MATADORS SPLIT SERIES; BUFF TRADITION UPHOLD

No Tech Team Has Taken A Two-Game Series From Herd

Becoming the third team from their college in eight years to win a game from the Buffaloes on their home floor, the mighty Matadors from Texas Tech split a two game series here last week, winning the last game 29-22, and dropping the first by a 23-22 margin.

The Buffaloes were playing good basketball both games, but let up in the last half of the second game and lost their lead never to regain it.

The first game was a nerve-racking thriller, especially during the last half when the score saw-sawed from one team to another. Stroud started the game off right by sinking a free shot, then McMinn looped in a goal to give the Buffs a lead they kept the first half, the score at the end of the period being 13-8.

Last Half Thrilling
Things began to stir in the last half. Priddy, star guard and critic from Tech, sank a field goal early in the period to begin the race. Phillips sank a charity toss, but Gilmore and Crews evened the count at 14 all with two shots through the basket; then Crews looped in another to give Tech the only lead they held during the game. Phillips and McMinn dropped in three charity shots to take the lead, but Priddy sank a grafs and evened the count at 17. Stroud sank a field shot, but Crews retaliated and tied the score again. Then Phillips and Stroud dropped two long ones in to finish the Herd's scoring. Gilmore and Crews made three free shots, but could not sink the one field goal necessary to win the game.

In the second game, the first half was the thriller. Each team sank a shot as soon as the other took the lead, until late in the half, by virtue of the Crews brothers two charity tosses, the Matadors took a one point lead. Just before the gun Richards looped in a long one to give the Bison Herd a 15-14 lead at the half.

The boys from Lubbock came back like wildfire, though and took a large lead that the Buffs could not overcome. The Matadors made 15 points to the Buffs' 7 in the last half.

Stroud Shows Up Well
No small feature of the games was Captain Stroud's magnificent playing. During the last game he broke up a great many of the Tech quint's plays. At the same time (Continued on page three)

ANNOUNCEMENT NEXT WEEK ABOUT TRACK TEAM

All boys interested in track watch for the announcement in next week's Prairie, at which time there will be a definite announcement concerning the beginning of practice. We hear that Brewer Neal, Austin Cone, and "Slate" Middleton have been working out for several weeks. We are expecting many boys out this year, so watch next week's paper.

Friendship Class Interests Free Lance Writer

Miss Elsie Montgomery of Darrouzette, Texas, a recent visitor of Dr. Debo, has become interested in the Friendship Sunday School Class of the Methodist Church. She is a free lance writer who has graduated from Oklahoma University and has her Masters degree from the Missouri University. Miss Montgomery has been collecting data about the Friendship Class from Louise Jacobsen, a former member, and Kathryn Orr, the present president.

The Friendship Class was organized in the fall of 1924 for freshmen girls and has been under the direction of Dr. Debo. It has formulated many interesting traditions, one of which is the making of a friendship chain. Each year a new link is added with the proper date. At present, the chain contains ten links. Miss Montgomery will use this material for an article to be published in the Methodist Sunday School magazine.

Much Interest Is Shown In Contest

Students Prepare Manuscripts For T. I. P. A.

Material for the literary contests for the T. I. P. A. began coming in this week and it is expected that most of the contributions will be in the hands of the local judges within the next week or so.

Much interest is being manifested in the poetry division, especially, and many students are preparing manuscripts this week which they plan to turn in to Pollyanna Pitts, chairman of the Poetry and One-Act Play division. Aspiring dramatists of the college are asked to submit those one-act masterpieces they've been working on.

Several English classes have been studying the essay and it is expected that many students will be interested in this literary division of the formal or familiar essay which is being handled by Ruby Lee McMillen.

Don't Be Timid
Bill Pittman says there are any number of ambitious literary students who are interested in the short story but who feel that their efforts along this line "are not quite good enough." Students are advised to submit any and all serious or humorous short stories; the judges will erase that doubt in your mind when the time comes. There are also contests in news article, sports story, editorial and (Continued on last page)

President Hill Attends Meetings In South Texas

President J. A. Hill left Thursday for Fort Worth and Austin where he attended several important meetings over the week end.

Friday he met with those in charge of the Public Works Administration in Fort Worth. The following day he attended a meeting of Texas State College Presidents in Austin, and on Sunday he was present at a similar meeting of Teachers College Presidents at the same place.

Monday Dr. Hill attended a meeting of Teachers College Regents at San Marcos. He expects to return to Canyon Wednesday.

New Books On Rental Shelf

The Rental Shelf in the Library grows more popular with the students every day, and there is a reason for its popularity. For the small sum of four cents, one may read the latest books on the market. Reading a worthwhile book a week will add to the student's personality and culture.

Books of fiction, autobiography, travel and other types of literature will be found on this shelf. The poetry and drama is of outstanding merit. Try reading a book a week, and see the pleasure to be derived from good books. The librarians will be glad to recommend books, and will assist you in choosing.

Among the new books just received are:

"Ah! Wilderness," by Eugene O'Neill, a comedy of recollections. This drama impresses one deeply, and a theme of tenderness and comfort is found.

The "Autobiography of Alice B. Toklas," is a fascinating book revealing the life of Gertrude Stein. The book is written in a novel manner.

