

Familiar Scenes In Reynard's Exhibit of Paintings At P.-P.H.S. Museum

Twenty-Eight In Museum Exhibit

Palo Duro Canyon and Six-Mile Crossing Landscapes Popular

Grant Reynard's paintings may be seen at the Museum. On exhibition in the Mary E. Hudspeth Room of the Panhandle-Plains Historical Society Museum are 28 oil paintings by the Palo Duro Art Colony artist-in-residence. Ten are local scenes.

The collection is on exhibition for two weeks. Favorites in the landscapes are the Palo Duro River Bed, Six Mile Crossing and Texas Landscape. Other familiar scenes to West Texans are Rim of Palo Duro Canyon, Farm at Canyon, Texas Trio, Storm Over Wheat, Flood, Little Ranch, and Texas Rancher.

Two portraits are of Mr. Reynard's daughters, Barbara 18, and Mary, 15. Another striking portrait is of Amara Zaron, of Iraq, whose display as a silversmith is showing at the New York World's Fair.

Importance of an appropriate frame for each picture was explained by Mr. Reynard. Much of his time is given to preparing the frame to suit the color of the picture.

Students are to be admitted to the Saturday morning lectures given by Mr. Reynard at 8 o'clock in the Recreation Hall of Buffalo Courts, headquarters for the Palo Duro Art School.

Two classes under the instruction of Mr. Reynard are landscapes and portraits, with beginners and advanced students in both classes. The students choose their own media, working in oils, water colors, and drawing with pencil, pastel, and charcoal.

Average work of the 32 students enrolled at the art school is high, Mr. Reynard explained. He pointed out that stress on individuality of each student was made without considering conformity to his personal method.

The landscape class changes location every week using Buffalo Lake, Palo Duro canyons, six mile crossing, Ceta Glen and nearby ranches as locations. Portraits have been made using Evelyn Carr and Lena Snitker as models. These classes are to last six weeks, but the art school will continue for 12 weeks.

Writes of Work

Miss Tennessee Malone, librarian of the College, tells of experiences in the library field in an article appearing in the June Peabody Reflector.

Janitor Sought Library Position

"Vista Through Library Years" Is Title of Article in Reflector

The janitor almost got the librarian's job here in 1911.

Miss Tennessee Malone and President R. B. Cousins had a hard time convincing the Board of Regents in that year that the janitor could not look after the library.

Miss Malone, College librarian, reported this incident and others in the Peabody Reflector of June. The article entitled "Vista Through Long Library Years," appeared in a section devoted to alumni of the Peabody Library School.

Interest in Library Shown Early interest of the author in library work is shown in experiences which led to Miss Malone's coming to West Texas in 1911. She received an appointment here in 1910 and studied at the University of Chicago for one year before returning to Canyon.

Treatment For Children Given By Dental Unit

On display here last Tuesday was the Texas Health Department's Mobile Dental Unit with Dr. W. A. Buckner as operator.

Dr. Buckner explained that the clinical unit has given treatment to more than 400 children in three counties since the unit was started in January.

The only unit operating in Texas is furnished with the most modern dental equipment, and serves the dual purpose of education and clinical treatment. Dr. Buckner explained that the plan of operation is to use the unit for six or eight weeks in counties having the Texas Health Department's nursing service. The program is designed to reach the school children of the county and their parents and to cooperate with the local dentists in the treatment of children, who would not otherwise receive dental attention.

"Ninety per cent of the children I examine have never been to the dentist," said Dr. Buckner. It is hoped that this arrangement may point the way to a partial solution of the problem of dental public health in Texas.

The unit is on a tour of twenty-two Texas colleges. The entire plan is closely related to school room health education, and can be made completely effective only through the cooperation of the teachers.

Marian O'Brien of Friona will attend Columbia University in New York this summer. She was graduated by the College in 1936. She has been art instructor in the Lyon, Kansas, school for the last two years.

Dice Show Adds To Brick Fund

Plans for Completing New Unit Explained By Prof. Sheffy

A special matinee for children only—admission, one dime—will benefit the Panhandle-Plains Historical Society Museum building fund when Dixie Dice presents her musical extravaganza, "Flying High," in Amarillo, at 3 o'clock today.

A bouncing and lively musical comedy, resplendent with an up-to-the-minute aviation theme, new dances, catchy songs, and elaborate costumes, "Flying High" will have its main performance at 8:30 tonight. The Municipal Auditorium is the scene for both it and the benefit matinee.

More than one hundred fifty visitors signed the registration book when the Panhandle-Plains Historical Society Museum held open house to the College Tuesday. It was Museum Day, and student interest in the extensive collections housed here on the campus was being emphasized.

