

CABE SPEAKS ON DETROIT
TRIP SUNDAY*STUDENTS RELIGIOUS COUNCIL SPONSORS UNION MEETING.

In answer to the invitation of the young people's organization of the town and the college acting in unison, Ernest Cabe, recently returned W. T. delegate to the National Student-Faculty Conference held at Detroit, gave the feature talk at a joint meeting held Sunday night at the First Christian Church.

Mr. Cabe, who was introduced by Margaret Benge, president of the Students Religious Council of the college, under the direction of which the union meeting was held, spoke on the subject of "Vitalizing Religion," in an endeavor to pass on to the young people of W. T. and Canyon the ideas given out along this line at the Conference in Detroit.

In his talk, Mr. Cabe emphasized the fact that the young people of today are not afraid to attack the many problems that are facing them in their social, religious, and economic life; that it is those older people who cannot understand the modern situation, who have no appreciative background, who are most in danger of making mistakes in trying to solve such problems. According to him, Detroit was an example of the rise of modern youth, and youthful thought, in an attempt to get at and root out the causes of these evils, one major conclusion being reached: that religion must be vitalized, along with education, and public thinking.

Mr. Cabe, in speaking to the assembly Sunday night, declared that this idea of vitalization must be applied to all the problems of the world, including the international situation in regard to world peace, the race question, and especially the present economic problem. In regard to this latter subject, the speaker brought out the fact that the present spirit of individualism must be changed to a thorough-going spirit of co-operation, before business, now being operated solely along selfish lines, can develop to the point of advancing civilization.

In closing, Mr. Cabe said that to acquire the requisite ability for coping with all such situations, people must study, read, talk and think in this direction.

Other numbers on the evening's program were a song by the assembly, one number by the College Male Quartet, prayer led by the Rev. Hudson. Both the auditorium and the balcony of the church were full, the student body of the college, and the town population both being well represented.

Three Additions
Made to P. P. H. S.

Recent additions to the museum of the Panhandle Historical Society are three very interesting articles, an African war club, a fork which was picked up on the French battle-field, and two gold medals which were presented to John Pezzolt for bravery in the Franco-German War.

The war club which is said to come from an African tribe, was presented to the society by Mr. G. C. Davis. This club consists of an iron blade, which is about four inches long and about an inch and one-half wide, and a wooden handle which is club-shaped.

The gold medals and table-fork were loaned to the society by Mrs. Smith of Lockney, grandmother of Edwin Boedecker, who is in school here. The fork was picked up on the battle-field by Mr. John Pezzolt, and the medals were presented by the German government to the same Mr. Pezzolt, for bravery in the Franco-German War. The medals bear the image of Wilhelm I.

COUNT LUCKNER
SUFFERS FROM
CAR ACCIDENT*FAMOUS GERMAN ADVENTURER, TO BE HERE, HAS FIRST MISHAP LATELY

One of the most spectacular characters of the World War, Count Felix von Luckner, the famous German "Sea Devil," who is to appear at W. T. on January 23 as a lycum attraction, and who went through the most adventurous sea career of the war unscathed, has recently suffered what is evidently his first accident. His automobile skidded off the road and crashed.

Count von Luckner has spent most of his time in this country since 1926, and after an intensive career on the sea, which for adventure would make pirate stories of old fade into insignificance, the "Sea Devil" has finally met with an accident on land. This is one of those peculiar twists and turns in the flow of affairs that is interesting but foolish to attempt to explain.

This famous raider had four ships sunk under him. He heard many tons of allied shells whistle past his ears as he rode in the first line of the German fleet at the Battle of Jutland. He sank eight merchant ships in the seven seas, and in his "Seeadler" made a dash through the North Sea Patrol that was seemingly impossible. Since the war he has piloted a small yacht around the world.

Lowell Thomas' book, "The Sea Devil," describing the amazing career of Count Luckner, which many of the W. T. students have, and which they anticipate having photographed by the real "Sea Devil," immediately jumped into the best-seller class when placed on the market two years ago. Recently it was published in England and is meeting with the same phenomenal success there.

