GIVE

Give to the rippling echo And the echo gives back to you, And afterward reaps the dew,

And Genius it may prove; Give to those around you And you are repaid by love.

Give to the sleeping nature And myriad beauties unfold, To solace your lonely hours With a wealth far greater than gold.

Give to those in sadness The comfort your presence brings And the sweetest tone in music Is the one your glad heart sings.

Give to those around you A ray from out your soul And your path leads thru the sunlight From beginning to its goal.

TRUST

I thought I walked my path alone, A weary, bitter way,

When lo, a gentle voice rebuked, "A million souls passed here to-day" It bent my spirit low,

That others shared my woe.

The paths of life are dark to me With fear of the unknown, Therein this knowledge leads me on

I walk them not alone. When darkness veils the steepest point Along my narrow road.

I walk my path with God. -Edith Rayzor.

COUSINS-SESAME SOCIETIES ENJOY FINE PROGRAM

Members of the Normal's pioneer literary societies will not soon forget the joint-program given last Friday evening. Nearly fifty Cousins and a much larger number of Sesames enjoyed the entertainment. The roll call was answered with some very choice jokes and quotations.

President Lester Hill, of the Cousins society, made a short address in which he said the Cousins were very glad to walk down the road of progress hand-in-hand with the Sesames He gave two readings which drew well merited applause. Miss Marie Dodson responded with one of O. Henry's stories and a short reading.

A song, "Love-Making Days" was rendered by the Cousins quartet, followed by a pathetic song-hit, the theme of which was "The Ladies Make Our Lives a Burden." The latter shaft was answered by the Sesame quartet with a very appropriate number, "Our Lonely Hearts are Breaking-Its a Sad, Sad Age."