Hervey Allen's "Anthony Adverse," has also been added to the rental shelf. This book will be of interest to many.

Colonel Coppock To Speak Thursday To W. T. Students

Postponed from last week because of conflicting dates, the talk on "A Day in the Army," will be given by Colonel Edward R. Coppock of the Palo Duro CCC Camp on Thursday evening, February 8, at 7:30 o'clock in the Education auditorium at the College.

The talk will be illustrated by a bugler from the camp who is assisting Colonel Coppock.

Members of the literary societies, musical organizations, and scout troops are especially invited. There will be no admission charge.

FATHER OF STUDENT DIES MONDAY MORNING

Students are grieved to hear of the death of Amos Persons, father of Lucille Persons, a student in the College. Mr. Persons died Monday morning at his home in Quitaque.

92 NEW STUDENTS HAVE ENTERED W. T.

Increases Enrollment Of College To 907

EXPECT OTHERS

New Nine-Weeks Term Opens Here On April 2

A total of 92 new students had enrolled for the opening of the second semester at the West Texas State Teachers College, according to figures on hand in the Registrar's office late yesterday. There are several who have not yet completed the business of enrollment and it is expected the figures will reach or pass the 100 mark before Wednesday.

Expect To Break Record

This increase in numbers brings the total enrollment figures for the College up to 907 for the year with one more registration date, April 2, still to be considered. Judging by the inquiries already on hand concerning the opening of the second nine weeks term, there will be scores of new students register at that time, bringing the figures to a new high record for all time.

Registration of new students brings the figures of the College and training school to 1,156 with 907 students in the former and 249 in the latter.

Much of the increase is attributed to the fact that the college is now operating on the split-semester plan which enables students to enter classes every nine weeks.

Exes Visit

The halls of the Administration Building were crowded Saturday with exes shaking hands with old friends and teachers, and meeting new ones. We freshies stare at these successful exes as if they were strangers—when the fact is—they are old-timers and we are the strangers. We are always glad to meet these W. T. graduates who have done things in the old world—and when we're feeling low, the thought that we have a place, a future—as these exes have made for themselves, pep us up a lot.

Ruth Brazil, who is teaching at Acme; La Paye Blair, Silverton; Mrs. Ed Weeks, Lakeside; Mamie Price, Clarendon; Lois Foster, River Road; Roger George, Umbarger; Miss Walker, Mobetie; Hazel Cooper, Mobetie; Jo Bryant, Wheeler; and Pat Gerald, Fadian Lee, Ruby Blansit, and Ernestine Newberry were among the visitors on the campus Saturday.

New Club Organized On W. T. Campus!

(By An H. M.)
Students, 'tis a great life, yes sir, a great life. A few of the shining lights of the school have banded together to form a congenial little fun-loving group who have decided to call their little organization, "The Happy Morons." The percentage of morons in this institution is surprisingly small, say the club founders, since the majority of the students are either grinds or idiots. Several of the more active faculty were considered, but after a careful study as well as a very close observation of the activities and habits of some of the candidates considered, it was decided that none of the faculty could be considered the right type for a Happy Moron.

The officers who were elected were as follows: Lewis Shirley, president; Whitman Fish, vice-president; Bill Pittman, assistant to vice president; Farris Sears, secretary; James Stone, chairman of how-to-be-a-happy-moron committee; Carroll Boyd, assistant to Mr. Stone; and Cheezie George Manning, parliamentarian. No treasurer was considered, for no one could trust anyone else.

All those who wish to join this merry little band may turn their names into any of the officers and their names and qualifications will be considered at the earliest possible moment.

More news about this up and coming organization in the near future. Watch for it!

Three W. T. Studes Take West Point Exams Recently

Of the nine young men of Amarillo and the Panhandle who recently took an entrance examination for Annapolis and West Point, three were students of W. T.

The test was given on Jan. 6, and began at 9 o'clock Saturday morning in the Federal building. It was given by C. M. Tyler, secretary of the local Civil Service commission, assisted by M. E. Dillard. The time required to finish the examination was seven and one-half hours.

The three W. T. students, G. F. Bishop, Jr., a junior, Robert Rowan, a senior, and J. M. Davis, a sophomore, have received no word as to who passed the examination.

College Band Plays at C.C.C. Camp Saturday

The W. T. College Band, under the direction of Director C. E. Strain, played at the CCC Camp Sunday afternoon, February 4. Request numbers were played, and the program was well received.

The program, composed of eight selections were as follows:

"The Thunderer"—March Sousa
"Flag of Freedom"—March Panella
"Souvenir de Baden-Baden"—N. Bousquet
Medley of Billy Sunday's Successful Songs

"That Little Boy of Mine"—Meroff, King, Hirsch

"Queen City"—March Weidt

"La Paloma"—Yradier

"Jolly Sailors"—March Weidt

The closing number on the program was "Alma Mater."

Professor Frank R. Phillips gave the main address of the evening. Dorothy McKenzie acted as pianist. At the invitation of the members of the camp, the entertainers remained for Sunday night supper.

C.W.A. Workers For P-P.H. Museum

Six workers have been allotted to the Panhandle-Plains Historical Society Museum by the CWA officials of Randall County. They will start arranging and classifying materials, immediately.