The Count is a natural-born actor with a tremendous voice that can easily be heard and understood in the largest auditoriums.

The subject of the evening's lecture and entertainment to be given by him here January 23, will be "Sea Raids of a Friendly Enemy."

"College Beauties"
Contest Announced
By Annual Manager

According to announcement made by Wallace O'Keefe, business manager of the Le Mirage for 1931, the annual contest for College Beauties, and College Queen is now on, being conducted this year in a slightly different and unique manner.

Candidates for the Beauty (or Favorite) contest should be chosen this week, says Mr. O'Keefe. Each class and each organization in the College may elect a candidate to the contest.

Those chosen in this way will be cast as characters in a play to be presented immediately after all reports are in. Following the play, the audience will vote for the six "beauties" of the College from among those who make up the cast of the play. Later there will be an all-college run-off of these six.

A second election will be held to elect the College Queen from among the six chosen as College Beauties.

Mr. O'Keefe urges that the president of each class and organization report the name of the candidate chosen by it at the annual office immediately. Further announcements and information will be published later.

The children of Sunny Hill School with Mr. and Mrs. Rex Roby as teachers, of the Johnson School of Miss Leone Roffey, and the Connelly School under Mrs. H. H. Grounds, have all been invited to attend the Children's Theater performance this Thursday.

All the children of Randall County's rural schools have been invited to be guests of the college at one play during the year and have been urged to attend other performances of the Children's Theater.

Mr. C. W. Batchelder is in charge of the Children's Theater and this has been his plan to make it reach children outside of Canyon.

Mr. and Mrs. Luther G. Roberts of Pampa, spent the week end in Canyon, visiting friends, and Miss Florence Throckmorton, sister of Mrs. Roberts.

STUDENT LOAN FUND SOON TO
BE AVAILABLE*REQUEST OF W. C. HOGG TO BE OPERATED UNDER STATE CHARTER

Within a short time the new loan fund of $25,000 will begin to help students of West Teas to secure college educations which will make them more quickly self-supporting and more efficient in their services.

Under the will of the late Will C. Hogg, this bequest was made. The fund will be operated under a state charter which was secured by the West Texas State Teachers' College December 15, 1921, at which time Mr. Hogg established the loan which he has by his will so greatly increased. The fund will be known as the Ex-Student Loan Fund and the man who started it expressed the hope that as the college becomes older and some of its ex-students become persons of wealth they will add to it and so create opportunities for others.

Mike Hogg, brother of W. C. Hogg is independent executor of the estate of W. C. Hogg, whose will was probated December 6. The money will be available as soon as it is possible to arrange the affairs of the huge estate.

BUFFS SWAMP
OKLAHOMA BOYS
IN SLOW GAME*BURTON RUNS IN SECOND AND THIRD STRINGS
IN LAST HALF

Playing a strictly over-head game of basketball, the Buffaloes swamped the Oklahoma Aggies by a score of 46 to 18 last Thursday night in the Buffalo Gym.

Coach Burton started the slaughter via the Brown, Comer, Fortenberry, Clark, and Burk combination, and after the score-keeper burned up his adding machine at the half, he found the score to be 41 to 5, in the Buffs favor. Joe Fortenberry was high point man, with 7 field goals to his credit. Burk was a close second with 4 field goals and 2 free tosses.

Seeing that the spectators were losing interest, Burton sent in his second string, consisting of Layne, Dyer, Britt, Richards and Fitzgerald, at the beginning of the second half. These boys held the Aggies to an even score of 5 to 5, giving up the floor after a few minutes to the third string team of Buffs, who took the final whirl at the Oklahoma offering. Morris, Cooper, Leo Cooper, Troutman, and Cabe played the farmers a fair brand of ball until the gun stopped the show, the final score being 46 to 18.