The Prairie sponsored the event, distributing badge reminders. A feature page on the museum was carried in the June 18 issue.

Dr. L. F. Sheffy reports that civic clubs over the Panhandle are vigorously waging the campaign to provide an addition to the present museum facilities. The drive for 225,000 common brick will be complete when gathering-up activities are over.

"Erection of the structure and facing it with white stone like that of the present unit will require about $68,000, which is approximately one dollar for every three common bricks needed. In our attempts to provide these funds, that mathematical relation has led us to designate one dollar as 'three gold brick.' Gold brick, thus, represent contributions to the building fund," said Prof. Sheffy.

"The sale of 200,000 gold brick would make possible immediate construction."

Museum hours, at present, are as follows:

Monday through Saturday, 9-12, 2-6. Sunday, 2-6.

First Details Given About Band School

The third annual Summer Band School will start August 5 and continue to August 15. The School is held on the campus of West Texas and all the facilities of the state plant will be at the disposal of the Band School folk.

The School will be conducted by Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Nutt, assisted by Prof. C. E. Strain. Mr. and Mrs. Nutt are members of the famed VanderCook School of Music at Chicago and are back for their third successive summer by popular demand.

There will be daily ensembles for bands and small groups, with classes in conducting, interpretation, band twirling, drum majoring, solo coaching, and similar subjects, together with section drill and individual help on all instruments. Two bands will be used this year—one for band teachers and advanced students and one for inexperienced students. The wishes and needs of those attending will in part determine the courses and character of the work, Mr. Strain indicated.

Tuition will be only $10 for directors and only $5 for students. Regularly enrolled students who are members of the College Band or Orchestra will be privileged to attend the band school without charge.

Students will bring their instruments in order to participate in the daily ensembles. Students eligible for college credits may earn three semester hours credit during the intensive course.

Assembly Concert Is Band's First

First public appearance of the summer band will be an assembly concert next Tuesday. Prof. C. E. Strain, director, plans a varied program, including not only numbers by the group, but solos and ensembles as well.

Membership in the summer band is not restricted to students alone, but is open to townspeople as well.

Rehearsals are held at 7:30 o'clock, Mondays and Thursdays, and 4 o'clock Wednesday and Fridays.

Psychological, Not Economic Problem in Germany--Duflot

"Advancement of a nation's economy through aggressive warfare is absurd," said J. L. Duflot, professor of sociology.

His remarks before an interviewer were accompanied by the expressive gestures familiar to all his sociology students.

"There is no denying the fact that Hitler has surprised us all by his genius in organizing his nation for a lightning war, but he has yet to prove that he can develop the arts of peace by force of arms. Subjected people may be motivated to produce surplus goods for the enhancement of the German Reich but in that event it will be something new in the economic world." Problem Not Economic

"Fundamentally Germany's problem is not an economic one as Hitler insists, but a psychological one," continued Mr. Duflot. "The League of Nations reported in 1938 that Germany was 80% self sufficient. The Germans are so overwhelmingly obsessed with the idea of their cultural superiority that they become enraged when this attitude is questioned by other nations. Hence, they try to dominate others rather than to adjust themselves by peaceful methods in carrying on trade with their neighbors."

"Hitler reminds me of the man with a modest income who spends his surplus money for luxuries he cannot afford and complains on the day of reckoning that he is not getting his share of the income."

Takes Neighbor's Savings "Within the last five years, according to Leonard P. Ayres, Germany has spent 19.1 billion dollars (See Duflot, Page 4)

New Subjects Are For Short Course

Training in typing, shorthand, accounting, business law, business English, salesmanship, and business psychology will be given to students who enroll for the short business course to be offered next fall.

A certificate of proficiency will be given at the end of the first and second year showing completion of one or two year's work, Prof. Lee L. Johnson, head of the department of business administration, announced last week.

"Purpose of the new short course is to enable persons who are not able to stay 4 years to go quickly to a job," Prof. Johnson said. "We have experts in every field teaching this work," he added.

Entrance may be made in September, February or in June, the announcement indicated.

Holiday Announced For Thursday, July 4

July 4 will be a holiday. Dr. R. P. Jarrett, dean of the College, reported yesterday afternoon that the executive committee of the College had voted to make Thursday, July 4, a holiday.

Literally interpreted this means that there will be no classes. (See HONOR ROLL, Page 4)

Instructor For NYA Aviation Shop Arrives

W. B. Whisenand arrived last week to take over instructor's duties at the new National Youth Administration aviation shop on the campus.

