to Jones" was watched by a crowded house that enthusiastically approved of each happening last Thursday evening. The play, a three act farce by George H. Broadhurst, was presented by the senior class, and the cast was drawn from members of the class.

"What Happened to Jones" is one of the older modern farces, having been originally produced in 1906. It is the amusing story of a college professor who is lured to a prize fight, and, like the good sport he was, left his dignity behind him. An offer from the professor to lay $250 on the fight brings the police down on the house. The professor, accompanied by his prospective son-in-law, escape by climbing down a drain pipe. They are followed to their residence by Jones, a salesman of hymnbooks and playing cards.

Jones, having arrived on the scene, causes things to happen in short order and in mirthful fashion. The professor is expecting a visit from a brother who is the Bishop of Ballarat, and Jones is forced to assume the Bishop's newly made costume in order to escape arrest at the hands of the police who follow him to the professor's home.

Jones is received by the professor's family as the Bishop of Ballarat while the professor suffers in anguish because he is forced to shield Jones in order to conceal his own whereabouts. A black eye, received in dodging the police, adds to the poor prof's troubles but he proves game to the end.

Jones proves himself a master when the Bishop arrives and asks for his brother. Jones lures him to a room in the house and the Bishop sends his clothes out to be pressed and asks for his new outfit; the tailor fails to return with them and Jones rests easy in the meantime. Alvina, sister of the professor's wife, in love with the Bishop through a rapid fire correspondence course totaling 500 letters, adds to Jones troubles by accepting him as the Bishop and demanding to be loved without delay. Jones does it, half-heartedly and in poor taste, but he saves himself from arrest.

And then comes the neat climax, when all is discovered, Jones revealed, and the amazing crosswork of the plot uncovered. The police are forced to cancel their avowed engagement with Jones, and, of course, the curtain descends on a happy scene; Jones being one of the happiest because his arms are around Cissy, a spunky young girl who is the professor's ward.

Although the production was strictly an amateur one, it lacked many of the "ear-marks" of the usual amateur production. But two of the players had previous dramatic experience. The action moved swiftly and without any rough spots to mar the execution. (CONTINUED ON PAGE FOUR)

VISIT PAID NORTH PLAINS PIONEER

Mrs. G. W. Arrington Loans Valuable Records to Museum

Evetts Haley, field representative of the Panhandle-Plains Historical Society, spent last week interviewing well-known pioneers in Amarillo, Panhandle, Pampa, Miami, and Canadian. Haley reports a successful trip. Among the men interviewed were the first Panhandle banker, and the first newspaper publisher in this territory. Mrs. G. W. Arrington, wife of Captain Arrington, was also interviewed by Haley.

Judge Paul of Panhandle, who established the first bank in this region at Panhandle, Texas, was interviewed by Haley in regard to the financial development of the Panhandle. E. E. Carhart, editor and publisher of the first newspaper in the Panhandle who is now at Panhandle, Texas, was also interviewed. Mr. Carhart's paper was printed at Old Clarendon in the early eighties.

Raised Cabbage

T. D. Hobart, a life member of the Society, living at Pampa, was seen by Haley. Mr. Hobart is actively identified with all projects intended to further the work of the Society. Haley also saw Jess Wynne, and Alex Schneider, two old-timers who came to this section in the early days. Schneider is a native of Switzerland, and came to Texas in the eighties. He settled at Mobeetie and raised an immense crop of cabbage his first year in that town. The yield was so large that the citizens of the town could not carry it all away. So Schneider made great quantities of it into sauer kraut. The cabbage averaged around sixteen pounds to the head.

The recently discovered Indian graves near Miami were inspected by Haley and he also questioned the pioneers of that town in regard to their discovery and probable explanation. J. A. Mead took out a membership in the society while Haley was in Miami. Mead is interested, also, in the Indian history. Judge J. E. Kinney of Miami also joined the Society. In addition to these (CONTINUED ON PAGE FOUR)

ARMENTROUT TO LECTURE HERE

Greely Man Added to Plains Institute Instructors

W. D. Armentrout, nationally known educator from Greeley, Colorado, has been secured for the Plains Institute which opens at Canyon August 30. Dr. Armentrout has announced that he will lecture on "An Outlook or a Backlook—Our Yesterdays and Tomorrows," "How Can We Believe Anything and Have an Open Mind" and other subjects of vital importance to the growing teacher. Dr. Armentrout will appear twice each day of the week before the intermediate grade teachers, taking up with them the specific problems of their grades. There will be about 300 teachers in the sections which Dr. Armentrout will meet.