This project is the second aid the museum has received from the government relief agencies. Already work has been begun on the project recently secured. Harold Bugbee and Ben Carlton Mead, Panhandle artists, expect to have the murals which they are painting in the Museum completed by February 15 or soon afterwards.

BAND IN ASSEMBLY

On January 27, the band was presented for the second time this year in school assembly. The trombone solo, "Young Werner's Parting Song" by V. E. Nessler, was played by Charlie Stratton. The two compositions played by the band were:

Selection from "The Red Mill" by Victor Herbert.
"Souvenir de Baden-Baden," by N. Bousquet.

THREE ARE CHOSEN TO SERVE ON CONVENTION COMMITTEES

Ex-Students Visit Museum and Palo Duro Here Sunday

Superintendent J. B. Speer, of Morse, and a group of twenty-two Morse citizens and their families visited the Panhandle-Plains Historical Society and the Palo Duro State Park Sunday.

Mr. Speer is an ex-student of W. T., as are several of his teaching faculty, including Mrs. Speer, who teaches the first and second grades; Miss Lorna Stock, who teaches English, and Mrs. Hardin Boyles, (nee Velma McCaslin) who teaches the third and fourth grades.

Other members of the party included President of the Morse School Board, A. E. Henderson and family, Secretary Roy Womble and family, Secretary to the Pringle School Board, Lloyd Henderson, and family, and Moody Womble, of Morse.

The Morse Public School system is one of the outstanding new systems in the Panhandle, making rapid strides since its inauguration four years ago. The Morse P. T. A. contributed to the building fund of the museum.

Denis To Give Lecture-Recital

Noted Dancer Will Be Assisted By Pianist

Ruth St. Denis, world famous dancer who will appear at the College on the evening of February 15, will give a lecture-recital in which she will speak on "The Dance as a Cultural Force," following it with a group of her best known dances. With her will appear Wells-Hively, noted composer pianist, in the dual role of accompanist and soloist.

Miss St. Denis, long designated as one of the three outstanding exponents of the dance, including Anna Pavlova and Isador Duncan, embarked on a lecture-recital tour in 1931. So pronounced has been her success that she has filled more than twenty-five such engagements within the metropolitan area of New York alone.

Miss St. Denis, say many prominent critics, must not be confused with the rank and file of lecturers for, in addition to being a most delightful and informative speaker whose remarks are always spiced with a rich vein of humor, she is everywhere acknowledged to be one of the world's foremost artists. The fact that she follows her talk with a group of her most famous dances, places the event on a plane apart from the average lecture or lecture-recital.

Propose Changes In Distribution of State Funds

Six students of W. T., representing three counties of Northwest Texas, attended the West Texas Convention of the Young Democratic Society held in Lubbock Saturday, February 3. G. L. Stanley, John D. Davidson, Nell Proctor, Ethel Rowland, Leonard Mills, and Jack Wright were those serving in these official positions at the meet.

Besides the office of chairman of the Randall County delegation, G. L. Stanley served as Party Whip of the North Texas Bloc. Other delegates from the recently organized Randall County Club were John Davidson, Nell Proctor and Ethel Rowland. Leonard Mills and Jack Wright represented Moore and Briscoe County respectively.

Elected to Committee
John Davidson was elected to the Credentials Committee, generally considered the most important committee of the convention set-up. Other honors came to W. T. students in the election of Ethel Rowland to the Women's Coordination Committee and of Jack Wright to the Nominations Committee.

According to reports from the W. T. delegates, the college students from Amarillo College and Texas Technological College, as well as those from W. T., favored the passing of a resolution proposing the reduction of the Texas Legislature to a unicameral body of thirty-six members. This move has been advocated by professors and students of government in all these colleges.

Propose Changes
The Convention also proposed the more equitable distribution of state funds for highways and education, stating that West Texas had not been getting its share.

Mayor Walter Nelson, Jr. of Wichita Falls and Maury Hughes of Dallas, State Democratic Chairman, were the principal speakers of the convention, each extolling the national administration and President Roosevelt and pleading for a new deal in Texas politics. Tom F. Hunter and C. C. McDonald, both of Wichita Falls and both seeking the Democratic nomination for governor, were among the candidates present.

Next year's convention was secured for Amarillo. The students who attended the convention at Lubbock have expressed their eager anticipation of this event.

Hill and Coppock On Radio Program

President J. A. Hill of the College and Colonel Edward R. Coppock of the Palo Duro CCC Camp will be the main speakers on the W. T. S. T. C. radio program given in Amarillo Wednesday evening, February 14.

Professor C. W. Batchelder will announce the program and several W. T. students will give musical selections during the half hour.

Reporter Sees Strange Things In Museum During Night-Watch

Romance Walks In Eerie Pageant Of Yesterday

(By Pollyanna Pitts)

For those poor, deluded, too practical people who are unaware of the romance in their environment, I wish to recount a story of one night's extraordinary adventure—so extraordinary that it seemed almost beyond all mortal conception of understanding. It was made all the more fantastic because it happened right here on our campus—in the P. P. H. S. Museum.

The latch on the big doors was broken, and I served as night watchman while it was being repaired. Lying there in the dark, in that atmosphere of bygone days, amid the relics of historic milestones, I suddenly thought of that old superstition about the "awakening at midnight of all inanimate objects, and I smiled at the idea of hearing or seeing things resume their life as in former days. At exactly this point in my musings, I was roused by the sound of human voices around me, and to my great wonder I saw my midnight fantasy come to life.