Hill and Sheffy Are Last Week's Chapel Speakers

Interesting and educational lectures by President J. A. Hill and Mr. L. F. Sheffy were the features of the two chapel programs of last week, Pres. Hill speaking Saturday and Mr. Sheffy on Tuesday mornings.

In speaking to the assembly Saturday, President Hill announced himself as deriving the subject of his speech, "The Perpetuity of Civil Society," from reflection on the robbery of the local National Bank here early that morning. His speech, in the course of which he read a paper on the belief that education is the only solution of the social ills of today, was built around modern ideas of government, and society, bringing out the particular idea that the rights of man and should always be modified by a consideration of the social good. His entire address was especially applicable to colleges, whose students should "typify the highest ideals of honor, honesty, and high aspiration."

On the Tuesday preceding, L. F. Sheffy had spoken to the assembled student and faculty on the subject of the Panhandle-Plains Historical Society, of which he is field-secretary. Mr. Sheffy's introduction and speech were most enthusiastically received by the entire assembly.

W. T. Demonstration
School Doing Good
Work in Territory

The individual attention which students receive in the training department of the West Texas State Teachers College has brought boys and girls from 25 different towns and cities to this school this year. Parents of children of all ages are beginning to realize that every child needs to be studied and treated as an individual and so, even in the kindergarten there are twenty-five towns besides Canyon represented in the grades and the high school department.

F. E. Savage, Superintendent of the Training School says "We never want our school to be a machine to turn out children all just alike. We want each child to be developed into the best possible person he can be, and we want every boy and girl to learn to live with others. Even little children differ greatly in problems and interests and each one must have an opportunity to be himself if he is to be happy and useful."

College serves several purposes. The Training Department of the Here young men and women who expect to teach, learn something of classroom procedure. This they do by observing expert teachers at work, and later by teaching under careful supervision.

Then the training department is a place where new methods and devices can be tested, under conditions that will bring only good (Continued on last page.)

Trees on Campus
Being Sprayed Now

All trees on the campus are being sprayed with a solution of miscible oils under the supervision of L. S. Baker and the biology department.

Mr. Baker states that a solution strong enough to destroy all the scale insects may be used without damage to the tree, if spraying is done during the dormant season.

Students and faculty members of the college have been asked to park cars at places far enough removed from the trees to allow the spraying to be done without harm to the paint on the cars.

SCRIBBLERS HOLD FIRST FORMAL MEETING WED.

Wednesday evening, January 7, the members of the Scribblers Club held their first formal meeting at the home of Mrs. Travis Shaw. After a short business meeting in which the problems of dues, organization pictures, and time of meeting were discussed, contributions of the members were read and criticized, with Estill Allen acting as chairman.

The contributions read were: a poem, "The Owl," by Bruce Cleland; a poem, "That Tongue of Mine," by Jewell McCasland; an essay "An Appreciation," by Alice Arnold.

"Coney Island," by Hettie Lou Bagley; a poem, "All Alone at the End," by Willa Sparkman; and a poem, "Things That Are Mine," by Claude Tucker.

The evening ended informally with games and singing. Refreshments of hot chocolate with whipped cream and sandwiches were served.

MINERS LOSE FAST GAME TO
HERD BY 41-26*BUFFALOES LEAD IN SCORING
FROM FIRST OF GAME TO CRUSH MINERS

Last night in the Buffalo Gym Coach Burton's Buffs took the highly touted El Paso crew of Miners to a real cleaning despite the fact that these said miners played a terrific game of basketball. When the final game ended the game the score was 41-26 in the Buffs' favor.

Fortenberry, Brown, Comer, Clark, and Burk started the game and the Miners opened up with a hole proof man-to-man defense that kept the Buffs swapping every second. The game had not gone far, however, when Fortenberry and Comer hit their stride and a real battle royal ensued until late in the first fracus when Comer went out on personal fouls. Morris went in for Comer and continued the good work till the half ended with the score 25-8 for the home team.