Miss Hazel Allen left Thursday for Austin to spend the remainder of the summer.

Mrs. Guile entertained her girls and their friends with a picnic supper at Wragges last Thursday.

McKINNEY HERE FOR SERIES OF TEACHING TALKS

Noted Authority on Education Will Spend Week Here

ON SECOND VISIT TO THIS COLLEGE

Author of "Personality of the Teacher" Will Lecture To-day

President McKinney of the Michigan State Teachers College arrived in Canyon last evening for a series of lectures. Dr. McKinney was scheduled to appear before a special session of the faculty yesterday but failed to make train connections. His first talk was made at the chapel hour today.

Dr. McKinney is in the foremost rank of American educators and is widely known for his work in behalf of the teaching profession. He is the author of "The Personality of the Teacher" and editor of "American Schoolmaster," a magazine devoted almost exclusively to the interest of the teacher.

Dr. McKinney is an enthusiastic advocate of the development of leaders of men through the process of education. "A leader is the greatest gift of God to mankind," and "the story of any great movement is the story of the biographies of great men" are two statements of Dr. McKinney's that point to his interest in the development of the individual pupil into the best of which he is capable.

Progress is the work of leaders, Dr. McKinney believes. "The world gets on because a genius, who is always the leader, discovers the next step of progress, moves himself forward, and leads the race to the new, advanced plane. All anxiety for the welfare of the race has root in the fear that a genius will not be born."

The teachers relation to leadership is clearly shown by Dr. McKinney. He believes that the teacher is a real leader, and defines leadership as the feat of arousing into action the powers instilled by nature. Enthusiasm, Dr. McKinney believes, is the most contagious thing in the world for stimulating leadership.

"The work of the teacher is more than that of dispensing enlightening facts. The directing of the moulding of every character (CONTINUED ON PAGE FOUR)

MILLION AND HALF PROGRAM PRESENTED FORCEFULLY AT AUSTIN BY PREXY

West Texas State Teachers College needs were presented to the State Board of Control at Austin last week by President J. A. Hill, Speaker Lee Satterwhite of the House, Travis Shaw, and Prof. W. R. Clark. Martin O. Flowers, member of the Teachers College Board of Regents also spoke to the Board of Control in the interest of the College here.

Speaker Lee Satterwhite made a more forceful appeal to the control board than any state institution, according to members of the party from Canyon.

That the needs of the West Texas State Teachers College were very urgent to care for the fast-growing section of the State, and that the Panhandle was producing more wealth and more taxes for the state government, were forcefully presented to the Board of Control, Friday in Austin by Speaker Lee Satterwhite of the House of Representatives, who accompanied President J. A. Hill, Wallace R. Clark and Travis Shaw to the meeting. Mr. Satterwhite's appeal to the Board of Control was characterized by members of the party as the strongest and most logical present to this budget making body by any of the schools. Martin O. Flowers, president of the Board of Regents, followed Mr. Satterwhite, presenting especially the needs of the West Texas State Teachers College, while at the same time urging sufficient appropriations for all of the Teachers Colleges.

The hearing before the Board of Control was highly satisfactory, according to members of the party from here. The West Texas State Teachers College was given the most prominent place in the hearing, as all eight teachers colleges recognized that the needs of this institution were by far the greatest. Two hours were given to the hearing of this College, while the other seven took about thirty minutes each.

The salary schedule for all of the Teachers Colleges was presented by President J. A. Hill and President R. L. Marquis, of Denton. The presidents asked that the salaries be placed upon the same scale as C. I. A. and other colleges doing the same class of work as is done in the Teachers Colleges.

President Hill explained to the Board of Control the charts which were made from the report of the Educational Survey two years ago, showing that the West Texas State Teachers College has made the greatest growth of any educational institution in Texas, and showing the needs of the College.

Wallace R. Clark presented the needs of the institution so far as the building program and relations to other institutions were concerned. Mr. Flowers told the Board of Control of his visit here recently. The school had received no buildings since 1916, and had outgrown the facilities.

Great wealth in oil and wheat produced within the area tributary to the West Texas State Teachers College at Canyon entitles that institution to consideration in making appropriations for the next biennium, the State Board of Control was told by Lee Satterwhite.