Fearing lest the spell be broken, I sat rigid on the edge of the cot, and watched and listened to the most fantastic episode of all time. There was the dress worn by some beautiful, young lady when she danced with the great Lafayette. No longer a faded brocade, it had changed to a new, glistening satin, and it adorned the figure of a radiant young girl, as she told of her charming Frenchman and his popularity in America.

Next to her was a large, barbarous, arrogant Indian, wearing the headdress of the Comanche chief. His magnificent body almost naked, his bronze skin shining, his visage sharp and commanding, and with that headdress flowing behind, he presented a most picturesque spectacle as he strode up and down the Pioneer Hall recounting his deeds of bravery.

From their frames stepped out the figures of three Prussian emperors, the first ruler, his son the crown prince, and the baby, whom we later knew as the Kaiser during the war.

There also was Quannah Parker, that famously intelligent Indian, telling of the first days of civilization in America. I saw his expression change, however, as he looked down the length of the museum hall, and saw the picture of Adobe Walls. He was the chief who had led the Comanches in this battle, and as he looked at the pictures of prairie covered with buffalo skins and bones, he was reminded of the causes of that (Continued on page two)

"Llano Estacado" Was First Of College Literary Productions

Small Magazine Was Not Adequate For School

(By Malcolm J. Carr)

The first and shortest-lived of West Texas College news publications was "The Llano Estacado," the first issue of which appeared in 1916, prepared by the following editorial staff: Editor, Ira Allen; Associate Editor, Walter E. Spurgeon; Business Manager, Fred Heyser; Literary Editor, Will Berry; John Editor, Hilliard Fatheree; and Art Editor, Lottie Hume. The second editorial staff of the "Llano Estacado" assumed their duties in the new building, rebuilt after the first was destroyed by fire, but were forced to discontinue when the war broke in and claimed three of the staff.

Not Adequate
The "Llano Estacado," however,

was only a small magazine and was not adequate for the needs of a rapidly growing educational institution. The demand for a college newspaper grew more insistent until definite action was taken in the fall of 1919. The first issue was on Monday, Oct. 20, 1919, published under the title of the "Prairie," a bi-monthly publication, and edited under the supervision of the English department. The editorial staff was composed of the following: Editor-in-chief, Gracie Penrod; Assistant Editor, Edna Dyche; Business Manager, Kenneth Burns; Art Editor, Juanita Beall; Exchange Editor, Dan Sanders; Society Editor, Lizzie Kate Smith; Athletic Representatives, Frank Lohn and Alma Guenther; and Fine Arts Representative, Annet Beene.

Interesting articles in some of the first editions of the Prairie included one stating that "National Consciousness Is Lacking in the Teaching Profession," another bemoaning the low salaries of teachers, and a third, on Dec. 15, 1919, announcing that "Time Ripe for National Unity."

Many Sections
Some of the first columns and sections of the Teachers growing newspaper were editorial, sports, society, jokes, personal, poems, "Love Lyrics," "Sketches," exchange, a magazine section, an information column, "Krisp Komment," and a literary section.

During the early years of the Prairie, separate editions were devoted to or sponsored by Le Mirage, the Seniors, the Juniors, the Parent-Teachers Association, Antler-Elaphelian, Cousins-Sesame, Interscholastic League, the Sophomores, the Training School, Homecoming, and New Students. A large illustrated historical edition was issued on March 7, 1921, telling of the student body, faculty, school organizations and other pertinent (Continued on page two)

HOPE FOR POLITICS

Young Democrats of West Texas are to be commended for the progressive measures that they advocated at the political convention held in Lubbock last week. If these youths' plans may be taken as indices of the coming trend of government, those who are now pessimistically inclined to think that there is no hope for politics must perforce lay aside that opinion.

The younger elements in the political parties are not binding themselves to the traditions of spoils system government, that heinous institution that vitiates all idealistic theories of politics. The young party members seem free; they have opened their minds to the liberating forces of reform; they have demonstrated their belief in the perfectibility of government. But if these new elements do not constantly guard against the boss who desires to make conformists of them, there is a possibility that the good work already started will be arrested.

And another encouraging aspect of the Young Democrats' Convention was that students of the three colleges of this section took a leading part in the political activities. Those who are best trained are waking up from the idealistic dreams and abandoning the iconoclastic slanders of college students trained in former days. They are wielding the practical implements that will accomplish their idealism, the tools with which they may construct a new order when they may have succeeded in destroying the old.

THE NEW MAN

Recently, Mrs. Franklin Delano Roosevelt, speaking before a group of clubwomen said, "I was asked by a group of college seniors what I thought they could do when they left college. I told them, frankly, that I thought it was up to them to think of new ways of earning a living. I think it is very foolish to go on training young people for the vocations and professions that are already overcrowded."

Most of us will admit without argument that it is foolish to train for a profession in which you are crowded out before you start. It seems futile when, after years and years of preparation, you find yourself on the outside while someone else, not so well prepared as you are, is on the inside.

This criticism has frequently been made of the teaching profession, especially by those who wish to enter the field but hesitate because they feel they are being unjustly discriminated against. In many respects, it is not an unjust criticism but it is a criticism that is going out of date.