Second Half
The Miners came out the second half with blood in their eyes and set a terrific pace for the Buffs. Monroe, Burk, Richards, Fortenberry, and Brown started and the Miners fought them off their feet. Meadows for the Miners looped four goals in quick succession and Burton sent Bob Clark, Fitzgerald and Leo Cooper in to stem the attack. The final half stood 17-16 for the Miners and the total score 41-26.

THINKING STUDENTS

Are there any students on W. T.'s campus willing to think hard and seriously about the old world with its mangle of social problems? Most certainly there are. Last Friday afternoon a group of students and faculty members met and organized themselves into a discussion forum for the purpose of exchanging views and facts concerning America's muddled social conditions. What about unemployment? What about the possibility of world peace with our present economic maladjustment? What is wrong when people starve while store-houses burst? All alive students and faculty members who aren't afraid to think, are invited to come next Friday afternoon to Room 205 at 4:30, bringing with them a good thought on the cause of the present depression.

DETROIT

Now that the Detroit Student-Faculty Conference has come and gone, and our delegate has gone and come, we naturally stop to wonder whether or not it has been worth all the time and money expended. If we are expecting our delegate to condense into the few little talks he is giving on the campus all the great mass of material and ideas given out in a five day national conference, we will perhaps be disappointed.

The value of Detroit does not lie solely in what a delegate is able to bring back; but to a great extent in what he took with him. We get a deeper sense of college values when we realize that our own Alma Mater is getting directly and immediately in touch with national student thought. Her operations are ceasing to be on a local and provincial scale, for W. T. is allying herself with Harvard, Yale, Dartmouth, the University of Chicago, when she sends people to national and international meetings to mix and mingle, and share her problems with those of other American campuses. Naturally, if we have any pride in old West Texas, we want to expand her spheres of influence at every possible chance.

A wonderful precedent has been set, in that we have already sent two delegates to such national meets, and we should not be so short-sighted as to break it. Henceforth, we should consider participation in a national student meet as essential a part of our year's program as the publishing of a Le Mirage or a Prairie. Such a program would be the most helpful tonic for the morale of a teachers college that has ever been administered.

UNSHACKLING EDUCATION

By Glenn Frank

Our educational system is suffering from too much systematization.

In most of our states our goal has been a very closely articulated system of schools extending in an unbroken chain from kindergarten to graduate school at the state university.

We have labored long and hard on establishing an unbreakable sequence of studies from top to bottom.

The kindergarten shapes its work so that its students will be acceptable to the graduate school.

All this was admirable while we were getting standards established and a school system going.

We have reached a point, however, in this systematization of our schools at which it seems to me we are in danger of defeating the very end and aim of a living school system.

Beginning with the university and going all the way down to the kindergarten, each unit in the school system is acting as a blockade against free experimentation in the unit below it.

I know men in the grade schools who could transform their schools into infinitely better educational agencies, but they dare not do it lest their graduates would not thereby meet all the technical requirements for the high schools.

I know high school men who could make their high school mean twice as much as it now means to the community that supports it, but they are a bit hesitant about doing it because their graduates might not thereby meet all the requirements of the university.

Educational reform is a good deal like disarmament. We all say we would like to disarm but we dare not while the neighbor nation is armed. Everywhere throughout the educational system, each unit experiments with new departures hesitantly because the unit above has not taken the lead.

We must somehow break this embargo on honest experimentation that a too tightly organized school system imposes.

GRADUATE INSTRUCTION

"Undergraduate instruction no longer suffices for the educational equipment of college or university teachers, nor does it even provide all the training now expected of teachers in Junior Colleges and High Schools. Throughout the country in the coming generation teachers of all these categories must be drawn from available graduate students.

"Moreover the demand for men and women with graduate training is active in a remarkable number of industrial and commercial organizations, and in governmental departments.

"It is furthermore vitally necessary for the material and cultural progress of mankind, that appropriate training be available for men who will have to be scientific discoverers, the scholarly investigators, the expert critics, and the philosophical thinkers of the next generation.