Mr. Satterwhite pointed out that the Canyon territory raised 20,000,000 bushels of wheat this year and is paying State taxes on land that has great productive value; also that it is the center of a great oil producing area, paying $1,000, daily in gross oil production tax and that it will soon be paying $3,000 a day to the State. These things he asserted entitle the College to some consideration. He pointed out how, when the college was first established, it was in a comparatively sparsely settled section with limited development. Now it has thousands who want to send their children to schools where the best education and the best facilities are available. He argued that these people are entitled to first class education since their taxes have grown large and more than enough to uphold their pro rata burden of the government. (CONTINUED ON PAGE FOUR)

Those Umbrellas

An umbrella (or is the feminine term parasol?) sails up the sidewalk in front of some co-ed, and we are struck by a vague feeling that we are acquainted with its inhabitant. We decide that it must be she, decide that it is not, change our mind half a dozen times, and wish she would lift that thing out of the way. We wonder whether to speak, and in our embarrassment get in the middle of the walk. On discovering our position we crow-hop with a stammering apology—and a perfect stranger passes by! We've heard they can even see through the things, and observe our embarrassment. When we get to the legislature—!

The fellow who burns his barn to kill the rats may be crazy, but on the other hand he may be just carrying fire insurance.

And we presume that the pitcher without control gets balled out.

Bryan or Columbus or somebody said, "Go west, young man." We have an idea that it would highly gratify him to see his advice taken so wholeheartedly by the chivalry of our institution about noon every day.

And this has always puzzled us: does ye ed say "we" when he pays admission to a show?

The star athlete of our boarding house says he has not done any training this summer except for the trip to Amarillo, and even then he came back a la flivver.

Mary found a little mouse
Behind her closet door;
A scream—a quick informal climb—
And mouseie had the floor!

Miss Fortune was at home to a number of her friends last Saturday. The guests were entertained with numerous guessing contests and games of chance. Assorted alphabetical favors were distributed by the hostess.

HERM WILL COACH AT OLNEY THE COMING YEAR

Captain O. P. Herm of last year's Buffalo team has been elected coach of the Olney high school for the coming year. Herm is an outstanding athlete of the College, having lettered in football, basketball and tennis. He was all-T. I. A. A. guard for two years.

Herm has been assistant in the commercial department of the College, and will teach in this department of the Olney high school as well as coach athletics. He receives his degree from the college at the end of the summer.

Wheat Yield Is Averaging 35 Bushels

Wheat harvest is practically complete in Randall County, with the average yield for the county ranging around thirty-five bushels per acre. County agent Jennings states that complete figures will not be available for several more days.

The wheat has been cut by combines in most instances, and the stubble is so high that disposing of it is a difficult task; some farmers are burning the stubble before plowing; others are plowing then cross-plowing in order to conserve the fertility of the soil.

FIRST AID TO VOCALISTS

From canary breeders we learn that a bird may be taught to sing by placing a basin of water in its cage. A cake of soap and a bath towel would undoubtedly make the temptation irresistible.—Judge.

BISON BULL (PEDIGREED) BRAND

By Squint

Watermelons is getting as scarce as old fashioned buggy whips, and a whole lot more expensive.

Scandal and Pictures

How these big newspapers get out their sheets of scandal and news each day beats us. Of course we understand that the editors alternate, each one writing every other day, but think of the other fellows whose work comes every day. There are 365 days in every year and sometimes 366, and newspaper men must practice, develop, and print everything new each one of these days. Compare the work done on any school's annual publication with a Sunday newspaper and the relative length of time allowed for the development of each.

Style Notes

The less hair the better. It hampers one's freedom of style. Too much hair is rapidly going out, but Listerine will stop it. Ankle braces are still being worn just above the arch of the foot.

Now that brandy can't be procured to burn on fruit cakes, smart hostesses find that kerosene will do as well.

College students are finding that alarm clocks are the surest way of maintaining prestige with the seven-thirty faculty.

Well, we're just about to get our next governor elected, and we're glad that soon all the ruckus will be over. Most folks think more about the election than the installation of the man or woman into office, and their duties that follow. Our duty doesn't end then, for most folks consider it their duty to be severely gripped with the outcome, and to cuss the governor for everything he or she does. 'Tis a great country for Dimmycrats, and hooray for the Ripoblicans.