Standards of the teaching profession are being raised day by day. The recently passed regulations for teachers in Texas are going to do much to weed out the unprepared, the incapable, and the idler from this, one of the foremost professions in the world. Such regulations are building, month by month, year by year, a firmer foundation for those who are prepared, and the well trained teacher who has spent time and effort in learning his job is not going to find himself overlooked when his call to service is sounded.

But still more important than man made laws is the change in public opinion that is sweeping through, not only Texas, but the other states as well—the people themselves are undergoing an education of their own in learning the art of selecting real teachers, in recognizing people of ability and competence who are qualified for the job. No longer are teachers being selected at random by men and women who know nothing of schools or of school systems.

This two-fold progress in laws and change in public education is making the demand for real teachers greater than it has ever been. It is no longer an "overcrowded" profession, and one that many enter as a means of support until something "easier" shows up.

Thus, the college student of today who is preparing to enter the teaching profession, can go into it with the feeling that he or she is selecting a profession that is growing greater with the years. He will not be forced, at the last minute, to think up new ways to earn his living, but, in fitting himself for the new era, he will find that he is a NEW man for an old job.

T-Anchor Farm News

(By Howard Weatherby)

Just before the close of last semester several of the boys became vitally interested in adopting seals and symbols for the representation of different parts of the farm. The South House adopted a representative seal to be placed on the mind of each of those students residing at that place during the first semester of 1933-34 term. The seal is a luscious, inviting purple topped turnip set in a beautiful background of a two-prong, crispy brown spare rib. Encircling this balanced diet design, and to further balance it, is a wealth of pinto beans and rice pudding with steam rising leisurely.

By way of comment we notice that Edd Todd has a more contented look on his countenance of recent date, and that he is up later at night. We think we say the answer to that question in the hall yesterday.

Getting back to Governor Hock (G. Caviness) again. He ventured down home with Rosy Browning between semesters and now he is all down at the mouth. We get interested right away and investigate the case. Rosy admits himself that his mother can make excellent pies and that probably Governor overdid the thing.

Ernest Tate (or Legs) is being very careful about a certain swollen place on his head, commonly referred to as a "knot," ever since he was demonstrating his acrobatic ability of jumping and touching the ceiling with his head.

Well, well, was George Gandy in high cotton Friday at the library or wasn't he? And who, just positively who, was that girl wearing the brown dress? And, lastly was she studying, too?

Who believes in fair play anymore? Well, I do, for one. And I'm going to demonstrate the fact by letting any resident of the College Farm fill my column next week. For one whole semester I've been taking liberal cracks at them and next week I shall hand in anything they want to write. I'm sure they shall all get even with each other for I've done 'em no wrong. Oh, my. Now, get ready, boys, and stir up the news.

items since the founding of West Texas State Normal School. Of special interest was an article relating the burning of the administration building on March 25, 1914, and the dedication of the new building on April 21, 1916. Other editions included one for the Panhandle-Plains Historical Society, one for Commencement, and one for the Young Women's Christian Association.

Interest Grows

Meanwhile, school and community interest in the Prairie was growing rapidly, and advertisers were evincing their support in such a substantial manner that it was desirable to have more frequent than bi-monthly issues. On October 2, 1923, the Prairie became a weekly publication, issued on Tuesdays, instead of Mondays as formerly. Staff members were: Editor-in-chief, Frank P. Hill; Business Manager, J. Evetts Haley; Managing Editor, Olin E. Hinkle; and Faculty Advisor, Miss Jennie C. Ritchie.

Evidently newspaper life fascinated a large number of the student body, for in the fall of 1923 a journalism class was sponsored by the English Department and conducted by Dr. David H. Munson. The class met once a week throughout the year and offered three term hours credit. Under this stimulus the Prairie became a better organized, more all-encompassing paper, and increased remarkably its service to the school. The size of the paper increased until on May 13, 1924, a W. T. Chamber of Commerce edition of 12 pages was published.

Strives To Please

The Prairie, as always, strives admirably to relate all events "on the campus and in the parlor," to offer a laugh here and a proverb there, and above all to submit an accurate reflection of the spirit of W. T. S. T. C. This is the ambition of your present staff: Emil Brewer, Editor-in-chief; Vincent Lockhart, Sports Editor; Ethel Rowland, Society Editor; Pollyanna Pitts, Feature Editor; Ashley Little, Business Manager; Mildred McMILLAN, Assistant Business Manager. war, and his hatred of those buffalo hunters who sought to kill all the great, wild herds.

Leaving Quanah Parker, his visage darkened by his memories, I saw the symbolic "blue and the grey" uniforms, now decking the figures of two stalwart Americans, and they laughed and talked together, forgetting their former bitternesses.

Everything had come to life. All around stood Colonial men and women in their home spun clothes, Indian youths and dusky maids, wrapped in their brightly colored blankets, people everywhere, laughing and talking, some excited over the first spinning wheel, some exclaiming over the great guns and cannons, some fired with ambition over the invention of the first reaper, and others standing in awe of the first "gasoline buggy," that ran at break-neck speed, without horses.