Mr. Whisenand came here from Lubbock where he was an instructor at Texas Technological College for the Civil Aeronautics Authority pilot's training program there last spring. His first experience in flying began in 1926 when he was in the U. S. army. He later spent five years in the photography department of the army located in Central America, Mexico, and the U. S.

The N. Y. A. shop is located under the Buffalo stadium, and is a part of the vocational project which has been on the campus for more than a year. Seventy-two boys are living in the N. Y. A. dormitory, Wilson Hall, and 24 will receive instruction in the aviation division of the vocational training program.

Melodrama of Villian Given

"Curse you, Jack Dalton." "I defy you villian." "my proud beauty," and more such phrases filled the air last night when the summer Radio class presented a melodrama over KGNC, from 7:30 until 8 o'clock in the first of the summer series of broadcasts.

The melodrama given was, "Curse you, Jack Dalton" by Wilbur Brown, and was presented by special arrangement with Samuel French. Those acting in the skit were: Linnette Cain, L. W. Davidson, Wendell Cain, Earl Wilbur, Margaret Cleghorn, Fred Beeman, and Doris Kirksey.

The skit was under the direction of Frederick Schmutz with Wilhelmina Cleek, Mildred Merchant, Stella Fortenberry, Odie Foster, Billy Norman, and Leota Lightfoot assisting.

Economic Front For U. S. Gloomy

America's Entry In Conflict Will Control Degree of Effect Only

By BILL CONE

The post-war economic outlook for the United States is a rather gloomy one regardless of who wins the current conflict in Europe, or whether or not the United States enter the war, Herschel Coffee, associate professor of economics, indicated in an assembly address last Tuesday night.

The only difference any of the foregoing outcomes will make on our economy will be differences of degree.

Mr. Coffee outlined the general economic results any war is likely to bring, enumerating the following: The nation's productive capacity becomes disrupted; we realize a destruction of foreign markets; government control of production is increased in order to effect the shift to the production of war materials; currency inflation and possible monetary chaos; and a rather close pattern of depression following a war—usually about 10 years later.

Depressions Are Larger

He added that depressions are becoming "bigger and better" because of the magnitude of the conflicts.

"It is impossible for a nation today to insulate against the undesirable affects of war," Mr. Coffee said. If England should win, we would not escape entirely from the effects of the war. The European economy will be destroyed, our markets will be reduced, and our standards of living will have to fall.

If Germany should win, we may expect the loss of our foreign markets among the losing nations, Mr. Coffee pointed out, adding "our (See COFFEE, Page 4)

Social Studies

As it becomes apparent that the present war is going to end in a complete victory for the totalitarian powers, it is more and more imperative that American thought turn from the wishful thinking of the past and face the facts with which we are confronted. We face a new era in which the markets of Europe and of much of the colonial empires of France and England will probably be dominated by the German system and will therefore be closed to us.

The drive of the new German empire for domination of the remaining markets of the world (notably Latin America) will be a potent force constituting competition of the severest kind for our export industries. It is possible that to win these markets from the German system we shall be forced into a government subsidy system for our export industry similar to that employed by the Germans. This alone is a problem of titanic proportions. Furthermore, to develop the markets of Latin America it seems that we shall be forced to enter a new era of social and political relations with those countries on terms more favorable to them than we have been willing to give in the past. Our policy of dominant paternalism toward the Latin-American countries must be changed to one of equal participation in a common enterprise.

Such a change is easy to announce in high-sounding phrases in the daily press, but hard to convert into actuality. A mighty task of transformation of American thought is the prerequisite to the realization of such a dream. Finally, coupled with these forces, our huge armaments program will plunge us with break-neck speed into a period of vast internal social, political, and economic changes, the results of which can now only be guessed at, and from which we shall never return to the present order of things. This is no happy prospect for a democracy which is already befuddled by the dynamic changes of the present industrial revolution and by the complex problems engendered by the last war. These are times that try men's souls; they are also times that challenge men's ideals, their favorite terms and shibboleths.

Road to Mysticism

There are many psychological escape mechanisms which we can individually and collectively employ to avoid facing hard reality. One of the most dangerous of these is a reliance entirely on the spectacular methods of getting the job done: The "patriotism" meeting with no motive other than the development of a chauvinistic spirit; the enthusiasm for armaments without a knowledge of their effect on our society; the discrediting of opposition to the public policy by a demand for "unity," without consideration of the immense value of this criticism; the loud emotional defense of "Americanism" and "Democracy," without a careful definition of those terms; the preaching of hate against the personalities and policies of our potential enemies.