The Canyon Clowns

The Canyon Clown Independent baseball team registered another win against Plainview early this week. This is its ninth consecutive win, with no losses. Big "Os" Eckhardt is managing the team, hitting well over 400, and has pitched his squad to three wins. No, there won't be any games here this summer, because we don't have a baseball park. Canyon and this school are getting a lot of free advertising of the right sort, and the business men recognize it, for C. O. Keiser has led the business men in generosity by offering to secure as many pitchers as Eckhardt needs when he enters the News-Globe Tournament in Amarillo soon.

Borger, the so-called tough town to the north of us in the oil field isn't incorporated yet, so the boys there couldn't vote in the gubernatorial election. Too bad, too bad, they say they had a tornado up there last week, though, so everybody is satisfied, and the result on the town is the same.

Sister Susie broke a record the other day as she watched a runner tearing down the course. This didn't happen at a track meet, though, for the record was "Al-ways" and the runner was in her stocking.

"Snortin' Sada," our automobile that the editor kids us about is no more, folks. She took down with the carburetoritis, and we sold the wench. She was truly the most expensive girl to keep up that we ever "went with." She constantly demanded attention, foot trouble being her chief difficulty, and we didn't own a pump, the only remedy for this automobile malady. Well, anyway, any darned fool can own a car, but it takes a financier or a crook to run one. We thank you.

Names and Names

It seems to be a characteristic of humanity to name that with which it is closely associated. Whether endowed with life or not, that thing which has a tendency to grow into the life of one is often endowed with a name. Anonymity is shunned. Thus the child names its doll, the boy his dog, the cowboy his horse, and the woman her car. The names tend toward a cycle. The child calls its favorite doll Elizabeth, Nancy, or something else equally simple. The boy, in his simple, straightforward way, looks at the amputated posterior member of his pet and calls him "Bob," or at his pug nose and calls him "Bulger," and so on.

The horse, often sole companion and confidant of the cowboy, often falls heir to such names as Cole Younger, Jesse James, or Coyote. But the affection elicited by the owners of such names is in indirect proportion to the offensive character of the titles themselves. The ladies call their cars Elligabeth, Suzanne, or Steve. And thus the cycle is completed.

Far be it from the Panhandle-Plains Historical Society to fall behind in the habit of bestowing names. While our mind is not so fecund in nomenclature as some, nevertheless we have found one expressive of our feelings. The remnant of a Ford used by this organization has been christened, for short, "Nebuchadnezzar." The christening was not done in the orthodox way by smashing a bottle of grape juice over her radiator cap, but it's more or less legal anyway.

Everyone wonders why the Society is so anxious to gather other relics, since it has such a good one in its official car. The answer is easy. If the old wreck will bear up under a name like that, it is bound to be running in a worthy cause. But after all, what's in a name. A pole cat, by any other title, would doubtless be just as sweet.

Names on the Frontier

The frontier has always been the land of promise for those daring souls who are worth their salt and pepper. There the past was blotted out. The future opened with hope. One of the conventions of the West was "no questions asked." It mattered not if you were the great-grand-nephew of the Von Sauer Krants, or the first cousin of the Earl Hamanaigs if you couldn't drink your whiskey straight or hammer your deacon into the middle of next week when he intimated you were a born horse-thief, you were a nonentity in the robust society of the West. Nothing was cared for blood, title, or past condition of servitude. If you couldn't saddle your own bronc and tend to your own business then your rise in frontier business circles was slow and stormy. It was not "who you are" but "what you could do" that counted. Rise in the estimation of your fellow man was based upon ability to do, not upon ability.

WHERE THE STUDENTS FEEL AT HOME

SERVICE

WHERE THE STUDENTS FEEL AT HOME

ity to shake hands, to be always agreeable and to never disagree with the established order of things. As simple as is the frontier code of etiquette, it is particularly commendable in that it required every man to attend his own business and placed a "dampener" upon the habitual asker of questions. If the code was broken, a new hole was excavated in some growing boot-hill graveyard, the offender was dumped in, and the others asked no questions. Thus was the way paved for civilization.

Individualism

The shibboleth of an efficient business world is standardization. Its counterpart in the social world is conformity. Both are more or less at variance with the essential American tradition. The individual is submerged in the stampede to be all alike. If a workman does not fit into the place which is open for him in a great industrial machine, he is without a job. If he is unwilling to "tune" himself to the requirements of standardization, he is often classed among the "unskilled workers" to which class he often brings much respectability and honor. Certainly standardization has its advantages but it should not carry with it standardization of thought, hopes, and ideals.