Each one seemed to be taking his place in a line, and as the pageant swept before me, I saw the Indian and the great hordes of buffalo gradually give place to the pioneers,—men and women with the courage and strength to lay the foundations for a new civilization. Through the light of the sunset and the dust made by the rude ox carts, I saw the old covered wagons, the ragged, weary people, and the tired, thirsty, cattle, and hazily in the background rose the colored walls of the Palo Duro. Some of these old pioneers I recognized, especially Colonel Goodnight, and old Hank Smith, about whom I had heard so much.

The din of voices then gradually died out, and I saw each one take his niche in the Hall of Fame. I completed the pageant from the pages of history in my mind, seeing the old trails, the ranches, and the cattle give way to sky-scrapers, colleges and universities, great cities, and I sat staring wide-eyed

(By Wm. Hawkins)

The new semester is under way now and we are all settled down to our regular studies—that is, as nearly as possible. We are only human; we study when the demand is sufficiently great, otherwise we—well, what would you do?

Woody Boston is no longer with us, we are sad to say. Woody was one of those fellows that everybody liked, and everybody knew. We will miss him, especially when the subject comes up about "How to Keep a Girl."

Edd McMinn has proved to be a good basketball coach. His team, "Moore's Co-op," has won all but one game, and nearly won that one. The rest of you fellows in Intramural teams had better look out, the Co-op is tough.

By the way, we have a new member in our family. He is another representative freshman from Kress in the personage of Andrew Boston. There must be a bunch of them around Kress, however he is not a brother of Jody and Woody, but a nephew.

McMinn has left us as far as slumber parties are concerned. He into the receding light, feeling that I had looked on something immortal.

PI OMEGA DANCE IS GALA AFFAIR

The dance after the ball game last Friday evening, which was sponsored by the Pi Omega, was a very gala affair. Everyone enjoyed dancing to the music of the Colored Rhythm Boys from Amarillo.

The Pi Omega sponsored this dance in order to raise funds to pay the Coronation which was recently held. A large crowd attended and the proceeds were large enough to take care of the indebtedness.

ELAPHEANS ELECT NEW OFFICERS

At the last meeting in January the Elaphean Literary Society chose the following officers:

Adeline McDonald, president. Edna Irene Bandy, vice-president. Lonas Fortenberry, secretary. Adella Beavers, treasurer. Louise Shirley, sergeant-at-arms. Ernestine Walker, chairman of social committee.

Annie Maude Hunter, Prairie reporter.

On Thursday, February 1, the society met in a brief business session and thirteen pledges were chosen for membership.

MATADORS

(Continued from first page) that he was watching the ball and ruining many of the Lubbock boys' chances to score, he kept Robison, the Red and White's hot long shot artist, from scoring more than two points during the entire series. Wester, a substitute for Robison who played the last half of the final game, managed to score a field goal and two charity shots for four points.

All the Buffs played well, making it hard to say just which ones starred. Boedeker, who substituted for Walker at center, stayed with his man and helped to prevent any last minute scoring in the first game. McMinn was going good, both on the defensive and offensive. Richards held A. Crews, Tech hot shot who was high point man in the first game, down to 1 small point in the second.

The Crews brothers and Gilmore were Tech's shining lights on the offense while Priddy did a good job on the defensive and between halves.

Terry Speaks at Assembly

One of the most enthusiastic receptions given by the students to a speaker this year was given to Mr. George Terry, principal of the Canyon High School, when he spoke at assembly Friday morning. His subject was high school as an apprenticeship for intelligent and happy living. The speaker's practical application of a familiar theme gave a new significance to his listeners.

Mr. Terry introduced his subject by saying that he envied a certain boy in this school. Immediately his audience was "all attention."

The boy he envied proved to be "the boy who has already decided what he wants to do in life and is working definitely in that direction."

Granting the value of school as a preparation for one's career, the speaker stated that his greater purpose is to train people to live intelligently and happily after school days. As one means toward this end, he urged students to take every opportunity offered for learning to use the social and literary subjects they are studying—by practice in individual thinking and by learning to express their thoughts adequately before a group.

He cited the necessity of such development if one is to take a normal part in civic or religious clubs of any community, saying that if that need is realized during his school days, a man will save himself the regret of inefficiency in his citizenship later on.

After stressing the value of larger group activities, the speaker advised every student to learn to do and enjoy something by himself or with a group of two or three people, stating that after school days a man does more things by himself or with a very small group rather than with a crowd.

high student, visited in Canyon over the week end. Elvin is now living on a ranch in Oklahoma.

Calves Defeat Vega

Saturday night, January 20, the W. T. Calves managed to eke out a 22-25 victory over Vega. Calf subs played the last part of the second quarter. The game was played in the Burton gym.

The following Saturday night the Calves dropped the victory to the powerful Golden Sandies in Amarillo, by the score of 22-23. At present the Sandies lead in the Panhandle Class A loop. It is said that the Calves played as smooth and fast basketball as has been seen in Amarillo this season. Led by Carl Neighbors, Calf guard, the Calves took the lead at the first and held a two-point lead at the end of the first quarter. It was not until shortly before the half ended that the Sandies were able to overcome the Calves' lead; and at one time the Amarillo boys were six points behind.

Beginning with the second half, the Sandies took control and managed to keep the ball in their possession most of the time. The Sandies also limited Co-Captain Neighbors to very few baskets in the last half. Despite being covered from all four sides, Carl Neighbors was high point man, with 10 points, closely followed by Savage, with 8 points.