This is the road back to tribal mysticism. It is not the road followed by those who have led the hard march of human progress. We must determine that the solution of our problems shall come from intensive and extensive study to determine just what our problems are; from a thorough and courageous evaluation of these problems to determine their extent, their possible effects and their respective importance; from the formulation of proposed policies for action based on the facts previously accepted; and finally, a determined and continual checking and rechecking of these facts, of their evaluation, and of the policies, for the purpose of eliminating aberrations due to imperfect judgment and the pressure of special groups whose immediate interest runs counter to the interest of our society as a whole.

This is indeed a complete program for political action. Admittedly its operation has been and will be far inferior to the ideal formula postulated above. However, even the imperfect operation of the above method is immeasurably superior to a surrender of reason and the substitution of national myths and symbols for good hard thinking. If during the next few years we in America shall prove to the world that democracy is the best way of life, then we shall do it by persistent careful thought and determined action, and not by a recitation of magic phrases and a surrender to hatred of the totalitarian powers. Surrender to hatred is the mark of the weakling, and we must be strong.

Education A Technique

By what techniques are we to work out our problems? Assuredly we must have some tangible means of setting out to achieve our ideal of formulating policies scientifically. One of the greatest criticisms that can be made of our democratic process in the

The Way You See It

Every corner of the buildings, every classroom, every booth at Bob's or the Buff, is filled with amateur international observers. The history-in-the-making that is in progress throughout the world is having its natural result in causing every alert American to be an interested and opinionated commentator.

To bring about a greater understanding of these issues and of W. T. opinions on them, The Prairie is this week opening its columns to all students, faculty members, exes and other readers. Each of you is cordially invited to contribute some statement or argument which you consider interesting or valuable in viewing the world of today.

The following four issues have been chosen as representative of those of most importance to W. T.ites:

1. Social, economic, and/or political outcomes of the present national and international situations.
2. The United States and compulsory peace-time military training.
3. Where does the blame lie?
4. The teacher and the problem of interpreting and teaching contemporary history.

To start the ball rolling, staff members are this week taking stands on these questions. Next week, the readers will be heard from. Don't hesitate to write. Now is our greatest opportunity to prove the worth of the prerogatives of free speech and press.—Jim Bugental.

A Favorite Toy

An airplane flew over the nursery school playground at West Texas State College today. Three little fellows, ages three and four, shouted with delight and raced across the grass, excited and happy over the appearance in reality of their favorite toy.

More than one airplane flew over some former playground in Europe today, and three little fellows, ages three and four, did not make a sound and huddled in the shadow of a ruined building, frightened but numb to the regular appearance of the enemy bomber.

A small girl cried this morning when she had to go home from the nursery school here. Tears streamed down her little face, for she wanted to stay and paint, and blow soap bubbles, and sing, and hear stories with her eleven playmates.

A small girl across the Atlantic cried this morning when her mother cried after someone brought a message to the door. Sobs shook her small form, because she sensed that something was gone forever. Maybe it was her father's gay smile and playfulness.

The nursery group bakes a cake for a companion who celebrates a third birthday today. They planned the party all morning and carefully chose yellow candles to be lighted at lunch.

A child in a country on the Continent was three years old today. The big sister who cares for the family, while father is away and mother works in a factory, prepared the food allowed them by the government ration system.

One dozen boys and girls between the ages of two and four spend twenty hours a week in a diminutive world at the College's summer nursery school. Everything from play equipment to food is designed to make a perfect world for the children.

Hundreds of thousands of boys and girls in the countries to our east spend twenty-four hours a day in an inferno, blazing with buildings ruined by bombs, reeking with the stench of the wounded and unburied, wrecked with the onslaught of "mechanized units." Everything in THEIR environment is conditioned for WAR.—Mickey Sharp.

past is that we have all exhorted one another to use reason, and have stopped there. More exhortation will not make many men reason scientifically. The scientific method is contrary to human nature. Its development as a characteristic of thought is a long and difficult process, and it at best is only partially achieved by any one person. How then may it be developed? There are several approaches: The most direct and probably the most fruitful, is through the public schools. In this connection it is well to mention the fact that the students of this college are in a position to wield tremendous influence, since the majority of the graduates of West Texas State will be teachers.

It is axiomatic that all subjects—whatever the scope and content of the course—can have a great deal to do with the formation of desirable citizens. One group, the social sciences, deal directly with our contemporary problems. Since the social studies are so obviously and directly connected with the development of the individual for good citizenship, perhaps it would be well to give a great deal of attention to this one group of studies. How can the social studies be taught in such manner as to secure the maximum results in intelligent citizenship? There are a number of questions concerning the method of teaching in this field which it will be well to study:

What of Social Studies?