In a social, and, often, in an intellectual way, conformity is the rule. If one breaks the social niceties of the age, the heavens tremble. If an individual, by accident, has a thought that is not in conformity he is a radical, an out and out Bolshevik who would blow up a town or shove little ducks into the water. And so it goes. Anyone who has a thought should think again and never express it.

Turn back down the trail until you reach the year 1880. At that time life in West Texas was elemental. Nonconformity was the rule, not the exception. If you didn't believe footprints of several million years past, were made on the sands of time but on "ellum" trees, you were not pushed out of a job to starve to death. Everyone might think you crazy, but what did it matter! If you didn't eat your beans with your knife, you were not considered socially hopeless but somewhat of a jelly-bean. In nothing was the individual lost sight of. The man was paramount. The individualistic philosophy of the pioneers was productive of some harm, but it ripened into much that was good. It has given us much that is truly American. It stands for the sanctity of the individual.

Calliham Buys Jarrett Drug—Invoice Monday

Floyd Calliham has bought the Jarrett Drug Company of C. H. Jarrett and T. V. Reeves, possession to be given next week when the inventory is completed.

Mr. Calliham is a young business man of this city, having been connected with several firms, and has also been a student in the college. He has leased the Bradford building now occupied by the Canyon Tailoring Company, and will move the drug store to this location on September first.

Mr. Jarrett will remain with the business for the present, while Mr. Reeves has no plans for the immediate future.

The second quarter of the summer session opened Monday with an increase of 81 new students in attendance.

The total attendance for the summer will run practically the same as last year, which is highly pleasing to members of the faculty.

The summer normal examinations will close today, and the special instructors who have been here for this work will leave tomorrow.

Annadel Guenther's Engagement Announced

Miss Annadel Guenther's engagement to Mr. Albert Ward was announced at a lovely tea given by Miss Guenther's mother at her home last Monday afternoon. Miss Guenther was assisted by Miss Faye Jordan in receiving the guests. They suffered the first step in the initiation process last Saturday at the chapel period when they were compelled to march into the auditorium carrying umbrellas and suitcases and wearing placard on their backs which designated from which states they had come. Amid the stares of the curious they seated themselves on the front row and calmly ate their sandwiches and apples as they had been bidden to do. ## Budget

Appropriations for new buildings at Canyon were declared to be an emergency because their needs is so pressing. He predicted that if the Control Board makes favorable recommendations to relieve the emergency at Canyon the Legislature will stand behind it, as it did last time, when the board's budget was not materially changed by the Legislature. New structures requested include an educational building with equipment to cost $325,000, $200,000 for a library and arts building, $175,000 for a science building, $25,000 for remodeling and $150,000 for an athletic park, grandstand and equipment.

Dr. H. H. Harrington, chairman of the board, asked Mr. Satterwhite how far the board should go in recommending appropriations; that is, how much of a reserve should be kept in expected revenues to take care of new ventures by the Legislature, adding that heretofore it has retained about $6,000,000 or $7,000,000 for such eventualities.

Mr. Satterwhite replied that he believed the board had been too conservative and should not have held back any great amount for new projects; that if a Legislature must launch new things it is strictly up to that Legislature to find the money for the innovations.

The duty of the board, he thought, was to use the expected revenues adequately to take care of established institutions which require money and which should not be embarrassed by losing funds for new things. For this reason he urged the board to be liberal with institutions now in existence and relieve their emergencies. He said he believed the board should make allowance to pay accumulated debts of the Government. Deficiencies now aggregate $1,500,000. That much should be held back and not be recommended for appropriation.

of the pupils is the duty, in large part, of the teacher."

Personality is the criterion of leadership, according to Dr. McKinney, and he is of the opinion that personality can be cultivated, in accordance with the characteristic governing elements. The elements of personality, he says, are sympathy, sincerity, and dynamic knowledge.

"The teacher should be sincere in living as well as teaching, and should have a standard of high ideals," he says. "Justice grows out of sincerity, developing a willingness to admit error. Dynamic knowledge, opposed to latent knowledge, radiates and does something in the world."

Dr. McKinney's subjects here have not been announced. The students will hear him in chapel each morning during his stay.

The program included numbers by the College String Quartette which is directed by Miss Mary Clark. Mrs. Earl C. Bryan presented the story of the "Three Weavers."