"But the facilities for graduate training in the country as a whole are now inadequate. The graduate schools of the large universities are already crowded. Moreover, graduate work in the United States really dates from the last twenty-five years and is at present just getting under way. A further increase, analogous to that which has of late years occurred in undergraduate studies, is the inevitable next stage in the development of American education."—Brown University Survey Committee of 1930. Page 62-63. January 7, 1930.

AWFUL PREXY

We have heard some students, and even an occasional faculty member, express the opinion that Prexy is a most formidable and awe-inspiring character. They seem to experience the same sensations on interviewing him that they would experience on preparing to dive off the edge of the Grand Canyon. Recalling some such remarks, we could hardly suppress a smile the day we found him in the middle of the floor, dust-covered but undaunted, teaching his little granddaughter to rabbit-dance.

One would conclude that, after all, even presidents are genuinely human.—M. N. L.

THE MEANING OF LOYALTY

There are various things upon which the prestige of a college or university is based. One may base its claim on its age and the things that are traditional with it; another upon its particular style of instruction; but the most universal appeal that colleges of recent years make to prospective students is the trophies gathered on the field of athletics.

No matter what one may think of a college that will try to tempt one to adopt it as his alma mater because of its prowess in athletics, this thing is being done with success. We have no argument against such practices for it is a laudable one in so far as it goes. The big trouble with such schools is, that they usually do not offer prerequisites that go to make up a well balanced college education. Without even attempting to mention any names, it is a well known fact that in these institutions, athletics is the all important thing, because the life of the institution more than likely depends upon its success in that line.

The writer of this article is an ardent sport fan and can see no excuse for any college not supporting athletics 100 percent, but he does not believe that the students of any college should go so far in these athletic activities that, when they have finished college and have received their sheepskins, the only thing that they can logically and lucidly talk about and expound upon is football, baseball or track.

A well rounded football team and a successful basketball quintet is very essential in order to keep alive that spark of enthusiasm so necessary to balanced study. It keeps the student body "on their toes" and raises the spark necessary to make college life interesting. The thing that is so disgusting is the fact that huge funds are collected for stadiums and loan funds in order that the college may gain fame by way of powerful football teams, while deserving students who have no ability as athletes are either ignored or pushed in the background.

As we see it, the best method for keeping up athletics in W. T. is the one hundred per cent support of the student body through the purchase of student activity tickets. By means of this revenue, contests can be staged and money added to the athletic fund for improvements without sacrificing scholarship integrity. We do think that the present activity ticket is too low in price, for it is an evident fact that for the sum of $9.00, the athletic council and the lyceum committee have guaranteed you a series of games and entertainments that cost the outsider approximately $35.00, almost a three-fourths saving during the nine months.

The thing for us to do is to go to these games, and see that our friends go, in order that the college may get over on the expense of financing trips and visiting teams. West Texas State Teachers College can boast of its fine teams and excellent lyceum numbers, but the only way that it can continue to have these things is through our support, morally and financially. We do not want to forget our integrity and use devious means to make good teams. We have a clean record in athletics and a corps of the cleanest coaches as well as efficient ones, that can be found anywhere. We want to keep them, and despite the hard times, we can do it.

If you don't possess a student activity ticket, that is your hard luck, and you ought to attend these games and lyceum numbers anyway; then at the opening of the winter quarter try to be the first one to purchase a blanket tax from Secretary Travis Shaw. You won't miss the money after the first day or so and the leaders of the college will appreciate your attitude and do even more than they have done before for your entertainment.—C. B. S.

KAMPUS KNICK KNACKS

BY COL. GOWDY

I-HO, everybody, hi-ho, here's the Col. back on the air after a long, long vacation, and he is glad to get back and how! After a year filled with trials and tribulations, we have all turned over that other leaf and we're ready to start all over again and break those resolutions. The Col. is all set with a new line of Scotch jokes and most everything for entertainment and education.