1. Should we indoctrinate in favor of certain institutions and concepts (for example: the price system, individual initiative, unequal distribution of wealth, universal suffrage, complete toleration of all ideas, etc.) or should we merely indicate the alternatives and allow the student to draw his own conclusions? Are the two methods mutually exclusive, or can they be combined?
2. Should we teach complete freedom of speech, or should we include the idea of responsibility for speech? Just what is "responsibility for speech?"
3. How far should the teacher go in criticizing politics that are currently very popular?
4. Is the study of contemporary problems the ideal way to teach social sciences? Are there factors which determine the desirability of teaching by this method? If so what are they?
5. In a study of contemporary problems, what problems or topics are likely to be most fruitful in giving essential information and developing the ability to deal with the present situation?

This is admittedly an imperfect and fragmentary listing of the problems which will arise in teaching a dynamic and useful social studies class. Do you have any comments on any of the points listed above? Just what relation does the social studies class in your school have on the current world crisis? The Prairie invites you to write an answer, giving any ideas or suggestions that you may have about the matter.
Hollis Bledsoe.

Lions Club Asks For More Brick

All Citizens Are Requested to Make Contribution to Museum Building Fund

"Do you have any old brick around your place?" That is the question that members of the Canyon Lions Club are asking these days as the Lions Club is officially opening the Brick Gathering Campaign here in Canyon.

Several thousand common brick and a few Gold Brick have already been collected by members of the club. The entire city will be canvassed again this week, according to Lions Club secretary, Nash O. Thompson. If you have any old brick around your place or if you want to give money for Gold Brick, please contact Milton Morris, Ray Cole, or Nash Thompson and they will see that the same is called for and delivered to the museum.

All persons giving either brick or money will receive full credit for whatever amount is given. Your name will be placed on the list of donors and this list will be placed in the museum. The Lions Club is merely acting as a collecting agency for this campaign.

Remember, if you have any bricks to give to the museum—regardless of the number—be sure to contact one of the above named officers of the club and they will see that your bricks are added to the big pile that is already on the museum grounds.

Why not call the Canyon Lions Club today and let them come and get the bricks and deliver them to the museum. Remember too, Canyon is the headquarters for this campaign. The museum is in Canyon, is a part of Canyon, and the entire Panhandle will be watching and wanting to know what part Canyon is playing in this campaign. So let's all, old and young alike, do his or her part in showing the rest of the Panhandle what we, the people of Canyon, are doing in this campaign.

Contact the Lions Club today.

What To Do With These People? Let 'em Marry!

How do you suppose the following men and women got along before they were married:

The wife who claims she wouldn't know what to do with herself if her husband left her alone for an evening to go out with his friends?

The husband who can't get off in the morning without the little woman's "finding" everything he wants to wear?

The wife who prefaces all comments on politics and world affairs with "John says—?"

The husband who blames everything that goes wrong on his better half?

The wife who can't keep a check-book straight or pull a tray of ice cubes out of the refrigerator?

The husband whose wife claims everything they have done is due to her managing?

The wife who uses her husband's peculiarities as bridge table conversation?

The husband who starts all of his speeches with a crack about the wife being the boss?

The wife who is known only as Tom Jones' wife?

The husband who considers it his wife's job to answer all letters he receives from his relatives?

The wife who feels she is superior to any and all unmarried women, simply by reason of being married?

The husband who lets everyone understand that he would be a darling fellow, lead an exciting life, if marriage didn't interfere?

Yea! And Who Was the Boy?

The wedding ceremony was read in the private parlor of Randall Hall, Tuesday, June 18, at 7 p. m. Those present heard the beautiful song "Hold Thou My Hand" sung by Christine Shannon and Leta Rue Riddle. They were accompanied by Naomi Slay of Wellington.

Condron Talks Before Forum

There can be no permanent union, stability or peace until there is common understanding between the peoples of the world, Prof. S. H. Condron of the department of economics and government told a Y. M. C. A. open forum session in Amarillo June 17.

Mr. Condron, speaking on the international situation, said that we have all the means today for a common understanding but that there is a great race between force, represented by science, and mind, represented by an altruism. ## Many Participate Tattle Type On Play Night

Bates, Crowell, Allen,
Stevens, and Herring Get
Homers—Collegians Win

By CAROLYN GREENWAY

More than 250 men and women saw action in Friday night's "playnite" series. One hundred and fifty participated in softball and about 100 in volleyball.