Wednesday night, January 21, the Calves again tried their skill against the Amarillo Sandies in Burton gym, and with a little better luck than in the game played a few nights before. The Sandies could do no better than nose out a three-point victory over the Calves, with a score of 18-21. Coach Lynch started out his second string men, but the game wasn't very old until in came his best men. With the exception of a few wild shots, both teams played smooth basketball all the way through. Again led by Carl Neighbors, the Calves held a slight margin at the first quarter and also at the half. The Sandies rallied in the last quarter to beat the Calves. Neighbors was high-point man, with seven points, closely followed by Bomar Brown, with six points.

New students enrolled for the next semester are Inez Drummond, Dorothea Decker, Bobby Money, all from Canyon High, and J. R. Roberts from Munday, Texas.

Party at Mayben Home

Pearl Mayben entertained a group of her friends at her home Saturday evening. Various games were played, and refreshments of punch, cookies, and candy were served.

BUFFALOES TO PLAY WED.
AGAINST ARIZONA QUINTETBufs Practice Shooting
To Improve Offense
For Game

By Gerald Brown

Next Wednesday night, February 7, at eight o'clock, the West Texas State Teachers College Buffaloes meet the Arizona State Teachers College Lumberjacks for a one game engagement.

Although dissatisfied because they were on the short end of the score Friday night, the Buffaloes have still upheld the tradition of never losing a series to a team representing Texas Tech. Coach York let the Buffs take a rest Saturday and Sunday except for some goal shooting. Monday and Tuesday they returned to a scheduled practice with the emphasis placed on accurate goal shooting. In the last few games the Yorkmen have played a good defensive game and handled the ball nicely. At times they have been able to score when necessary, but at others, that little basket has seemed to contain a repellent force preventing the Buffaloes from scoring. The object of the game being to put the little ball through the basket more times than your opponents, Coach York will stress fundamentals in preparation for the game with the Lumberjacks.

Coach Baggett has applied for entrance into the Border Conference for West Texas State Teachers College. While the application has not been officially accepted as yet, it probably will be, and in the Lumberjacks of Coach McCreary the Buffs are meeting a probable conference opponent. This adds more of a significance to this game for the West Texans.

Flagstaff beat New Mexico University 31 to 29, and then dropped two conference games to Texas Tech, one by a one point margin. Coach McCreary has five veteran basketball players to form his squad. Crumley is heralded as one of the best forwards in the Border Conference. The Texans are willing to compare Arizona hot-shots to Oklahomaans. According to reports Crumley shoots continually, making many long and sensational shots.

Overson, the other forward, was characterized by the Texas Tech men as the more dangerous of the two. They described him as fast, a smooth floor man, deceptive, and while he did not shoot as much as Crumley, he plays more with his team and makes a larger percentage of his shots. Hendricks, a six foot three inch center, controlled the tip against Tech continually. Hendricks drops back to guard on defense, and uses his height to a real advantage. On a set offense he plays in the hole, and is dangerous with a one hand shot from about the free pitch line.

Pratt is a flashy ball-hawk at guard, while Fuller plays a steady, dependable defensive game at the other guard.

The Buffalo line-up will probably not be changed with Capt. Stroud and McMinn, forwards, Walker, center, and Phillips and Richards, guards.

SOJ Teams Are Doing Well In Intramural Play

The S. O. J. intramural basketball quintets are showing up as two of the hardest scrapping ball clubs in the tourney this year. The first quint, ranking among the high moguls is composed of an aggregation of "giant" hardwood artists who are capable of going places in any intramural competition.

The S. O. J. pivoteers are none other than "Giant" McElroy and "Riley Switch" Lovelace, who are tall and rangy with a good deal of jumping ability, making them hard to take a tip from.

Burkholter, Boyd, Lindsey, and McGehee are the forwards. "Gorilla" Moore is one of the greatest dribblers and forwards ever to enter into intramural play at West Texas, according to the S. O. J. tutor, "Dutch" Manning.

Higgins, Alexander, Stamphill, and "Fat" Spence are the guards. They are especially alert in getting into fast breaking plays and holding down the scores of the opponents.

With a little rounding out and smoothing in of some parts of the S. O. J. machines, two of the best clubs in the tourney should be produced. "Mantell" Manning, their "Big Coach," states, "The S. O. J.'s have the best bunch of basketball timber that has been amassed since I have been coaching intramural teams."

ACCOMPANY DOCTORS

Friday evening, February 2, several members of the Science Club accompanied the Canyon doctors, Neblett, Donnell, and Saddoris, to the monthly meeting in Hereford of doctors from five counties. These students were Bob Rowan, Fred Steele, Carl Spratt, Elmo Scott, and Horace Hickox, premeds.

Write On Paper, Please

Love is a funny thing. When something more important, like final exams, comes along, these love smitten studes let romance flop and study a few days. But we see that the serious spell is broken now and the couples are standing or leaning around in their corridor classes again. And we see a pair making a little heart around their dart-pierced initials on a spot of this beautiful new white wall. They weren't freshies, either, the chiselers. Why don't people like that get legally joined if they want the world to know about their love? What is that old saying?—O, yez, "Fool's names and fool's faces are often seen in public places!" Moral: If you consider yourself a fool, just write your name on our nice new walls and the rest of the world will read and agree with you.