Well, the Buffs certainly handed those Baylor Bears a fair drubbing if I know anything. They seemed to think that all they had to do was walk out on the floor, and Coach Burton would hand them the ball games on a silver platter. Such people—such people!

The games were a shade rough, but nothing to speak of. The Buffs outplayed the Bears from start to finish both nights but a few tough breaks cost the Buffs the first game.

The Col.'s eye has been attracted by the new co-eds around the campus W. T. certainly attracts some attractive girls.

Then there was the Scotchman who built a new house and left the roof off of one room for a shower.

In our opinion, Mr. Sheffy not only makes a good antique collector but would make a second Patrick Henry, having given us a sample of his inert ability in chapel Tuesday.

Bank robbers and thieves visited the bank Saturday taking our money and leaving excitement galore.

Well, folks, news is scarce, but time is scarcer. You'll hear some more about it next week. Until then—GOOD B-YE.

"Do you go to school, Willie?" a lady asked.

"Naw," said Willie, "wots the use o' me goin' to school? I can't read, I can't write and I can't draw. So I don't go."

Vocational Home Ec. of College in Varied Program

Mothers and school girls who believe that the present day high school girl has no time to do things at home would be surprised at the work of the vocational home economics group of the high school department of W. T.

Here twenty-four girls, under the direction of their instructor, Miss Corrella Nuzum, are carrying forward home projects. Recently the girls who belong to the cooking class invited their mothers to a breakfast which they planned, prepared and served. Following the meal, the girls, the teacher and their mothers discussed the home projects which the girls have undertaken. Miss Nuzum found the mothers eager to help their daughters to become efficient housekeepers.

Each girl chooses a task or tasks which will require a minimum of 60 hours in the home.

One girl is planning, preparing and serving the Sunday dinners for her family, and two get up early and prepare the family breakfast each morning.

Another cooked and served a three course dinner at Halloween and invited six guests to share it.

Still another girl whose mother is a college student prepares the evening meal, while her sister, who is also in the class gets breakfast each day.

Three girls are making quilts. One is making a patchwork bathrobe, using a star design which she worked out herself. Designing and making clothing for a small niece is another's choice.

Some are improving their bedrooms or the home kitchen by painting furniture and woodwork, waxing floors, and making curtains or bed and dresser sets. Still others are remodeling clothes into suitable garments for themselves, making underclothing budgets and then fashioning the garments. One girl will soon appear in a velvet patchwork jacket and tam which she is making.

The girls who are doing all these things are about fifteen years of age. Their teacher knows each of them intimately and visits every home represented.

Toward the close of the year some of the girls will be chosen to go to the State Clothing Contest which is held annually under the direction of the State Department of Education.

The girls who are in the classes are almost all Randall county girls, living at home, but one had to find a project should could work out in a dormitory.

Those receiving this training are Edith Pierce, Opal Smith, Elaine Myers, Jewel Harris, Fern Love, Willie Lee Dunlap, Helen Johnson, Marie Kuhlman, Dollie McLeroy, Dora Miller, Pansy Myers, Dollie Pay Nobles, Gertrude Rusk, Ima Thomas, Mary West, Pearl Bice, Thurza Bourland, Wilma Harris, Pauline Griffith, Frances Holman, Margaret Meyer, Roberta Montgomery, Leona Meyer and Edna Irene Bandy.

After struggling through a most trying day, crowded with examinations over topics which I could not remember ever having heard discussed, I boarded the train, waved goodbye to my less fortunate friends who had another day before them, and commenced with many pleasant anticipations my Christmas vacation.

Realizing that I would reach my destination early, I prepared for bed immediately, meantime priding myself on my ability to sleep on a Pullman as well as anywhere else. However, I had failed to take into consideration my overworked nerves; and the slight swaying, the stopping and starting, and the general noise of the train proved as effective toward keeping me awake as a cup of black coffee and a mysterious story.