The first games were played in the six-team league of men composed of The Collegians, Stafford Hall, Lions Club, Buffalo Courts, Business Men and N. Y. A. The Collegians in a last minute rally defeated Stafford Hall by a score of 10-9. Stewart connected for a two-base hit which drove in the winning run. R. S. Bates collected two home runs. Crowell and Bill Allen collected one homer each. Stevens got two homers and Herring one for the losers. Owen and Laycock were the batteries for the Collegians and Graham and Stevens for Stafford Hall.

The N. Y. A. team had little trouble winning over the Business Men by a score of 30-10. Lemons and Ticer were batteries for N. Y. A. and Howard and Woods for the Business men. Buffalo Courts won over the Lions Club 21-7. McLaury and Brandon were batteries for the Buffaloes and Thompson and Goodman for the Lions. The Lions lost a great portion of this game from errors in the outfield.

The Teams of the mens' league have the following standing:

	Won	Lost	Pct.
Buffalo Courts	1	0	.1000
Collegians	1	0	.1000
N. Y. A.	1	0	.1000
Business Men	0	1	.0000
Lions	0	1	.0000
Stafford Hall	0	1	.0000

The following schedule will be observed Friday night:

Buffalo Courts vs. N. Y. A. on diamond No. 1 at 7 o'clock.

Lions Club vs. Stafford Hall on diamond No. 1 at 8 o'clock.

The girls' teams will play on diamond No. 2 at 7 o'clock.

Collegians vs. Business Men on diamond No. 2 at 8 o'clock.

There will be a meeting of the captains of all teams in the athletic office on Thursday at 7 p. m. to formulate rules and regulations of the league.

The girls' team captained by Imogene Dalton got loose for the first time Wednesday night and won over Hinkle's team by the score of 23-12. Harvey, Harrell and Greenway collected homers for the winning team, and Pillow and Gee scored one each for the losers. The same procedure took place again Friday night when Dalton's team won by the score of 20-4.

Tanner, Harvey and Greenway knocked home runs for the winners and Whiteside collected one for the losers. The girls' teams play twice each week. They play on the regular "playnite" schedule and then again at 7 p. m. on Wednesday nights on the court west of Burton Gym. There are two volleyball courts west of the gym where men and women play mixed volleyball until dark.

Friday night at 3 o'clock all men and women interested in organizing a mixed volleyball league meet with Miss Evans at the west court and plans will be made.

NEW CATALOGS READY

New catalogs for West Texas State have come from the state printing office and copies are available at the office of the registrar. Details of the 1940-41 term are included.

MRS. CONE DIES

Grandmother of Bill Cone of Canyon, Mrs. Saline J. Cone of Dimmitt, died June 17. Bill and other members of the Henry Cone family attended the funeral services Wednesday.

Have you heard?—Well, that's not the way we heard it—and so on go the familiar gossip phrases. There has been a loud cry about "let's have some real dirt," and other cries about "why ruin a paper with gossip columns?"—and here in this space we do declare we will strike a happy medium, and if the mid is not struck please drop me the hint and not your neighbor.

Digging up "dirt" Sunday wasn't such clean fun for the simple reason that the air was foul. The best clean dirt we could dig up is the one about a member of the faculty, and for fear Prexy may be looking in I'll keep it to myself.

FLASH: It's a fashion flash from Hollywood that Anna Neagle has just been selected as the "best dressed International screen star" in the 1940 awards of the fashion academy. She is starring in "Irene," showing at the Olympic Theater Saturday night.

HATS OFF! It seems to be a general feeling to think Grant Reynolds "is a regular guy." Everybody has the warmest predilection for him.

Girls! Here's News—a lipstick that positively will not melt in the sun, can't smear, and it WON'T RUB OFF! It's the new lip tone in the latest shades at the friendly City Pharmacy.

THIRD FLOOR GOSSIP: Mr. Baker has evidence that will convince you that certain people's kisses contain bacteria, and that there's one kind of chewing gum that does not have bacteria!

What did you dream last night? Whether it was worth telling or not it will probably have a special meaning, and you can find that meaning in the "Mystic Dream Book." For example did you ever dream about apples which means that you will be responsible for some misfortune. Warwick's have a large selection of books, and I'll bet you could find out about your dreams there.

A bit sentimental:

Expectation
Starlight, moon glow,
Hoofbeats in the snow.

Lamplight, fire glow,
Footsteps at the door.

Lovelight, heart glow,
In your arms once more.
—Gladys Brierly Ashour.