Plans for Large Institute Made by Conductor Savage

F. E. Savage, director of the Plains Counties Institute, announced last week that the faculty for the institute is being rapidly chosen and that some of the very best ability in the southwest is being secured for this occasion. J. R. Grant, of Little Rock, Arkansas, who is rapidly becoming known as the South's foremost authority on rural education will appear before the general meetings and give special lectures in the rural school section. Dr. Grant is the author of "Acquiring Skill in Teaching" and other books in his field.

The directing board of the Institute believes that care should be taken not to use instructors from the immediate section to the exclusion of others who are developing new ideas in education elsewhere, so Miss Florence Parker of the State College for Women, at Columbus, Mississippi, will have charge of the large section of the Institute which devotes itself to the problems of the primary teacher.

Dr. C. H. Winkler, Dean of Vocational Agriculture at Texas A. & M., will be special lecturer before the section which devotes itself to the problems of the teachers of this subject. Nearly all high schools of the Panhandle already have or contemplate putting in Agriculture, so Dr. Winkler's messages will be particularly important this year.

pioneers, Haley interviewed N. E. Locke, and Logan Coffee, a former ranger who was stationed in this section in the eighties.

Judge Kinney presented to the society a picture of Big Bow, a Kiowa chief. The picture was made in Mobeetie. A picture of the first court house and jail at Mobeetie were also given by Judge Kinney.

Records Loaned

Mrs. G. W. Arrington, widow of Captain Arrington, a famous Texas Ranger of the old days, loaned to the society letters and reports of her husband's. Captain Arrington was stationed in this section in the 70's and 80's and Haley considers his reports of exceptional value as they give details of the Indian troubles and general activities of the Rangers commanded by Captain Arrington during that period. Mrs. Arrington gave in addition two small maps made by the Captain of the Panhandle before 1880. Haley considers Mrs. Arrington's loan one of the most valuable in the entire collection of the Society.

Miss Caroline Arrington, a student here in the spring of 1925, is a daughter of Captain and Mrs. Arrington.

Two men who hunted buffalo in this section in the early days were interviewed by Haley at Canadian. These men, George Simpson, and R. Bussell, gave connected accounts of the activities of the hunters of buffalo days. Mr. Simpson loaned a powder horn made from the horn of a buffalo. The horn is fifty years old, according to Haley. A rare book on the history of the Panhandle was also given by Mr. Simpson.

Interviews Cattlemen

Several old cattlemen, among them, T. H. Brainard, W. C. Isaacs, W. H. Hopkins, and Vas Stickle, were interviewed, Haley says. J. H. Johnson, an early merchant of this section who is now a banker, was among those interviewed at Canadian. Mr. Johnson joined the Society. Haley says that he was unable to get in touch with many of the old-timers whom he wished to see, but intends going back in a short time.

F. P. Reid, mayor of Pampa at the present time, joined the Society and gave some valuable information on the early development of the oil industry in this region. Haley said, Reid supplemented his information by newspaper clippings and magazine articles.

Haley also visited Borger and secured additional information in regard to the development of the oil industry, and also as to the details of the opening of the townsite and its developments since.

Canyon Team Wins Two Off Amarillo

The Canyon "Clowns" took their ninth straight win Sunday from the Plainview Independents in a close 4-3, 11 inning game. Os Eckhardt pitched his team to the win in a fair game which was marred by a high wind, making the outfielder's job a hard one. Two errors in the Canyon outfield due to the strong wind accounted for two Plainview scores in the eighth, which tied the score.

Canyon scored again in their half of the ninth and Plainview promptly tied it up with a run in the last half of the tenth. Canyon squeezed another run across in the first of the eleventh and Eckhardt struck out the first three batters in the last of the frame to win.

The "Clowns" took the Amarillo Metros into camp in two games last week by the scores of 8-11, and 4-11. Middleton's crew was badly bested in these two games, although frequent errors and non-chalant playing from the Metros made the games a farce.

The "Clowns" are endeavoring to enter the Amarillo News-Globe tournament, and their record stands with nine wins and no losses at the present time.

Harris M. Cook, of the Education Department of the College, has been granted a fellowship by the General Board of Education. Mr. Cook will spend the coming year at Peabody where he will work on his Ph. D. degree.

R. P. Jarrett and Albert Barnett, of this department of the College, both received fellowships in the past from this Board for work at Peabody.