Bust Busts

Leonard McMurray was more or less startled this morning when, while putting a few finishing touches on his bust (the one he made of Roosevelt), the head cracked off and rolled dizzily about. But he will paste it back on and who will know about it but you and me.

Etiquette

Some male asks if, when walking with two feds, he should walk in the middle. He said he had been observing and that 50 out of 100 men grabbed the middle space. Well, 50 out of these 100 men are going wrong. Always, when walking with one, or ten skirts, hug the curb, or the outer edge of what ever you're walking on, unless, of course, it's a tight rope and, in that case, you'd better hug something else.

Farm News

One of Farmer Jones' neighbor boys left his football in the Jones chicken yard. A rooster found it. Calling his harem about him, he said, "Ladies, I'm not complaining or nagging, but take a squint at what the neighbor's hens are doing!"

Popularity

During the past months, we have seen beauty candidates come and go. Some of the beauts took their popularity with a swelling of the old head and a pigeon strut, while others (and they came out winners, too) went calmly about, attending classes, recognizing friends, and acting as if nothing unusual had happened. If you are nominated or elected for some popular place, don't let it change you, because you were liked as you were or you wouldn't have made the raffle. Be yourself and don't copy the other guy because you can't put it over.

EX-BUFFS WILL BE SEEN ON BURTON COURT AGAIN

The least we can say about "Big John" Walker as a prophet, the better off we are. We sorta kidded him about his bet on the Outlaw-S. O. J. game, but we have to admit we're wrong.

This is the first time the "Big Shot" (Self-termed) of Fizz and Fuzz, our new titles, has been on the job in this column since November the middle. It's good to have time enough to get even with some of these birds, like "Dirty" Phillips, for instance.

Early in the season, "Ralls" Richards out-coached Edd McMinn when the Cousins played Moore's Co-op. Rich used 24 men to Mc's seven, and consequently won the old tussle. Excuse us if we exaggerate.

Speaking of Cousins, Bradley, their hot shot, sure has an eye for the basket.

This school is getting a bad name in sportsmanship due to the undue cheering and razzing of the crowd. Some people naturally don't know when to yell and when to be quiet. A referee's decision should never be questioned. He knows a lot more about what he's doing than we do. Razzing when a guy is making a free throw is very wrong, and we don't need to say why, it's evident. Cheering when an opponent fouls one of your men is not right, he didn't mean to do it, and if he did he was well acquainted with the penalty. We don't mean to be preaching, but fellows, let's show these visitors that we can take it, and be real sports. What do you say?

TAPPERS WANTED

To prevent the discontinuation of their classes, members of the advanced tap courses are asking that all boys and girls who know the fundamentals of tap to please join the classes. The girls' class meets Tuesdays and Thursdays at one thirty. Both meet in the gym in the education building. All who are interested are urged to come and join.

Ogden Boosters To Play
Metzger's Quintet
Thursday

Thursday night some old acquaintances will be seen in action on the floor of Burton Gym. A veritable "galaxy of stars" who were trained by the "Big Coach" in whose honor the gym was named, will play, this time against each other.

The tall and famous Ogden Boosters from Mormonland will play the Metzgers Dairy quintet of Amarillo.

On the Utah team are Fortenberry, known, here as "Joe College," George Ray Colvin, Bob Clark, and Edwin Comer. With them are some of the former Wichita Henrys, Miller, McBurney, Calahan, and Gibbons.

The Metzgers team is coached by one of the fastest guards West Texas has ever seen, Davis Hill. He has on his squad a great many former Buffaloes, among whom are the Hale brothers, "Tahoe" Lowes, Cleve Jones, Pat Gerald, and Hatcher Brown.

Although the Boosters are picked to win the tussle, the Metzgers will give them a real tussle, and the game promises to be a thriller.

Calves To Play
Double Header
At Happy Sat.

There will be two basketball games at Happy Saturday. The Canyon Calves will play the Happy high school team, which is rated as one of the best in the district. The Canyon girls will play their first game of the season by playing the Happy girls on the same date.

Last Wednesday night the Calves played the Amarillo cagers to a close score. At the half, the Calves were leading with a score of six to five, but the Sandies rallied in the last half and copped a twenty-one to eighteen victory. Savage, Brown, and Neighbors played a good "heads-up" game of basketball for the Calves.

100 Players Are Taking Part In Intramural Game

Approximately 100 men are at present participating in intramural basketball, one of the most interesting activities which the "small time player" can take part in.

There are twelve teams, with a maximum of ten players to each team. All the teams are not full, however, several having as few as seven men. Each team has a coach, who may be one of the ten players, or may be the "big coach" alone and participate only in directing his team.

Another phase of the game which is showing a great deal of benefit, is the coaching, which is done mostly by Varsity players. Guy Richards, Varsity guard, is coach of the leading team, Cousins I. Other coaches are Edd McMinn, Ted Phillips, John Walker, Russell Stroud, George Manning, Al Duncan, Leonard Britt, and M. E. Cleavinger. Those coaches who are also players are Warren Whalley, A. C. Brown, George Gandy, and the coach of the Muskrats.