Instead of burning the old mid-time oil, go around to Thompson's Hardware and look into purchasing one of those eye saving I. E. S. Lamps. It's a good investment in study efficiency in those orbs about which the optician tells us we only have two in a lifetime.

Quoting Emily Post, "Would you like to know the secret of popularity? It is 'unconscious of self, enthusiastic interest in almost anything that turns up, and inward generosity of thought and impulse outwardly expressed in good manners.'"

To keep clean inside be sure the glass you drink from is sanitary, and if you want to be double sure of this take a trip to J. J. Walker's Drug Store for a glass washed through a sterilizer for glasses.

Earl Wilbur can be located (if you want him) at one of two places according to Mr. Schmutz: at the flying field, or flying high with Dorothy.

Are you planning to go somewhere real soon, when you will be in a hurry to get away? Well, by gory, hop in your car, and rush by the Consumer's Service Station where they will give you plenty of service in double quick time. And if you have a girl don't stop long, because the minute you stop, a group of good looking service men group around your car, and start to work.

Query

How,
Then,
Distinguish
(Since they look the same)
The flush
Of Pleasure
From
The Blush
Of Shame?

Ted Malone.

Gee-e-e-e! Don't you get thirsty after the show—especially when you can pick up a nice nook to park your girl in, and a nickelodian to furnish the mood? I've seen just such a place, and it's close to the show too. Yes, Jarrett's Drug Store.

Fellows, here's a hint on making that date with the best girl a huge success. The surest way to the girl's (as well as the man's) heart is by way of food, you know; so patronize the Palace Cafe for delectable summer meals.

We only saw:
B. Raymond Evans and Fernie Fry;
Johnny Toles and Mary Alexander;
Editor Hemphill and Ernestine Cundiff.
Roy Cheatham and Helen Eoff;
Handsome newcomer and Annie Sue Williams.

And that brings us around to a tip that the girls' summer grooming is a problem, but don't let it get you down. Just call 78 and make an appointment at the Cinderella Beauty Shop.

The wedding rate for June is holding up, thank you. We may even hit an all-time high for the matrimonial achievements of students and exes.

To highlight those academic (?) pursuits, take off for a picnic and stop by M. E. Moses Co. for the supplies.

All kinds of good luck to you, Dorothy Warwick, in your combination school-vacation trip to the west coast.

Bernard Warren can be found (in case of need) at The Peoples Store on the west side of the square, where you'll be sure to get the latest in clothing and accessories for everyone.

Warning! Steer clear of the speech clinic if you don't have a sense of humor or want to improve your voice. If you walk in and an ah-hh-h-h greets you, don't be alarmed. It will turn out for the best.

If you don't know where to buy the most fashionable clothes, and especially play clothes, then this note is especially for you. Allen and Black's always stock the latest slacks, shorts, and play suits.

Well, we come to the end of a far from perfect column, and if this is in favor of the Dan's then you've got it.

Baggett Returns To Columbia

Athletic Director Al Baggett left Sunday for New York City where he will teach in Columbia University. He will complete two courses in his work toward a Doctor's degree.

He and Mrs. Baggett will visit Coach Baggett's father and mother, Dr. and Mrs. E. A. Baggett in Hot Springs, Ark. He will remain at Columbia six weeks, returning August 20 to Canyon.

LIBRARY—

year they took care of the library the best they could. The agriculture teacher, a fine, well-read man, was supposed to supervise it. They used an old ledger in which to keep a record of books charged out—a page or two assigned to each student. When I took charge some students had as many as 35 books out. There was a need for a librarian, and the President had many applicants. One gave a recommendation the fact that she 'could reach to the top shelf and stoop to the bottom shelf.'"

Position In Danger

"When I came back to Texas in 1911 and took up my work as Librarian at West Texas, the Texas teachers colleges were under the State Board of Education and a local board of directors. The next year a law became effective placing the management of all Texas teachers colleges under one Board of Regents. Some members of the new board were not library minded and the president had a hard time convincing them that a janitor could not look after the library. I came very near losing my position to the janitor and did lose $100 from my salary," the author wrote.

About current West Texas library news, she said, "our library at W. T. is bursting out of its walls, but we have a trained library staff of excellent quality and many lovely intelligent student assistants, and we will get a new building yet, if we can only be patient."

COFFEE—

two largest customers, England and Canada, are now belligerents."

Trade Will Be Lost

In discussing further aspects of a German victory, the speaker said that nearly all our European trade would be lost and lost permanently. The German empire will be almost a self-sufficient empire, and Germany will likely become a competitor in the neutral countries.

The loss of markets will lead to a falling standard of living, and will increase government regulation, Mr. Coffee believes.