After finally resorting to counting the click of the rails, which was more likely to bring on a nervous breakdown than slumber, I was just dropping off to sleep when a great commotion announced the arrival of a bunch of enthusiastic eds of Roswell Military Institute. I was then entertained for half an hour by stories of college pranks, coming from adjoining berths, until a fellow sufferer nearby inquired in an uncomplaining voice, if they thought it was their birthday.

The suggestion evidently had its desired effect, for, disregarding the fact that I nearly smothered from lack of ventilation and nearly froze from lack of cover, I was allowed to spend the remainder of the night in perfect peace and contentment.

At five-thirty I gave up trying to be comfortable and got up, both feeling and looking like the end of a misspent life. My only consolation was that I was to spend a week of quiet restfulness with the family.

On arriving home, however, my hopes were permanently drowned; for said family, waxing enthusiastic over my coming, had prepared a highly exciting program to entertain me for the whole week, during which time I was never allowed to sit still for more than five minutes.

As a result, I returned to school with a cultivated smile, a splitting headache, and the knowledge that my constitution is much stronger than I had guessed. Still I join with everyone else in strenuously asserting that vacations are essential. Why, yes, if it weren't for them we poor over-worked students would break down completely under the strain.

WHEN YOU HEAR A KINDLY PHRASE, PASS IT ON

If you hear a person complimented, why don't you find an opportunity to tell him about it?

This world needs more pleasant reports and fewer biting criticisms. If you want to be popular, remember the nice things which one person says of another and tell them.

It is such a little thing to repeat a compliment. No matter how big and important the man or the woman, a genuine compliment gives pleasure.

You like to hear pleasant things about yourself.

You feel that what you do is "not much," and that you are given little credit.

Ex-Student Notes

BY L. N. GEORGE

Lamb County continued from last issue. Lamb County has a County School Superintendent and only one common school district. All other districts are independent.

Mr. Carl G. Clift, now attending W. T., has been Superintendent of Spring Lake for the past two years, until last May, when he resigned to take up another line of school work. Mr. Clift reports some interesting things about Spring Lake. Among them is the fact that while he was Superintendent every child except one was transported to school. It claimed to be the largest strictly rural school in the State of Texas. It had the best fleet of busses in Lamb County. Though strictly rural it supported a good football team, had a modern water and sewage system, lighting plant, steam heating plant, and modern homes on the ground for the Superintendent, Principal, and Janitor. It doubled its enrollment during his superintendency.

Mr. Clift did some outstanding work along the line of improving bus transportation of school children.

The W. T. College Band gave a concert at Spring Lake last April. Spring Lake is twenty-five miles from a railroad, has over three hundred pupils, and sixty high school seniors.

BAILEY COUNTY

The following W. T. Exes are teaching in Bailey County: Blanche Boone at Circleback Emma Bearden at Goodland Byron Durham at Liberty Perry McMinn at Liberty Lorene Wherry at Liberty Evelyn Boone at Muleshoe Beth Mardis at Muleshoe. Velma McDorman at Progress Ruth Burton at Progress J. E. Adams, County Judge of Bailey County, is a W. T. Ex-Student.

Byran Durham has been selected to organize the Bailey County W. T. Exes.

HALE COUNTY

Hale County has 465 students in school, sixteen teachers, and twenty-eight high school seniors. The following is a list of W. T. Exes teaching in Hale County: L. W. Slonaker, Superintendent. E. F. Simpson, Ward Principal Mrs. Gladys Whitaker Mrs. E. M. Adams Plainview has thirty-seven W. T. Exes teaching in her city schools. Hale County has considerably over a hundred W. T. Exes in her borders. Mrs. Julia Kelley has been selected temporary chairman of Hale County W. T. Ex-student Association.

Monday, February 23rd, is set for W. T. S. T. C. Day in Hale County. A speaker, the College Quartet, and the Ex-Student Field Secretary will spend the day visiting and giving programs to High Schools. At the evening meeting there will be a feed, and local talent will be added to the W. T. entertainers. Every W. T. Ex in Hale County is expected to be there. Exes from other counties are welcome. The program and performers will be announced later.