"Economic burdens of successful national defense will also become a drain upon our living standards," the speaker said.

Idea Based on Sentiment

In mentioning the 22-nation proposal of President Roosevelt, Mr. Coffee said the idea was based upon sentiment and not reality.

He pointed out that the present national debt would make it difficult to carry on a war and at the same time avoid a regimented economy. That a bankrupt nation can carry on a war is illustrated by the

Coaches Seek Doctor's Degree

Mitchell Jones, Al Baggett, and Jack Curtice are three members of the coaching staff away for the summer working toward the Doctor's degree. Prof. Jones, freshman coach, is studying at the University of Southern California, and Mr. Baggett, athletic director, and Mr. Curtice, head football coach, are on their way to Columbia.

Leslie Van Meter, line coach, will remain to direct the summer athletic program here at W. T.

on armaments; Russia, 13.5 billion; England, 6.2 billion; France, 5.6 billion; United States and Japan 5.1 billion each. It will be observed that Germany spent 7.3 billion more on armaments than England and France combined.

"On the other hand, Norway, Denmark, Sweden, and Holland as well as France and England have suffered the pangs of privation as severely if not more so than has Germany, but instead of increasing their social ills by spending all of their resources for armaments, they used them to improve their standard of living. Now Hitler is waging a war to appropriate the savings of his neighbors. He probably labors under the impression that Germany's greatness is to be achieved through the impoverishment of the Allies," he added.

Favors Roosevelt Policy

Mr. Dufлот was asked about aid to the Allies. "I am 100% for President Roosevelt's policy of stripping our own army of everything we have, if need be, in the way of planes, guns, and all other war materials and sending them at once under our own convoys, if necessary, to England.

"I have no patience with that group of Republicans and Democrats who are so afflicted with hysterical blindness that they cannot see that our defense lies now on the English shores. The more we can help England to cripple Germany now the better our defense will be a year from now. I think it is treason for the isolationist to give Hitler indirect support by blocking the efforts of the President to help England with all of our resources short of conscripted man power," Prof. Dufлот said.

German nation, he said, but a war cannot be carried on by such a nation without a regimented economy.

In conclusion he said, "We're going to feel the impact of the war regardless of who wins. The difference will be only a matter of degree."

Red Cross Asks For Greater Aid

Fall of France Adds to Burdens of Red Cross, Is Report to Local Chapter

Randall county citizens are urged to continue making contributions to the American Red Cross.

Guy Harp, chairman of the Randall County Red Cross Chapter, received the following telegram yesterday:

"Cessation of hostilities in France does not diminish the terrible suffering and need of refugees. We intend to continue to extend all possible relief. We will safeguard our relief measures so that aid goes solely to those for whom contributions have been received. Great need now exists in England and will undoubtedly increase in the near future. The amount raised nationally to date totals $12,500,000. If every chapter will determine to do its share we should exceed our goal of 20 million by June 30."

Randall county raised the quota of $560 last week, but the drive for funds continues in order that Randall county people be permitted to show their appreciation of the great relief work being done by the Red Cross.

J. W. Shook, who has been in charge of the special call for funds, reports that people from over the country are making contributions almost daily. All citizens who have not made contributions are urged to do so at once. A large per cent of the money is used by the Red Cross to buy supplies in the United States and ship them to suffering women and children of Europe who are innocent victims of a cruel and wholly uncalled for war.

Contributions will be received by Mr. Shook, Mr. Harp, Mayor C. H. Jarrett, Levi Cole or Clyde Warwick.

Wanted Teachers Who Can Rough It

A recent clipping from the Christian Science Monitor concerning teachers points to a demand for teachers who can rough it.

"The Indian service wants 'school marm's' who can 'rough it.' 'It says it is through with teachers who 'had the necessary intelligence' but who lacked a rural background and a pioneer spirit.

"A government announcement explained:

"Until recently it would have been possible for a 23 or 24 year old girl who had never lived anywhere except in a modern, apartment building where she turned on the heat, pushed a button, and telephoned for groceries . . . to pass brilliantly a civil service examination for an Indian service teaching job.

"Subsequently she might find herself living in a cottage 60 miles from the nearest town and 40 miles from medical help via dirt roads, stoking a wood stove for heat, cleaning oil lamps and teaching a varied group of Indian children who understood little English and little of white ways, and whose main concern outside of school hours was helping their parents to get enough to eat from inadequate land."

"New examinations will take into consideration not only the applicant's educational qualifications but also her rural experience and understanding, initiative, ingenuity, and fortitude."
